TAX CONVICTION APPEAL LOST BY BILLY SKIDMORE

Gambler Faces 2½ Years in Prison.

The conviction of William R. [Billy] Skidmore for evasion of income tax payments of $353,194 was upheld yesterday in a unanimous decision by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

William R. Skidmore.

Skidmore, the reputed front for the Chicago gambling syndicate for many years, was convicted by a jury in the United States District court March 8. Judge Philip L. Sullivan sentenced him to prison for 2½ years and fined him $5,000.

He is reported to be 68 years old, owns a number of large farms and makes his headquarters in his junk yard at 2840 South Kedzie avenue.

Skidmore's appeal attracted particular attention because the same court last Sept. 15, reversed the conviction of William R. Johnson, whom the government termed head of the gambling syndicate.

Predictions Are Upset.

The opinion in the Johnson case held that it could have been concluded reasonably that Johnson had been convicted of gambling instead of income tax evasion, the charge on which he was indicted.

There had, therefore, been many predictions that the Court of Appeals would free Skidmore. However, the opinion in the Skidmore case yesterday said there was little similarity between the two convictions.

The Skidmore opinion was written by Judge Will M. Sparks, with the concurrence of Judges J. Earl Major and Evan A. Evans. The opinion reversing the conviction of Johnson was written by Judge Major. Judge Sparks concurred and Judge Evans dissented.

The Skidmore opinion said his attorney, William Scott Stewart, evidently had relied considerably in his arguments upon the decision in the Johnson case.

Johnson Case Not Pertinent.

Skidmore's attorney had argued that the jury brought in one verdict finding Skidmore guilty for the year 1938, and later brought in one finding him guilty for 1936 and 1937. The attorney argued in the appeal hearing on Oct. 8 that the jury had exhausted its powers after returning one verdict. The court opinion said there was no merit in this contention.

Stewart had protested against the emphasis which government prosecutors placed on Skidmore's supposed background as a gambler and intimated that the defendant was convicted because he was known as a gambler and not because he had been a tax dodger. The opinion held, however, that the government's evidence was proper.

Questions Worded Differently.

Another principal objection to the conviction was the nature of the hypothetical questions asked by the government of Frank J. Clifford, internal revenue accountant. Johnson's appeal charged that Clifford had answered with purported facts instead of opinions that Johnson had evaded tax payments.

The court held in the Skidmore case that the government's questions had been so worded that Clifford had given only opinions, in accordance with the law.

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, expressed satisfaction with the court's decision. The Skidmore trial was the first major case that he has prosecuted since assuming office a year ago. He headed the trial staff in District court and argued against the appeal before the Appellate court.

Woll's petition for a rehearing of Johnson's case, which was tried before he assumed office, is pending. The appeals court reversed Johnson's conviction and that of five co-defendants. Johnson's punishment was fixed at five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

WHAT DID THEY EXPECT TO REAP?

U. S. ARMY TO AID BRITAIN IN AFRICA

Mission to Take Charge of Lend-Lease Supplies.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 31 (AP). — A United States military mission headed by Brig. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell is scheduled to arrive here within two weeks to take charge of all phases of American aid to Britain in Africa, it was disclosed today.

Brig. Gen. Maxwell.

The mission will be followed by hundreds of American technicians, both military and civil, to put into effect the vast program to be undertaken here under the lend-lease act.

To Maintain Equipment.

The American activity will include not only getting war supplies in an ever increasing volume, but also maintenance of American tanks, planes, and various construction projects—in fact, everything connected with the war short of actual combat.

It is considered probable here that the mission's work will embrace surveys for a possible landing of an American expeditionary force in Africa.

This does not mean any such plan has been decided upon. It merely means that the war department wants to have as much preliminary work as possible achieved in case it ever is decided to send an American army to this continent and to have the fullest information as to possible campsites and other facilities, climatic and hygienic conditions, and ideas on the most suitable clothing and equipment for such an army.

Another Group in Basra.

The Maxwell mission, with headquarters in Cairo, will be a companion one to another mission to Iraq and Iran with headquarters at Basra. This mission will supervise the same type program in that area with emphasis on getting help to the Russians thru the Persian gulf route.

Pilot Blames Ice in 14 Plane Deaths; 2d Crash a Mystery

Elevators Locked

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 [Special].—A dramatic story of how ice accumulations locked the controls of his airplane and prevented him from pulling it out of a power glide into the ground was told today by Capt. Clarence Bates, sole survivor of the Northwest Airlines crash early Thursday morning near Moorhead, Minn., it was learned here tonight.

Normal Trip to Fargo.

In his report Bates said the flight had been normal until he reached Fargo, N. D., two miles from Moorhead and across the Red river, the state boundary line. He said he passed over the Fargo airport, flying in cloud on instruments and in freezing temperatures. He communicated with the company's radio station on the field and received barometric pressures for adjustment of his ship's altimeters in preparation for an instrument approach.

"I made my approach in accordance with my company's operating procedures, but found the plane accumulating considerable ice as I descended thru the cloud layer," Bates was quoted.

"I recognized the trouble and maintained ample flying speed, but as I came down the approach leg of the beam, heading toward the field and still on instruments, I trimmed the ship for a steady rate of descent.

Field Lights Sighted.

"We broke out beneath the clouds at 500 feet above the ground. The air was clear and I could see the field lights and those from the town of Fargo. At that point I tried to retrim the plane to hold my altitude.

"I found it impossible to move the elevators. They were jammed—locked tight with ice. I tried to check the descent with power and with the trim tabs, but the plane kept right on in the glide. My co-pilot and I were horsing back on the controls when the plane hit the ground in an almost level flight position."

Bates said the plane slid along on its belly and into a ravine about 100 feet ahead of the point of impact. Bates suffered only shock and bruises in one of the strangest accidents and escapes in air line history.

Investigators Baffled

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31 [Special].—Mystery, baffling as the strangest detective story, tonight confronted government and airline officials investigating the crash late Thursday of the American Airlines Chicago bound airliner, 14 miles west of St. Thomas, Ont. The crash killed 20 persons.

Facts uncovered were:

1. Without reporting any trouble to ground stations, the plane descended from its assigned altitude of 4,000 feet as it flew from Buffalo, N. Y., to its next scheduled stop at Detroit, Mich., and circled for at least 12 minutes around a little farm community on the regular airway.

2. The circling was at heights between 200 and 400 feet—lower than any plane can be flown safely—yet it continued for such a long period that motor troubles seem to be ruled out.

Who Was Handling Controls?

3. All turns were made in a circle approximately 3 miles in diameter, and all were made to the right. This point baffles investigators, because the captain of an airliner always sits on the left side of the cockpit. In order to see well, he normally makes turns to the left, and it is universal practice for the captains to fly their planes when in trouble.

4. The wrecked plane burned for nearly two hours after the crash, but the tail surfaces were intact. The rudder trim tabs were in a neutral position — another indication that there was no motor trouble, for the plane would have been trimmed to offset the unbalance of single engined flight.

Co-Pilot New on Job.

5. Capt. David Cooper, the pilot, was a veteran and considered one of the best airmen in his company, but his co-pilot, R. L. Owens, was comparatively a novice flyer making his first trip for the company.

Seeking to fit all these circumstances into a logical theory, investigators found only one possible solution: Some physical ailment must have stricken the pilot, throwing the untrained co-pilot into command of the plane. This would explain the circling to the right, and the ultimate stalling of the plane.

An autopsy was planned in the hope that physicians can determine the crew's physical condition at the time of the crash.

HALTS ATTEMPT TO VOTE REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—A speech by Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] today stopped an attempt by the war party in the senate to whip up an emotional frenzy over the sinking of the United States destroyer Reuben James and stampede the senate into an immediate vote on repeal of the neutrality act.

Sen. Wayland Brooks.

Brooks held the floor against the attempts of interventionists to obtain an immediate vote on the neutrality revision bill. The Illinois senator spoke for more than an hour and when he had finished his moving and eloquent plea for a consideration of the awful consequences attendant upon this nation's involvement in the war, there was a marked cooling of senatorial tempers, and a rash act prevented.

Brooks Gets Great Ovation.

Sen. Brooks' masterful speech received a tremendous ovation from the floor and from the galleries. It was the longest and loudest demonstration which has thus far marked five days of debate on the revision of the neutrality law. He reached his climax when he pictured the awfulness of war, a scene of horror taken from his own experience as a distinguished soldier of the World war, in which he was wounded and decorated.

Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, had dramatically announced the sinking from the senate floor, and immediately Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel [D., Tex.] bounded to his feet. He suggested that American ships were being sunk while the senate talked and announced that he would ask unanimous consent that debate be concluded and an immediate vote had on the pending resolution.

Brooks Holds Floor.

Fiery 74 year old Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] then roared a demand that the navy be sent out immediately to "mop up the seas of these assassins and pirates" and Connally demanded that "this unjustified and dastardly sinking be avenged."

However, there was one obstacle—Brooks, who held the floor. O'Daniel could not present his request until Brooks had concluded.

When O'Daniel made his request, Connally and other administration leaders remained silent. Sen. Francis Maloney [D., Conn.] of the anti-war group voiced the objection which prevented the senate from gagging itself. O'Daniel renewed his request after another senator had spoken but again Maloney objected. O'Daniel then subsided.

Brooks told the senate that an affirmative vote on repeal of the restrictions on arming merchant ships and sending them into the war zones would put the United States "all out" into a shooting war.

Taxpayer Is Forgotten.

"I think sometimes in the excitement of it all, we forget that many an American citizen will mortgage his home next spring to pay his tax bill, and that many of them will be denied opportunities and benefits thruout their entire lives, struggling on under the burden of this debt which we have placed upon our backs," he declared.

None could foresee, he continued, the results of a prolonged war which would exhaust the people of the world. There were tremendous forces loose in the world which have been gathering for a long time, he said, and which the nations themselves, including England even if she wins, cannot control.

An American expeditionary force is a certainty if the resolution is approved, Brooks predicted, and he pictured grimly the horrors of war.

"And sad will be the day," he warned his colleagues, "when you

'WE ASK FOR IT' WRITES SAILOR ABOARD JAMES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Anxiously waiting for word of the survivors from the torpedoed destroyer Reuben James, families and friends of crewmen and officers yesterday recalled the last messages they had received from those aboard.

The father of James Walton Rogers, 24 year old seaman from Chattanooga, Tenn., reported that his son had written him Oct. 15:

"We're asking for it and as you predict, it'll probably happen any time now."

In the letter young Rogers added, describing one trip:

"Yes, we saw and contacted several subs this 37 day cruise. Our job is only to drop ash cans to keep 'em scared away from the convoy, but we're asking for it."

Leaves Watch Behind.

Chief Petty Officer Alton A. Cousins, 44, left his gold watch behind when he visited his family two weeks ago at Cranston, R. I.

"I'm going to leave this here, it's not going down with me," he told his wife as he laid the watch on the mantel.

Cousins, a native of Leominster, Mass., went to sea at 17 and served 16 years in the navy before retiring about 10 years ago. He was recalled into active service in August, 1940.

The mother of a Buffalo, N. Y., sailor said when told of the sinking:

"He should have got his torpedo off before the submarine did."

Mrs. Ernest P. Howard, the mother, asserted that her son Robert, 21, was a third class torpedo man on the ship. His last letter was dated Oct. 19 and at that time he said the destroyer soon might go to an Atlantic coast seaport for overhauling.

Wedding Planned in December.

John Fitzgerald, 21, of Hampstead, N. H., aboard the Reuben James when last heard from recently, planned to marry a next door neighbor, Dorothy Dustin, in December. He had informed his intended bride that he had been assured a 20 day leave then.

Lieut. John J. Daub Jr., 26, son of the headmaster of the Kiski preparatory school at Saltsburg, Pa., was assigned to the destroyer only three weeks ago, his father said. The torpedoing occurred on the day his brother, Craig, was scheduled to complete a course as a flying cadet at Randolph Field, Tex.

In a letter to his mother in Stanley, N. Y., 21-year-old Seaman Charles Phalen wrote two weeks ago from Boston that he expected another convoy trip soon.

Get Letter with Sinking News.

John Francis Bauer, Jr., 29, of Chester, Pa., was chief radioman on the torpedoed United States destroyer Reuben James, his father said today. Besides the father, Bauer's mother and three sisters live in Chester.

Radioman Bauer was home on a 48 hour leave two weeks ago, his father said. His parents received a letter from him only this morning, almost at the time the news of the torpedoing was given out by the navy department.

WELL, ANYWAY, ALL THAT OCTOBER RAIN SET A NEW RECORD!

If the rain soaked all the crease out of your clothes last night or took the curl from your hair, here's the silver lining: October, gallant old October, the 10th month of the year, was splashing and gurgling its way to an all time record.

When the weather man took his measurement at 6:30 p. m., October, 1941, was the rainiest October in the history of the weather bureau, .05 inch ahead of the old champion, October, 1883. The month had produced 7.41 inches of rain, and it was still raining.

October's record breaking spurt put it 4.88 inches ahead of the normal rainfall mark of 2.53 inches and gave the year to date an excess of 2.77 inches over the normal 28.45. But the sun was busy between rains. The month had 55 per cent of its possible sunshine, only 5 per cent less than the normal 60.

Forecaster H. A. Downs said the rain will end this morning and the weather will get cooler. Tomorrow will be fair and somewhat warmer.

PLANS NO BREAK WITH GERMANY, PRESIDENT SAYS

Calls Sinking Risk of Convoying.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—The navy department tonight announced that 44 members of the crew of the torpedoed American destroyer Reuben James have been rescued. The announcement came a little more than 12 hours after the first report the vessel had been sunk. The fate of the other 77 aboard the ship was not known, the navy indicated.

"The navy department has received a report that 44 members of the crew of the U. S. S. Reuben James have been rescued," the navy statement said. "The survivors who have been accounted for are all enlisted men.

"The navy department has no further information at this time, but additional details will be released when received."

Altho the names of those rescued were not available, a list of the seven officers on the ill fated vessel was released simultaneously.

[List of officers on the Reuben James is on page 7.]

President Is Restrained.

The vessel, which presumably was sunk by a Nazi submarine, is being treated by the administration as an expectable casualty of an undeclared war between the United States and Germany.

President Roosevelt, with noticeable calm and restraint, discussed the incident at his press conference today. Foregoing his customary denunciation of the Nazis as the authors of unwarranted and piratical attacks on American ships he said, in response to a question, that no change in the international situation has been created by the incident.

The reason is that the commander of the destroyer was merely carrying out orders, the President said. These orders issued by the commander in chief of the navy are to hunt down and sink on sight German warships in "defensive waters" of the United States. Therefore, it is to be expected that in warfare of this sort, with both German and American warships shooting on sight, casualties will be suffered on both sides. The President regards virtually the entire Atlantic ocean as American defensive waters.

Plans No Diplomatic Break.

The President, in response to another question, said that he had not heard of the suggestion that the incident might cause the United States to sever diplomatic relations with Germany, further evidence that he does not consider the torpedoing of the Reuben James as an unjustifiable act calling for the dismissal of the German ambassador, as is customary when one nation grievously affronts another with which it is at peace.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had only a fragmentary report of the sinking of the destroyer and did not know whether any of the seven officers and 114 men aboard her had perished. He did not know whether any German submarines had been sunk and said he would not tell if he did. The navy he said could not disclose the destruction or capture of German war craft. The Germans would be kept guessing about the fate of warships that do not return and that will be bad for German morale, according to the administration theorem.

First Admission of Convoy.

In announcing the loss of the destroyer the navy department for the first time officially admitted than an American warship was engaged in convoying cargoes of arms to the axis foes. Hitherto convoying has been disclaimed, the President describing the navy function as "patrolling." The reason is that Mr. Roosevelt once said that convoying means shooting and shooting means war. With the navy engaged in an undeclared war such as the President foresaw, the administration has abandoned the pretense that it is not convoying contraband to belligerents.

"The navy department announced that the United States destroyer

WARD INCREASES HEAT OF ATTACK IN JUDICIAL RACE

Sample Ballot

A sample ballot showing the indorsements of the Chicago Bar association among candidates in Tuesday's judicial election will be published in tomorrow's CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. THE TRIBUNE recommends the bar association suggestions.

Harold G. Ward, Democratic nominee for judge of the Superior court and minority leader of the Illinois senate, last night increased the heat of his attack on Gov. Dwight H. Green as the sponsor of the Republican ticket in the election next Tuesday.

Ward, the only man on the Democratic Superior court ticket who is not an incumbent, repeatedly has criticized the governor from the platform, but this time he took to the radio and charged that the governor's activity in this campaign proves he is a dictator.

"When Gov. Green attempts to use the power and prestige of his position to bulldoze the voters of Cook county into doing as he says, I maintain he is a dictator," Ward said.

Hails "Nonpartisan Spirit."

"When he attempts to defeat able, honest, impartial elected sitting judges who have served the public long and faithfully, I maintain he is a dictator.

"These judges are both Democrats and Republicans, and they were nominated in accordance with a nonpartisan spirit which has prevailed in this community for 50 years.

"The opposition to the present elected judges was not nominated in accordance with the tradition of fair play, but was hand picked by Gov. Green.

"I submit that the governor has, by his action, set himself up as the would-be czar of Cook county.

"Why is Gov. Green so interested in owning the judges of Cook county? Why is he so determined to make the bench 100 per cent Republican?

Attacks Legislative Record.

Senator Ward also attacked Gov. Green's record in connection with the first session of the general assembly under his administration.

The principal speaker for the day in behalf of the Republican ticket was State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder.

"I would like to emphasize," he said, "that it is imperative that a large vote be cast for the Republican ticket on Tuesday. A Democratic victory may be construed as an indorsement of the present Washington policies of the New Deal party.

"Even the illogical conclusion may be reached by some that a victory of the Democratic ticket will be an indorsement of the Democratic régime in Cook county."

Earl J. Walker, secretary of the citizens' committee supporting the Democratic ticket, issued a statement condemning Gov. Green and members of his cabinet "for making partisan appeals for the election of the Republican ticket."

World War Order Salutes Gen. Cummins of 6th Corps

Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, commander of the 6th corps area, was guest of honor last night at the October dinner of the Military Order of the World War, an organization of commissioned officers who served in the war. Seventy-five members of the order heard Gen. Cummins speak informally at the Army and Navy club, 600 South Michigan avenue.

Judicial Candidates

(This is the last of a series of sketches of the nominees for the Cook county judicial election next Tuesday. They were published in the order in which the candidates' names appear on the ballot.)

BY PERCY WOOD.

Attorney Edwin W. Burch, one of the young lawyers recently recommended as qualified for the bench by the Chicago Bar association, is Republican candidate for the Rooney Municipal court vacancy.

Born 39 years ago in Rockwell City, Ia., Burch has two degrees from Harvard university, where he finished the law course in 1930. He taught high school in Idaho for two years between the time he obtained his bachelor's degree and his entrance into law school.

In practice in Chicago since 1932, Burch has done general work with two law firms, and has taught state and federal taxation at the John Marshall Law school. He also is assisting in editing a six volume series on Illinois practice.

The candidate was chairman of a subcommittee of the bar association which investigated the legal aspects of gambling in Illinois two years ago. Other association committees on which he served include: Excess profits tax, administration of criminal justice, and federal taxation.

At the 1940 election, Burch served in the 27th ward with the Citizens' Committee to Eliminate Vote Frauds.

DEMOCRAT.

Judge Samuel Heller.

Attorney Samuel Heller, with 12 years' experience on the Municipal court between 1926 to 1938, as a Republican, was picked by the Democrats for the John J. Rooney vacancy on the court, which expires in 1944.

Born in Poland 44 years ago, Heller has been in the United States since he was 12 years old and is a citizen by virtue of his father's naturalization.

After attending the Joseph Medill High school and receiving a bachelor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago and a law degree from Northwestern university, he was admitted to the bar in 1914. He has continued an interest in oriental history and literature at the University of Chicago, now holds a master's degree and is working toward a doctorate in philosophy.

Elected to the Municipal bench as a Deneen Republican in 1926, Heller was a candidate for reëlection in 1932 and pursued an election contest to a successful conclusion. He was the Republican nominee for county judge in 1934, and one of the G. O. P. nominees for the city court last year. Declared defeated, he filed an election contest which still is pending.

Bar Distributes Sample Ballots

Approximately 300,000 sample ballots for the judicial election Tuesday marked with the indorsements of the Chicago Bar association have been distributed among the voters of Cook county by members of that organization.

As chairman of the association's election committee, Attorney Graydon Megan set up an organization consisting of ward and township chairmen who in turn enlisted precinct workers for the big task.

Union Role Disregarded in Rehiring of Crew.

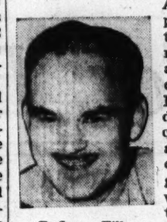
Bendix, N. J., Oct. 31 [Special].—All officers and employés of the Air Associates, Inc., plant, which was taken over last night by the army on orders of President Roosevelt, were declared discharged today and the rehiring of men was begun immediately without regard to union affiliations.



F. Leroy Hill.

Among those not rehired, however, was F. Leroy Hill, president of the company, whose battles with the CIO led to the President's proclamation seizing the plant. CIO disputes have harassed the plant since last July.

Col. Roy M. Jones, eastern district supervisor of the air corps procurement division and new boss of the plant, termed Hill "a former employé" and added that the president "has gone home and is not coming back, as far as I know." Altho Hill was said to be available for consultation, he was noticeably absent from conferences between army officers and plant executives.

Third of Force Rehired.

By noon one-third of the plant's force of 700 had been rehired and Col. Jones said he expected to have production at full capacity by tomorrow. He said he was rehiring men who would work as American citizens on "the front line of democracy," taking them on a basis of first come first served and without regard to whether they were union men.

While the conferences were in progress, the plant was surrounded by contingents of the 2,100 helmeted soldiers who took possession of it early today. Machine guns were set up at strategic points and guards walked posts with fixed bayonets. Despite the show of force, only the machine guns were loaded. Officers had orders not to load rifles or pistols.

No announcement was made concerning arrangements under which the army will operate the huge factory, which manufactures airplane parts. It was presumed the army will meet pay rolls from proceeds of operation, but nothing had been said about the disposition of profits.

Confronted by Troops.

Groups of both factions in the long labor fight—independent workers and members of the aviation division of the United Automobile Workers [CIO]—were on hand when the soldiers arrived. CIO strikers formed on one side of a drive and nonstrikers massed on the other. A line of troops with bayonets confronted both groups.

Into this tense scene rode Col. Jones, who had been ordered to operate the plant. He told the crowd that the plant, which has 5 million dollars' worth of arms orders, had been taken over by the war department and that men would be hired regardless of past difficulties.

Later Col. Jones issued a statement announcing he had been instructed "to take all steps necessary to protect workers entering and leaving the plant and, if necessary, in their homes."

The factory is the third recently commandeered by the government. Altho it is comparatively small in the New Jersey industrial picture, its products are essential for Martin bombers, Brewster dive bombers, Airacobra fighters, and other war planes.

The seizure ended labor disputes which began with a three week strike in July by CIO men who charged their members had been laid off for union activities. The union walked out again Sept. 30, demanding higher wages and a closed shop. This strike was announced as having been settled in Washington last Friday and 65 strikers were to have returned Monday, but they refused to do so.

Robbed of Jewels

ROB PUBLISHER'S WIFE OF $11,800 IN FURS, CASH, GEMS

Two robbers yesterday afternoon took advantage of the poor visibility caused by rain to cover their operations while they robbed Mrs. Myrtle Goldwater, wife of a New York magazine publisher, of $11,800 in jewelry, furs, and cash after following her taxicab from the Belmont hotel to 540 Briar place.

Mrs. Goldwater was starting the return trip to New York after a visit here. She had stopped at the Briar place address to pick up a cousin when the bandit car drew alongside. While one bandit stayed in the car, the other, wearing a handkerchief mask, climbed into the cab, threatened Mrs. Goldwater with a revolver, and demanded her furs and jewelry.

Mrs. Goldwater surrendered a diamond bracelet valued at $5,000, a diamond ring worth $3,500, a gold diamond bracelet valued at $650, a mink coat valued at $2,000, a mink jacket valued at $500, a wrist watch worth $50, and $100 in cash. Unable to open two suitcases, the bandit joined his companion and fled.

CONSERVE PAPER! YOU'LL AID SELF, CITY, AND NATION

Defense Needs Growing; Kelly Appeals to All.

Mayor Kelly urged yesterday that all Chicagoans join in the city's drive against waste paper. He said that the collection of waste paper, particularly old newspapers, serves a two-fold purpose.

1. Gathering of waste paper in the streets will improve the appearance of the city and the collection and sale of old newspapers will improve fire prevention in the homes.

2. Collection and sale of old newspapers are being urged in a national drive to aid the manufacturers of paperboard or cardboard used for packing. Because of defense activities this industry has increased production 20 per cent in the last year.

For 22 days, approximately 194 reliefers daily have been collecting waste paper thruout the city. Kelly said that collections to date total 32 tons. Chicago Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons has been asked to assign 3,000 reliefers to the project.

$400,000 for Campaign.

Members of the National Paperboard association's conservation committee of the waste paper consuming industry have raised $400,000 to be used in advertising the campaign nationally.

Harry Adler, secretary of the NPA, said, "Old Newspapers are of no use to any one but the paperboard industry. Old paper sold to a junk man is resold to a waste paper dealer, and thus finds its way to the paperboard mills."

Officials and executives of many paper manufacturing concerns gave similar statements.

According to the American Newspaper Publishers association, every ton of waste paper saved results in a saving of enough sulphite [a chemical used to disintegrate wood into pulp suitable for paper manufacture] to make two tons of newsprint.

Needs of Defense Gain.

This year the United States paperboard industry expects to produce more than 8 million tons of paperboard, A. F. Meisterheim, chairman of the conservation campaign in Chicago, reported. But national defense will take two million tons of the total. Next year's production will reach 9 million tons, but defense will take two-thirds of it.

"Only 28 per cent of the nation's waste paper is recovered," Meisterheim said. "Fifty per cent is lost, and the remainder goes into permanent use."

The great demands of national defense, Adler said, may be illustrated by one item alone: Virtually every shell, and millions are being turned out, goes into a paperboard box.

The importance of paperboard manufacture in relation to the entire paper industry is shown by statistics published in Fibre Containers, paper box trade journal. Total tonnage of paperboard of all types manufactured in the United States in 1940 was 6,550,000, while all other paper accounted for 7,822,000 tons of production. Paperboard represented 45.6 per cent of the nation's tonnage output.

1940 Output Highest.

Paperboard output has shown a fairly consistent increase in the last decade. The 1940 tonnage production was the highest on record, 7.3 per cent above 1939.

In 1940 the paperboard industry consumed 3,880,000 tons of waste paper, according to the trade journal, while other types of paper manufacture consmed 710,000 tons.

The use of greater percentages of waste paper [and less of wood pulp] in paper boxes may mean that the carton in which you buy a tooth brush next year will be not quite as shiny, not quite as white. But it will be just as efficient, and industries which cannot use waste paper products will be able to obtain paper made from wood pulp.

Accenting the increase in demand for waste paper, Donald M. Nelson, priorities director, ordered eastern paperboard and roofing mills to reduce their consumption of waste paper by 10 per cent from Oct. 25 to Nov. 22. Current supplies, Nelson said, are inadequate.

Planes Get Chlorine.

Some of the chemicals used in paper manufacture have gone under priorities. Chlorine, used in bleaching, now goes into anti-freeze compounds for airplane and tank engines. It is also used to make smokeless powder, gasses, and smoke screen materials. Formaldehyde and borax, also used in the manufacture of certain types of paper, are under priority rulings. Civilians needs come last.

Many items, such as paper towels, adding machine rolls, blotting paper, toilet paper, napkins, writing paper, and crêpe paper, have been put under export licensing regulations.

Another factor presaging a paper shortage is the increasing use of paper by the government, which is expected to use 4 million tons of all types of paper this year—20 per cent of the nation's capacity. Next year, Office of Production Management experts have said, the government may want 35 per cent of the nation's paper, in 1943 perhaps 50 per cent.

So—don't throw away your old newspapers. Sell them.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY BARBARA QUEST.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each timely, interesting question submitted by a reader and used in this column.]

[Question submitted by Mrs. Mary Lieurance, 838 North Dearborn.]

The Question.

What was the nicest thing that ever happened to you?

Where Asked.

The Answers.

S. H. Helkkinen, baggage agent, 839 Sheridan—Twenty-four months and seven days ago it happened to me. She said "yes" after I spent five whole months trying to convince her that she was the only woman in the whole world that I wanted to marry.

Helen Slater, inspector, 5130 Dorchester—When the height regulation of stewardesses was changed so that I was included it was about the nicest thing that could happen to me. Ever since stewardesses existed I wanted to be one, but try as I would I couldn't grow tall enough. Now I'm free to follow my chosen career with new ambition.

Lorene Gentry, salesgirl, 3743 Damen avenue—After thinking for so many years that my rheumatic fever was going to make a lifetime invalid of me and probably seriously affect my heart, that nicest thing happened. I was completely cured and able once again to lead a normal life.

Earl Benson, bus driver, Galesburg, Ill.—That was to be presented with a baby son three years ago. And I liked the first one so well I was rewarded with another one just five weeks ago. I hope the good luck keeps up. I always wanted a big family of sons.

Lilian Jensen, salesgirl, 6830 South Justine avenue — This was quite awhile ago, but it still stands out in my life. I got my wish for a baby brother when I was 6. He's been the the greatest pal a brother could be and truly an event in my life.

Jacques Veissi, jeweler, 1245 South 51st street, Cicero—You wouldn't think that coming from France to see Chicago's 1933 exposition would be a particularly nice thing to have happen? But it was. It resulted in my marrying an American girl and deciding to be an American. I'd hate to think where I might be now if that hadn't happened then.

RESCUE 2 FLYERS AFTER WEEK ON MOUNTAIN TRAP

Land on 10,400 Ft. Peak in Parachutes.

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP).—Two young army aviators who parachuted from their storm-trapped planes into the mountain wilderness of the high Sierras, there to survive a week of storms and exposure, were rushed to an army hospital tonight. The flyers were rescued this afternoon by a ground crew.

Arrow indicates where flyers were found.

The flyers, Lieuts. Jack C. West of Centerville, Ia., and Leonard C. Lydon of Des Moines, Ia., made the last 70 miles of their trip in a highway patrol car which met them near the base of 10,400 foot Barton peak, on which they had been stranded.

They were part of a formation of 19 pursuit planes which scattered over the Sierras after running into storm and fog on a flight last Friday. A third flyer, Lieut. Richard N. Long of Connellsville, Pa., still is missing. A fourth member of the flight parachuted to safety, but a fifth died in the wreckage of his plane.

Interviewers Are Barred.

The hospital said the condition of the two rescued aviators was good, considering their experience.

Neither was to be permitted to see interviewers until tomorrow, but Maj. Carroll S. Miller, leader of the ground rescue party which reached the two men today, had this to say of what had occurred:

"West found a shack—the forest service said it is known as Barton Trappers' shack in Sugar Loaf valley—and stayed there two days.

"After dark on the second night he heard a knock at the door. 'Who's there?' he called. 'I'm a lost aviator,' came the reply. 'Can you show me the way out of here?' 'My God, so am I,' West shouted. 'Come on in.'

Searching for Way Out.

During the ensuing days the two took long hikes, searching for a way out of the mountains. They found some fishing tackle in the cabin and caught 12 fish. At one time in their wanderings, it developed, they approached within a quarter mile of a ranger's cabin, where a telephone and food were available.

"Finally they climbed about 2,500 feet up Barton peak from the 5,000 foot floor, so that they might better be seen. They built a fire and gathered rocks to spell out their names.'"

The National Park service reported that night temperatures in Sugar Loaf valley during the last week have ranged from 5 to 15 degrees above zero. There were a few inches of snow on the ground.

Maj. Miller said that when Lydon and West first sighted his party they ran forward shouting and flung their arms around the rescuers.

Heavily bearded and somewhat emaciated, they were loaded onto horses and carried to an army truck, which brought them to a rendezvous with the patrol car at the head of the highway.

ARMY PILOT DIES HUNTING FLYER RESCUED AT SEA

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 31 (AP).—Lieut. Henry Ellison Thompson, 24 years old, of Tuskeegee, Ala., was killed today in the plunge of his army pursuit plane into the sea during a search for another army flyer who had been forced to bail out from his ship over the water.

The parachuting flyer, Lieut. A. J. Feiler, also 24, was rescued by Capt. Asaron W. Tyler, pilot of an amphibian plane. Tyler put his plane down on the water near where Feiler had alighted.

SALLY RAND.

MRS. HELEN GREENOUGH.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP).—Naming Fan Dancer Sally Rand as the new heart interest of her husband, Mrs. Helen A. Greenough filed suit for separate maintenance today against Thurkel [Turk] Greenough, a rodeo rider.

Mrs. Greenough, asking $100 a week, said Greenough called her by long distance on Oct. 4 from the east and told her he was in love with some one else—then to prove it put Sally on the wire and had her confirm his sentiments.

The Greenoughs were married April 5, 1933, in Red Lodge, Mont., parting last Sept. 1. Greenough filed suit for divorce on Oct. 28 at Billings, Mont., charging desertion.

Beer Tax Suit for $119,000 Filed Against Al Capone

Miami Beach, Fla., Oct. 31 (AP).—Al Capone, the former gang chief, was served today with notice of a $119,367 suit for collection of unpaid taxes on beer brewed by his syndicate during prohibition days. United States Deputy Marshall C. Emory Pickren gained admission to Capone's walled Palm Island estate when he assured servants he did not want to arrest him.

8 MEN ASSIGNED TO INVESTIGATE GAMBLING GANG

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney, yesterday assigned eight men to the case of the People vs. John Doe. The case concerns the operation of slot machines and other gambling thruout the county by the Guzik-Nitti-Humphreys-Vogel gang. Records given the prosecutor by THE TRIBUNE were being used in an effort to identify persons who had anything to do with the racket.

Records of every gambling arrest made during the last year were being scanned for names. Gilbert's instructions from Courtney, he said, were to trace the machines as well as the cash. The individuals who turned the gang records over to THE TRIBUNE were questioned yesterday by Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney. Evidence on how the profits were split and of protection payments are to be presented to the November grand jury, which will be impaneled Monday.

Government records on taxes received during the last month from slot machine operators will be available, Gilbert learned. The internal revenue department announced that the $75 a year tax on slot machines now is due and that so far the tax has been paid on 1,000 machines in this territory. A government estimate was that 40,000 to 45,000 were in operation in the 26 counties comprising this federal district.

BREAKS RECORD TO WIN ILLINOIS HUSKING CROWN

loyd Wise, La Salle, Tops Field with 50.96 Bu.

Tonica, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP).—Floyd Wise of La Salle county won the 18th annual Illinois state corn husking championship today with a record breaking score of 50.96 bushels.

Splashing and splattering his way ahead of 15 other strong armed huskers, Wise managed to beat by 5.53 bushels the record of 45.43 bushels established last year by Ecus Vaughn.

He won the championship under some of the most adverse conditions in the history of the contest. Theodore Schafer's fine corn field was covered with an adhesive layer of mud. Wise and his competitors had to struggle thru it for 80 minutes, handicapped by puddles and a stubborn rain.

One favorable factor was that the corn was of hybrid variety, with a high yield.

The inclement weather kept the crowd down to some 5,000 persons. The contest was sponsored by the Prairie Farmer.

Woodford Man Second.

Second place was captured by Leland Klein of Woodford county, who turned in 47.92 bushels of the yellow ears.

He and Wise will represent Illinois in the national contest to be run off on the same farm here Monday. Champions and runners-up of eleven states will compete. More than 100,000 are expected to witness the contest if the weather is favorable.

Wise's extraordinary husking was better than any ever done in a county, state, or national contest, officials of the tournament said.

Despite the heavy going, the first five men competing today broke the state record set last year.

Defending Champion Third.

Other results:

Ecus Vaughn, defending champion, Piatt county, 47.232 bushels; Leonard Thompson, Shelby, 45.86; Earl Noard, Stark, 45.56; Albert Ehnle, Peoria, 44.92; Glenn Wall, Bureau, 44.74; Clarence Endruss, Marshall-Putnam, 44.35; Wilbur Challand, De Kalb, 44.06; Maxnard Bruns, Ogle, 44.04; Dale Goble, Clark, 43.54; Fred Van Huizen, Carroll, 43.52; Edgar Vermillion, Douglas, 43.42; Ed Olson, Kendall, 41.73; Leaman White, Piatt, 38.71, and George Bower, Stephenson, 33.90.

ARMY WILL GIVE SHOW TODAY IF WEATHER'S GOOD

Rain yesterday forced cancelation of the first two performances of Fort Sheridan's mammoth military exhibition. If weather permits the show will go on at 2 and 8 p. m. today at the fort with 4,500 soldiers participating.

There will be anti-aircraft firing on the lake front—accompanied at the shows by searchlight drills—flying exhibitions by Lieut. A. S. [Speed] Chandler of the air corps reserve, and special infantry drills.

In addition much modern warfare equipment will be on display for the thousands of visitors. Adults will be charged 50 cents. Children under 12 will go in free. Proceeds will go to the Army Relief society.

Willow Springs Police Raid Handbook; Seize 7 Men

The Willow Springs county highway police yesterday raided a handbook at 9858 South Artesian avenue, in Worth township. Seven men, including James Brittigan, the keeper, who gave his address as 9852 South Bell avenue, in the township, were arrested. They will appear in Police court Thursday.

FLEE WITH $2,000 FROM LOOP CAFE, BUT DROP $1,800

Three armed men last night held up and robbed three employés of Stouffer's restaurant, 32 East Randolph street, of $2,000, but dropped all except $200 when they were fired on as they fled by Traffic Patrolman Bernard Logsdon.

Lorena Shanklin.

The bandits returned the fire as they escaped east in Benton place. At Randolph street and Michigan avenue, two of the robbers commandeered the taxicab of Arthur Carlson, 241 West 60th street, but it crashed against an elevated pillar at Balbo avenue and State street. All escaped.

The masked man had forced Miss Lorena Shanklin, 23 years old, 162 East Ontario street, a cashier, and Nick Kresko, 41, of 1429 North Clark street, into an inner office of the restaurant. There they found the night manager, Eugene Woolf, 8148 Ingleside avenue, and forced him to open the company safe, from which they took the money.

THOUSANDS FLEE FROM OKLAHOMA FLOOD; FOUR DIE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 31 [Special].—Four persons were dead and four were missing in flooded eastern Oklahoma tonight as falling temperatures threatened further hardships for thousands driven from their homes by high water. One of the dead and those missing were in an automobile that plunged thru a bridge.

Rescue workers raced in many communities to save persons marooned in trees and on high ground. The town of Pauls Valley, hard hit by a flood last summer, was under four feet of water.

In Kansas, where floods have raged more than a week, rain turned to snow. Many streams were full or flooding in Missouri, which has had one of the wettest Octobers in its history.

9 PLEAD INNOCENT IN SEVEN MILLION TIMBER SWINDLE

Nine men associated with Resources Corporation International pleaded not guilty yesterday to an indictment charging that they swindled investors of $7,350,000 thru the sale of stock in a Mexican timber venture. Pleas were entered before Judge Michael L. Igoe in federal District court. He set Dec. 1 for the trial.

Requests for separate trials by three of the defendants, George E. Howard, Bruce L. Hoover, and Attorney Leonard L. Cowan, were denied.

TAKE 21 BLAST VICTIMS FROM MINE; HUNT 6

Fear Others Dead Deep in Alberta Colliery.

NORDEGG, Alberta, Oct. 31 (AP).—The bodies of 21 miners were removed tonight from the Brazeau collieries and six others were missing after an explosion deep in the mine two miles from here in the foothills of the Rocky mountains.

Arrow locates scene of mine disaster.

The mid-morning blast caused such confusion in this little town 150 miles southwest of Edmonton that mine officials at first could not say exactly how many had been trapped, but tonight the correct number was placed at 27.

J. Shanks, general superintendent, said the other six men trapped probably were dead.

Foul Air Hampers Rescuers.

The unexplained blast caused only minor caveins but left the No. 3 section filled with foul air that hampered rescue work. It was in this section that the bodies were found. Shanks said there was no fire.

The men were working about three-quarters of a mile from the mine mouth. Normally 200 men are employed on a 24 hour schedule but only about 27 were in the affected No. 3 section.

189 Killed in 1914.

Alberta's greatest coal mining disaster occurred in 1914 at Hillcrest, in Crow's Nest pass, when 189 miners were killed in an explosion.

More recently were the blasts at Coalhurst, near Lethbridge, in December, 1935, when 15 were killed and at Hinton, 165 miles west of Edmonton, in March, 1938, when five died.

Pickpocket Gets $3,000 as Victim, 73, Leaves Bank

Abraham W. Delson, 73 years old, 854 North Hamlin avenue, drew his savings of $3,000 from the City National Bank and Trust company yesterday. As he walked out the Wells street entrance, he stopped to button his coat. A thief thrust his hand into Delson's pocket and escaped with the money.

TEST REACTIONS OF NAVY FLYERS IN AIR CHAMBER

Fourteen cadets, members of Chicago's Own squadron at Glenview naval reserve aviation base, were given tests yesterday at Northwestern university medical school to determine their reaction to air pressure at various flying altitudes. The tests were made in an iron cylinder, 10 feet long and 6 feet wide.

Each cadet entered the chamber and air was pumped out until conditions at 15,000 feet were simulated. Air then was pumped in to approximate a descent of 2,000 feet a minute. The cadets reported it was "stuffy up there" and that they were breathing hard at the 15,000 foot point. They breathed easier, however, as the simulated altitudes were decreased.

Twenty-three other cadets will take the tests in the next few days.

CHICK'S TAVERN GETS ALLMAN'S LAST WORD: NO!

A month ago, friends of Charles [Chick] Hadesman, west side man about town, gave a testimonial dinner for him in the Midwest Athletic club. Like most testimonial dinners this one was to raise money because Hadesman wanted to go into the tavern business, and was short of funds.

Police Commissioner James P. Allman revealed yesterday, however, that Hadesman not only has failed to open a tavern, but that he will not be allowed to open one.

"West side police captains have been instructed to watch every license application carefully to be sure no person applying for a tavern license has any connection with Hadesman," said Allman. He cited the law which prohibits persons with police records from obtaining a tavern license. Hadesman has a police record.

ARMY PURCHASES SOCKS FOR HALF U. S. POPULATION

Other Items for 10 Times Enlisted Personnel.

[This is the second in a series of articles revealing huge purchases by the army of clothing and other equipment.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—Army purchases of socks, underwear, shoes, bedding, and other items of personal comfort for the soldier, are reaching astronomical proportions.

Examination of official war department releases of purchases and orders from Sept. 1, 1940, to Oct. 23, 1941, indicates that the Roosevelt administration is planning to create an army of approximately 10 million men.

Bewildering as most army purchases are, because of the immensity, are those for socks. The army has purchased enough socks to provide a pair for more than half the men, women, and children in the nation.

The war department has purchased 45,000,000 pairs of wool socks, 32,750,000 pairs of cotton socks, and 57,626 pairs of arctic wool socks at a total cost of more than $15,000,000.

The 77,807,626 pairs of socks are enough to provide each of the 1,500,000 enlisted men in the army with more than 50 pairs of socks.

10 Times Needed Footwear.

The war department has purchased more than 16,000,000 pairs of shoes and other footgear at a cost of almost $55,000,000 to put the socks into. Footwear purchases include 14,190,000 pairs of service shoes, 400,000 pairs of leather boots, 230,000 pairs of rubber boots, 1,450,000 pairs of arctics, 6,992 pairs of ski boots, and an assortment of winter flying shoes, felt boots, and overshoes.

Sufficient footgear is on hand to provide each soldier with 10 changes of footwear.

The war department has purchased almost 32,000,000 pairs of cotton drawers and 10,000,000 pairs of woolen drawers. Purchases of 20,000,000 cotton undershirts and 10,000,000 winter undershirts do not match the drawer purchases, but no reason was given for the discrepancy. These total purchases, costing about $37,000,000, would provide every enlisted man in the army today with about 50 items of underwear.

Also ordered from Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. of Chicago was 10,678 fancy union suits at $6.42 each.

Prepare for Wounded Men.

That the army is being prepared to expect casualties is indicated in an item for $3,042,534 worth of bath robes, pajama suits, and convalescent suits.

The war department has purchased 10,000,000 blankets at a cost of about $60,000,000; comforters, 1,200,000, at approximately $4,500,000; sheets, 12,000,000, at $10,500,000; pillows, 2,250,000, at $1,712,000, and 5,250,000 pillow cases at $1,234,000.

For use in conjunction with these items, the sum of $22,617,317 has been spent on steel and canvas cots, beds and bedsteads, mattresses and mattress covers—enough to provide about 4 million beds.

Headgear purchases totalling more than $6,800,000 call for about 20 million items. Included are 7,750,000 field caps, 2 million field hats and about 2 million twill hats, as well as less expensive service caps.

Gloves by the Millions.

Glove purchases were made in large numbers. The war department has purchased or ordered 6 million pairs of leather gloves, 5 million pairs of wool gloves, 200,000 pairs of horse hide gloves, 230,000 pairs of cotton gloves and a miscellaneous assortment of fur mittens, winter flying gloves and mocha leather gloves.

THE TRIBUNE survey also disclosed that huge sums are being expended to transform purchases of almost 600 million yards of cloth at a cost of 362 million dollars into various items wearing apparel and equipment. These cloth purchases were detailed in the first story of this series.

The army spent about 11½ million dollars to make more than 3 million work suits, 2 million work coats, 4 million pairs of work trousers, and 400,000 herringbone twill work suits.

BROOKS AVERTS STAMPEDE OVER JAMES SINKING

Blocks Immediate Vote on Neutrality.

are attending the great dinners in Washington, to know that out there in foreign waters and over there on foreign land the numbers will constantly increase of the American men who will die, of the American men who will lose their minds, or men who will move thru life with their eyes gone, with their arms gone, with their legs gone, crippled and maimed in another foreign war.

"O, congress will be kind to them then! No doubt you will appropriate money for their hospitals but you won't be their friend. Only death will be their friend—death will be their smiling friend!"

Commander a Texan.

Both Connally and O'Daniel had mentioned that the commander of the destroyer was a Texan. Before beginning his formal speech, Brooks noted that Illinois headed the list of common seamen who lost their lives on the U. S. S. Kearny.

"It is little comfort to us that we were mentioned first as having contributed to the first group of men to lose their lives in this undeclared war in which we find ourselves," he remarked.

"While we rise to mention the officers, I wish to take this moment to pay my tribute to the seamen who lost their lives and call a halt to this thing by telling those in authority in our government, 'Stop in your tracks or ask the people of America to declare war so that we can all go in at the same time, with both hands, fighting.'"

Final Decision, Says Brooks.

Brooks told the senate that by its vote on the pending resolution, it would be making its final decision as to whether or not the United States should sail full speed ahead, shooting its way into active fighting participation in the second World war.

"The President and his cabinet have been at war for some time," he noted, "but the congress has not been at war. The President has designated the enemy and proclaimed his defeat and destruction. He has announced that the shooting has started. And he now asks that we repeal every legal barrier that would prevent the use of our merchant ships, armed for battle, being sent into the belligerent waters of the warring nations of the world, carrying the contraband of war.

"This is the last step to be taken. You can't shoot your way a little bit into war any more than you can go a little bit over Niagara falls. By approving this resolution, congress goes overboard and joins the President and his cabinet in war. Then America is at war. Consequently, I am opposed to the passage of this resolution.

Wants Fair Proposal.

"When we go to war, if ever, we must have a completely united nation behind our effort and it is my sincere belief that the majority of the people of this country do not wish to go any farther into the war. The people have clung with tenacious faith to the pronouncements of party platform pledges and Presidential promises that they would not be taken into foreign wars.

"If the time has arrived to enter this war, it should be fairly presented in the form of a declaration of war, a declaration for the destruction of Hitler and Nazism, and when that passes congress by a majority vote, if it does, then repeal all restrictions and call upon a united people to join hands in a united cause, fairly and honestly declared to be all-out war."

Brooks went into detail in discussing the pro and con arguments for arming merchant ships. He noted that the record of the last war proved that altho many armed merchant ships were sunk, no armed merchant ship was credited with sinking or destroying any enemy submarine or craft. Another significant fact, he said, was that Adm. Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, testified before the foreign relations committee that it was not a request on the part of the navy that legislation permitting the arming of ships was initiated.

Urges Giving Ships to Britain.

Instead of arming American ships, Brooks asked, why should not the ships be given to Britain?

"Give the guns to Britain," he proposed, "put the guns on the ships for Britain, and let them take them on their course under the British flag and manned by British seamen. The President has the power today to transfer these ships to the British flag and they can with their own men carry these goods without involving us in a shooting war.

"The British empire, which with 500 million subjects has stood astride of the world, has more seamen, trained and skilled than any other nation in the world and, altho she has lost many ships, the loss of her ships has been greater than the loss of her crews.

"Why should she not assign these crews now to pilot these ships, ships given to them by the generosity of the American people, filled with food and munitions of war for them to use in their own defense? All this, from the generosity of the American people, a generosity that will take the toll from the sweat and the toil of our people for a century."

Not freedom of the seas but control of the seas is the issue in the battle of the Atlantic, Brooks declared.

Originally, he recalled, the administration had announced it would present only the one step, that of arming ships, and the legislation passed the house in that form. But in the senate, the administration "had the votes," as Sen. Connally said, Brooks remarked.

"May I remind you," he continued, "that Hitler had the votes too when he still had a legislative branch of his government and he used those votes to centralize the power in his own hands, adjourned the legislative branch for seven years, and then plunged his nation into war.

Reminded of Promises.

"May I remind you that you got those votes by promising the American people that you would keep them out of war? You had the votes on election day to elect an administration for a third term but on the pledge that the neutrality law was a success and the chief executive would keep this country out of war.

"Why don't you tell the people at long last that you have the votes, but you are going to use them to put this country into war?"

"We have determined to help England short of war. We have appropriated 13 billions of America's money to be translated into defense materials to aid her; and while England is the best nation in the world with whom we can deal, England is a mighty hard trader. She is all-out for England; she is all-out for the British empire.

"If before we enter this war we have not made an ironclad arrangement with her she will take what she wishes. She will take all the trade routes and all the raw materials in the world and she will set up an international financial structure to suit herself and nobody else.

Reminds Senate of Last War.

"While I was willing to vote huge sums of money to be translated into defense articles for Britain I was conscious of the fact that after the last war they indicated and showed little or no appreciation for the tremendous effort we had made by her side. Already the propaganda has started that we are not aiding England; that it is not a question of aid to England; that it is for us that we have appropriated this money."

An American expeditionary force, Brooks said, was as sure to follow the navy's shooting participation as darkness follows the day.

"When you vote for the passage of this resolution you are starting the machinery finally in motion for all-out participation in Europe's war," he declared. "You ask what would I do? I would give the British the ships, the guns, and the materials and say to them: 'Out of the 500 million people that live under the British flag send a few men to pilot these ships with the stores of great supplies that come out of the generosity of America's heart.'"

Predicts Millions in AEF.

Sen Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] predicted that enactment of the legislation would result eventually in the sending of from 4 to 8 million American soldiers to Europe, Asia, and Africa.

"It commits the United States to preserve the British empire from now on," he declared. "To police the continent of Europe; to underwrite the British domination of India and other overseas possessions; to police the world. Secretary Knox has frankly envisioned the United States and England jointly policing the world for at least 100 years after this war is over.

"Carrying the four freedoms to western Europe, Russia, the orient, Japan, China, India, Turkey, and the Balkans—that has a noble sound. But I very much fear that in our attempt to carry the four freedoms to the rest of the world, we may only succeed in turning the four horsemen loose in our own America."

Sen. George D. Aiken [R., Vt.], told the senate that if men died in the sinking of the Reuben James, they died in the carrying out of orders given by President Roosevelt as commander in chief of the navy and the President was personally responsible for their deaths.

"When the lend-lease bill was enacted into law," he said, "we were assured that it would not permit convoying—we were told time and again that convoys were not contemplated, and that our ships would not be used for this purpose. Yet our ships have been engaged in convoying and have been ordered by the President to hunt down and sink ships of another nation with which we are not legally at war. These orders were given without the knowledge or consent of congress.

"Had the President and members of his cabinet kept their promises, the men of the United States navy would not lie rotting on the ocean floor today. It is time to place the responsibility for these deaths squarely where it belongs. It is time to stop making apologies for those who do not deserve them."

Sinking Recalls Historic Exploit

Painting by Alonzo Chappell illustrating bravery of Seaman Reuben James (arm in sling) who interposed his body to take the blow of the scimitar of a Barbary coast pirate which was intended for James' fallen commander, Capt. Stephen Decatur Jr. The American destroyer which was sunk yesterday west of Iceland was named in commemoration of Seaman James' heroism. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Recovers from Wound

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 [Special]. — Sinking of the destroyer Reuben James brought the disclosure today that the ship was named more than 20 years ago for an early American seaman of that name.

During an attack on Tripoli by American warships in 1804, Capt. Stephen Decatur Jr., commander of a gunboat division, was knocked down by a Tripolitan warrior. As a scimitar was raised to deliver the fatal blow, one of Decatur's men interposed his own body and received the blow but was not killed.

According to an account in navy department records, the hero was Reuben James, a lusty fighter in the bloody war against the Barbary Coast pirates and later in the war of 1812. He was said to have recovered from his wound, to have followed Decatur on other ships and to have given a life long devotion to Decatur and his family.

However, an explanatory note on a painting of the Tripoli incident which hangs in the navy department says Decatur's life was saved either by Reuben James or a seaman named Daniel Frazier. Because of this discovery, apparently made in recent months, it has been decided to name for Frazier a destroyer on which construction was started last July.

LAWYERS AMONG THE MISSING AT BAILIFFS' FROLIC

Bailiffs of the Municipal court last night held their 25th annual frolic in the Hotel Sherman and, according to the Randolph street grapevine, the more than 1,000 guests had a fine time. But there didn't seem to be any lawyers present.

This was odd, the grapevine whispered, because teams of bailiffs had scoured the loop prior to the affair selling tickets at 55 cents each to lawyers, who frequently ask favors of the court attaches.

Chief Bailiff Albert J. Horan, brushed aside the suggestion that his bailiffs used anything but salesmanship to sell 4,000 tickets. The funds go to the Bailiffs Benevolent association.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 31.—An expert from the Rockefeller Foundation's international health division is expected to arrive here Monday to help local authorities fight an outbreak of dengue fever, a mosquito borne disease, it was disclosed today. Several hundred cases of fever have been reported, largely among workers on the United States defense bases.

STANDARD OIL GIVES $27,000 TO FUND AS FIRMS' PLEDGES GAIN

A contribution of $27,500 from the Standard Oil company of Indiana to the 1941 Community Fund campaign was announced yesterday by Bryan S. Reid, chairman of the sponsors division. This sends the total toward the two-thirds mark in the drive for $3,583,000 to be distributed among Chicago's major charities and social agencies.

Other substantial gifts were $2,000 from the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc.; $1,750 each from the Silberman Fur corporation and S. Silberman & Sons; $1,500 from the Chicago Mail Order company; $1,000 each from the Chicago Autographic Register company, the Benjamin Electric Manufacturing company, Dearborn Chemical company, United States Brewing company, Illinois Tool works; $750 each from Steele-Wedeles company and Pickands, Mather & Co., and $600 each from Midwest Forging and Manufacturing company, Cardwell Westinghouse company, Cribben & Sexton Co., and Hickman Williams & Co.

These contributions are aside from the pledges to be made by employes of these companies.

FIND POLL LISTS PADDED; LAUNCH VOTE FRAUD QUIZ

The board of election commissioners yesterday began a recanvass of the registered voters of the 52d precinct of the 27th ward after an investigation showed that 78 persons whose names appeared on the precinct polling list as residents of the McCoy hotel, 949 Madison street, could not be found in the hotel.

Evidence of the discrepancy was turned over to the board by Ben Black, state lodging house superintendent, after a comparison of the polling list with the hotel manager's affidavit of residents filed with Black.

John Cashen, attorney for the election board, said the padding of the polling list resulted from an error of an inexperienced precinct canvasser. He denied there was any fraud. Cashen said the recanvass would be completed today.

TAXLESS TOWN'S COLLECTOR GOES BACK TO FARM

Canterbury, Conn., Oct. 31 (AP).—Collector Christian Kerr can be found in his henhouse by any one delinquent in his taxless town who wants to pay up back taxes.

The town, deciding it had enough money in the treasury, has voted to do without taxes for the 1941-'42 fiscal year, but the 63 year old Kerr, whose salary is 1 per cent of the money he collects, has nothing to do.

His system has been to notify the township's 1,000 residents on what days he would be at certain general stores in the area to make collections, but because of the tax holiday he won't make the circuit this year. To those who want to get their arrears settled the collector will be at home, tending his chickens.

PRESIDENT CALM OVER SINKING OF U. S. DESTROYER

"The commanding officer is Lieut. Comm. H. L. Edwards, U. S. N.

"No further details are available at this time, but will be released when received."

The 21 year old Reuben James is the third American destroyer to be involved in Atlantic skirmishes since convoying was inaugurated. On Sept. 4 the U. S. S. Greer was engaged in a search for a submarine and was fired on. On the night of Oct. 16-17 the U. S. S. Kearny was torpedoed and later made port under its own power. There was a loss of 11 men in this encounter.

Eleven American merchant ships, including those flying the flags of other nations, have been sunk.

Commissioned in 1920.

In a second announcement issued a few moments after the first, the navy said the Reuben James was one of the old flush deck type destroyers built at the end of the World war and was commissioned Sept. 24, 1920. She was 314 feet long with a beam of 30 feet. She displaced 1,190 tons. Her armament was four 4-inch naval rifles and a battery of anti-aircraft guns.

Others of her type had been retired and were among the 50 transferred to Great Britain a year ago last month in exchange for bases along the Atlantic coast.

The Reuben James was grounded on Nov. 30, 1939, while on "neutrality patrol" near Lobos Cay light off Cuba. Other vessels stood by while the destroyer was pulled free.

NAZIS REPORT 9 RAF AIR RAIDERS ARE SHOT DOWN

BERLIN, Nov. 1 [Saturday] (AP).—The RAF attacked several places in north and northwestern Germany over night with explosive and incendiary bombs, but nine of the raiders were shot down, authorized German sources announced today. They asserted that no military or war economic damage was done.

Six British freighters totaling 27,000 tons, a British destroyer, and two other escort vessels were sunk by U-boats in the last few days, the high command announced. A British torpedo boat also was reported heavily damaged by torpedoes, and a merchant ship of 2,000 tons sunk in the Atlantic northwest of Cadiz, Spain.

Nazis Raid England.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Bad weather grounded royal air force bombers during the night. There were scattered, small scale German attacks on England—in East Anglia and west and southwest England—but damage was minimized and the only casualties were a small number of persons injured.

(Informed Germans said in Berlin that Great Yarmouth was among night targets, and armed scouts flew yesterday as far north as the Faeroe Islands.)

Skipper's Wife Not Told That Destroyer Is Sunk

Newport, R. I., Oct. 31 (AP).—News of the sinking of the United States destroyer Reuben James was withheld today from Mrs. Almeda Edwards, wife of Lieut. Comm. H. L. Edwards, the skipper of the torpedoed vessel. Mrs. Edwards was at the bedside of her mother, who was seriously ill, and navy friends decided to keep word of the sinking from her as long as possible, or until it was known whether her husband had been saved. The Edwards moved to Newport last spring.

SKETCHES OF SEVEN OFFICERS ON DUTY ON LOST DESTROYER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Following are thumbnail sketches of the seven officers who were aboard the torpedoed destroyer Reuben James and whose fate remains uncertain:

Lieut. Comm. Heywood L. Edwards, 35, commanding officer, born in San Saba, Tex.; graduated from Naval academy 1926; with Olympic squad at Naval academy; on academy's wrestling, boxing, and football teams.

Lieut. Benjamin Ghetzler, 34, born Brooklyn, N. Y.; attended high school in San Antonio, Tex.; appointed to Naval academy 1927, graduated in 1931.

Lieut. Dewey G. Johnston, 31, born New Castle, Okla.; attended high school in Amber, Okla.; appointed to Annapolis 1929; member of academy track team; saw service on the cruiser Chicago; attended United States Naval Finance and Supply school, Philadelphia.

Lieut. John J. Daub, 30, born Saltsburg, Pa.; attended Kiskiminetas Springs school; appointed to academy 1932; for three years member of Annapolis water polo team; postgraduate training in cruiser anti-aircraft and broadside gunnery school.

Lieut. James M. Belden, 30, born Syracuse, N. Y.; attended Hackley school; appointed to Naval academy 1932, but left in 1934 to spend several months in the merchant marine as a cadet on the steamship American Merchant.

Ensign Craig Spowers, 24, born Newark, N. J.; attended Columbia High school and Cochran-Bryan preparatory school; graduated from Naval academy Feb. 7, 1941.

Ensign Howard V. Wade, born Albany, N. Y; enlisted in Naval reserves in September, 1940; commissioned ensign in March, 1941, after attending Naval reserve midshipmen's school at Northwestern university, Chicago.

GERMANS WAGING WAR UPON U. S., BRITISH ASSERT

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Commenting on the sinking last night of the United States destroyer Reuben James off Iceland, an authoritative British spokesman expressed the opinion here this afternoon that the Germans have launched a deliberate campaign of indiscriminate U-boat and air attacks against American shipping.

There has been a noticeable increase in U-boat operations since the start of the Russian campaign, this high source continued, and the submarine attacks on United States vessels west of Iceland can be expected to grow heavier in the future. This, he said, is the natural result of the German shipbuilding program and no indication of any reduction in allied efforts or successes in the battle of the Atlantic.

Tells of Building Program.

Germany recently has concentrated on making submarines of 500 to 800 tons with a range of 8,000 to 10,000 miles at "economical speed." Such craft could operate easily west of Iceland.

The spokesman said that intensive British air reconnaissance between Britain and Iceland had driven the U-boats farther west, making the area west of Iceland their natural field of operations.

"However, this menace can be met," he added, "by increasing air reconnaissance on the other side of the Atlantic and naturally from Iceland itself."

May Operate Off Greenland.

It is possible that German submarine supply ships are operating in waters as remote as Baffin bay, which lies off the west coast of Greenland in the western hemisphere, he said. In recent weeks, U-boats have been seen in the White sea, presumably operating out of the Petsamo [Finland] base or from supply ships along the Norwegian coast, it was stated.

Continuing success of the new British catapault technique for launching land planes in midocean to fight German longrange bombers and an improvement in the anti-aircraft equipment of merchant vessels were noted by the same authority.

As for the ability of the Nazis to keep up the quality of their U-boat crews as the present mass production goes on, this spokesman was skeptical. "You get more prisoners when you kill [sink] a U-boat these days than a year ago," he said, inferring that first class trained men for this dangerous and highly technical work are becoming scarce.

"No Wonder," Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (AP).—If the United States destroyer Reuben James was participating in a convoy "it was no wonder that she was torpedoed," an authorized source said tonight.

"A convoy is an English affair and whoever participates in it becomes part of an English formation," it was declared.

"I am certainly glad it was not our U-boat that was sunk but rather the American destroyer that was torpedoed," the spokesman added. "American destroyers have no business entering the war zone."

CHICAGO SAILOR AMONG CREW ON SUNKEN WARSHIP

Harold James Orange of 3407 Walnut street, was a seaman aboard the destroyer Reuben James when it was sunk by a torpedo, his father, Clarence Orange, said last night. The Chicago sailor is 18 years old. He was within one semester of graduation from Crane Technical High school when he joined the navy at the Great Lakes Naval Training school on Feb. 21.

Harold J. Orange.

Orange's father, an employé of the new munitions plant at Wilmington, said that the young man left Chicago on June 1, and was assigned to the Reuben James about June 20.

The sailor wrote in his last letter that he had made three or four trips on the Reuben James, but that he expected to be home for a visit about Jan. 1.

NO FOREIGN WAR

President Roosevelt in an address on Sept. 11, 1940, said:

"I hate war now more than ever. I have one supreme determination—to do all I can to keep war away from these shores for all time. I stand with my party, upon the platform adopted in Chicago:

"'We will not participate in foreign wars, and we will not send our army, naval, or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas, except in case of attack.'"

PRO-NAZI SUSPECT AGREES TO HEED CALL FROM DIES

Homer Maertz yesterday assured investigators for the Dies committee on un-American activities that he would appear at any time before the committee in Washington. Maertz, who was once arrested for alleged anti-Semitic activities, appeared in the local committee offices to reclaim personal belongings from a mass of printed material seized Thursday in a raid on his rooms at 1160 North Dearborn street. Investigators said they seized anti-Semitic and pro-Fascist literature. Maertz denied that he was engaged in any un-American activities.

MANUFACTURER STRICKEN FATALLY.

Otto Paque, 50 years old, president of a uniform manufacturing concern at 509 South Wabash avenue, died yesterday in his home at 3223 North Halsted street, apparently of a heart attack. He was found by his sister, Elizabeth.

ONE U. S. WARSHIP SUNK BY TORPEDO DURING LAST WAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Only four United States warships were sunk in the far flung operations of the American fleet in its period of participation in the World war. Navy records show that only one of those combat vessels was sunk by torpedo. This was the destroyer Jacob Jones, sunk by a U-boat near the Scillies Islands, off southwestern England, on Dec. 6, 1917. Two officers and 62 men lost their lives.

Other naval vessels were sunk by torpedo action, but these did not fall in the class of combat craft—a class which takes in only battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines, and destroyers. The others were converted yachts, trawlers, a gun boat and the collier Cyclops.

These sinkings and casualties among naval gun crews aboard armed merchantmen brought the number of United States naval personnel lost in the World war to 1,029—79 officers and 950 men.

Warships sunk by other than submarine action were:

Destroyer Chauncey, sunk in a collision off Gibraltar on Nov. 19, 1917, with the loss of 3 officers and 19 men.

Cruiser San Diego, sunk by a mine off Fire Island, N. Y., on July 19, 1918, with loss of 6 lives.

U. S. SHIPS HIT SUBS, OFFICERS IN NAVY BELIEVE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Naval men said tonight they were virtually certain that American warships have scored some hits on German U-boats since the navy got its shooting orders.

Among experienced officers, the belief was generally expressed that not all the highly destructive depth charges dropped by United States vessels on patrol and convoy duty could have gone wide of their targets.

They explained that it is not necessary to drop a depth bomb directly on or beside a submarine in order to injure it, or even to sink it. A depth bomb usually contains about 300 pounds of T. N. T., in a can 18 inches in diameter and 28 inches long. The violence of the explosion under water is so great that at a distance of 300 feet a submarine may be badly damaged if not wrecked.

Under the best conditions, however, it is agreed there is great difficulty in telling whether the powerful bombs hit their marks. Much of the fighting is at night. Even in the daytime, it is difficult to tell whether a hit has been registered.

DANIELS, F. D. R.'S FORMER CHIEF, QUITS AS ENVOY

U. S. Ambassador to Mexico for 8 Years.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of his one time "boss," Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy during the World war, as ambassador to Mexico.

Josephus Daniels.

The envoy, who is 79 years old, submitted his resignation at the White House last night. Daniels said the health of his wife would no longer permit him to serve at the post. He was appointed in 1933.

In expressing regret on receiving the resignation, Mr. Roosevelt said it will become effective as soon as Daniels has an opportunity to return to Mexico to make his farewells to Mexican officials with whom he had worked. Mr. Roosevelt said he was not ready to discuss the appointment of a successor.

"Franklin" and "Chief."

The letters exchanged on the resignation are the most unusual of their kind in New Deal history. Daniels addressed the President as "Franklin" and is the only official to have done so. The President addressed Daniels as "chief," instead of using his usual first name salutation. Both forms of address have been used by the two men in all intercourse from their days together when Roosevelt was Daniels' assistant in the navy department.

While the passing of Daniels occasioned genuine regret at the White House in marking the end of the President's oldest official association, the resignation was a matter for subdued rejoicing in the state department.

State department officials have made no secret of their belief Daniels has been an old man of the sea in Latin-American diplomacy. His tenure of office has been a sore spot almost from the outset.

Target of Criticism.

American Catholics have clamored for his removal because of his purported sympathy toward Mexican governmental curbs on religious schools. His ambassadorship had also drawn criticism from American commercial interests.

Daniels' reputation in American diplomatic circles as the one man who made diplomacy pay—he is reported to have tucked away $10,000 each year of his $17,500 salary and to have done little or no entertaining—is in keeping with the pattern of contradictions in his life.

He is a lawyer who never tried a case and a newspaper editor who made a career of public office holding and politics.

Office Holder 50 Years.

Daniels, a native of North Carolina, has held office under every Democratic President of the last 50 years. He was chief clerk of the Department of the Interior under Cleveland, secretary of the navy under Wilson, and ambassador to Mexico under Roosevelt. He was a member of the Democratic National committee from 1896 to 1916.

As secretary of the navy he is best remembered as the man who abolished liquor from the officers' mess aboard ship, a step which has full officer support to this day.

Daniels for years was owner and editor of the Raleigh [N. C.] News and Observer. His son, Jonathan Daniels, now is editor. The paper, published by the News and Observer Publishing company, presumably still is owned by Daniels, altho his son undoubtedly has an interest in the company. He began his newspaper career at the age of 18 with the editorship of the Wilson [N. C.] Advance.

ADMITS STEALING ANTI-FREEZE.

James McCullom, 22 years old, 2205 Kimball avenue, was arrested yesterday for stealing 15 cases of anti-freeze solution from a kitchen closet while the owner, Walter Moldenhauer, slept in an adjoining room. Albany Park police said McCullom admitted the theft.

CIO CONVENTION VOTES AGAINST PRO-WAR STAND

Radicals Are Defeated at Wisconsin Meeting.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 31.—Delegates to the CIO state convention late today voted down a prowar resolution proposed by radicals in the group. The action was considered an indication of the strength of the anti-administration faction in the labor body.

By a vote of 264 to 188, the convention went on record as opposed to pledging the state organization "to stand ready to take the fullest steps in collaboration with the allies."

The resolution had been attacked by conservatives in the convention as implying indorsement of a new American expeditionary force. It also was pointed out that many of those favoring such a pledge had opposed only a year ago the lend-lease bill and other forms of aid to Hitler's enemies.

Introduced by Chairman.

Nathan Garfield, Milwaukee delegate, chairman of the resolutions committee, introduced the resolution and was challenged at once from the floor to tell whether it meant sending American soldiers to fight in Europe.

"The resolution means just what it says," Garfield replied. "It says any aid necessary to defeat Hitler."

Paul Steffes, delegate from the Seaman Body company local recalled that a year ago the CIO here went on record against lend-lease aid. "Since congress is not ready to go so far as to suggest an expeditionary force, it is dangerous for a labor body to adopt a resolution of this sort," he asserted.

"The Russian army is doing our job whether we agree with the Russian philosophy or not," interposed Mel Sutker, Milwaukee.

Sees Threat to America.

"The defeat of Leningrad and Moscow means the defeat of Washington and other United States cities," said Emil Costello, international representative of the farm implement workers.

Harold Christoffel, leader of the 76 day strike of CIO automobile workers at the Allis-Chalmers plant here when it was crammed with defense contracts last spring, said: "I don't think it is proper to go on record for an expeditionary force, but it is just as improper to go on record against one. Unions take the position they are against strikes but whenever they find a strike necessary to lick the bosses, they strike.

"Congress will decide if an American expeditionary force is necessary. This is a World war. You can be just as dead on this side of the Atlantic as the other side."

Cites Russia's Record.

Steffes reëntered the debate with the question: "Who was it that helped to divide Poland?" It was Russia, he said, and continued: "Who was it who fought Finland? Russia. Whom has England used to fight its wars for the last many years? We ought to keep our feet on the ground here. We agreed to be the arsenal of democracy. Nothing more."

SENATE TO CONSIDER BILL RAISING ARMY PRIVATE'S PAY TO $42

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Legislation providing broad adjustments in pay for all persons in the armed services, at an estimated cost of $374,333,578 annually, was introduced today by a senate military affairs subcommittee.

Army, $272,810,230; navy, $82,110,045; marine corps, $11,779,023; coast guard, $7,122,365; coast and geodetic survey, $108,812; public health service, $403,103.

The committee recommended that the base pay for lowest ranking enlisted men, such as the army private, be raised to $42 a month, with elimination of the selective service act provision for an automatic $10 monthly increase after a year's service. Present army base pay is $21 monthly for the private.

Increases in subsistence pay for men and officers were proposed to meet living cost rises since the original pay acts of 1908 and 1922 were passed.

BANQUETS MARK HOMECOMING EVE IN ILLINI UNION

Dedicate New University Building Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—Illini union, the new $1,500,000 University of Illinois social center for students, faculty, and alumni, tonight was the scene of festivities attendant upon the 31st annual homecoming. The structure will not be formally dedicated until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, but ceremonies tonight were none the less spirited thruout the vast structure.

There were two large banquets running simultaneously in the union, a circumstance that tested the oratorical agility of President Arthur Cutts Willard of the university, Gov. Dwight H. Green, and others who were called upon to address the assembled homecomers and other guests at the two gatherings in widely separated sections of the building.

Most of the speeches had to do with the extensive purposes of the union. Dr. Willard emphasized the fact that one of the aims was to erect a building that would inspire those who use it with the best traditions of the early American way of life.

Others Speakers at Dinners.

Among others who spoke at the two dinners—one given by the alumni of the college of law and the other the dedication dinner—were Lieut. Gov. Hugh Cross, Illinois Supreme Court Justice W. T. Gunn, United States District Attorney J. A. Woll, Ben Wham, president of the Illinois State Bar association, and Douglas R. Mills, acting athletic director of the university. Robert F. Carr of Chicago, class of '93 presided at the dedication dinner, and Lieut. Gov. Cross at the law dinner.

The colonial style building, which was opened last Feb. 8, was inspected thruout the evening, many homecomers being back for the first time since the completion of the building on the Green street site of famous old University hall.

First Planned in 1909.

The new structure is the culmination of a dream which dates back to the members of the class of '09. Illinois being one of the last of the great state universities to erect a union, the sponsors have taken advantage of observation and study of buildings serving a similar purpose in other institutions. Facilities range from a bowling alley thru assembly, dining, and lounging halls to the "browsing room," an informal library.

Topping the four story building of American Georgian architecture is a cupola containing the old chapel bell and the class of '78 clock. There are other mementoes destined to bring nostalgia to the Illini homecomers.

The rain poured down all afternoon and thruout the evening. But Illinois grads didn't mind in their new union.

HANG 13 GREEKS FOR KILLING TWO NAZI SOLDIERS

Germans Brand French "Strike" Failure.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (AP).—Thirteen Greeks have been executed by hanging at Salonika following the slaying of two German soldiers, authorized Germans said today. They said they had not yet received any details about the case.

DNB, official German news agency, said four more Czechs were executed at Prague as saboteurs and incendiarists. Earlier it had declared that the execution of 190 Czechs since Sept. 27 had cracked "the kernel of unrest" in the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate [formerly Czecho-Slovakia].

French "Strike" Fizzles.

VICHY, France, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Frenchmen of Petain and the new order turned their backs today on Gen. Charles De Gaulle's ["Free French"] plea for a five minute standstill protest against the execution of French hostages by the Germans.

[A DNB dispatch from Paris to Berlin said the streets of that occupied capital presented their usual appearance at the appointed time and that no incidents had been reported by early evening.]

Associated Press correspondents saw only six persons observing the order here. They were five men and one woman who stood with sheepish looks on their faces in front of the Church of St. Louis in the heart of Vichy, watching a tower clock tick off the 5 minutes from 4 to 4:05 p. m. Passersby ignored them.

It was said that less than half the population knew of the radio appeal and the others were unable to comply without danger of arrest.

Shortly before the "strike" deadline Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German forces in France, announced the release of two French prisoners of war because relatives had supplied information to the German authorities regarding the slaying of German officers at Nantes and Bordeaux.

De Gaulle Leads Move.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the "Free French," and his staff stood silently in their headquarters for five minutes at 4 p. m. today.

A spokesman said some days would elapse before De Gaulle's reports thru secret channels fill in the picture of how German dominated Frenchmen responded.

De Gaullists, Britons and their allies observed the pause from Shanghai to French Canada, from Alexandria, Egypt, to Uruguay. The union jack and the tri-color were half-staffed. British warships at Alexandria dipped their colors and French warships interned there followed suit.

A Marriage of Convenience

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Scene from pageant given at the North Side Auditorium, 3730 North Clark street, last night, as "Josef Stalin" was married to the "Goddess of Liberty," played respectively by Edwin Dean and Annabelle Niemier.

MOCK WEDDING OF STALIN AND LIBERTY STAGED

Pageant Is Presented by Anti-War Group.

Before a high altar emblazoned with the dollar mark, the Goddess of Liberty stood with Josef Stalin last night during a mock marriage service watched by figures representing leading war advocates.

Margaret Russell.

It was the high moment of a pageant sponsored by a Lincoln park group to launch spectacular methods of educating the public against the threat of war. The pageant was written and directed by Margaret Russell, who last April 15 created a sensation by donning a death mask and rising in the visitors' gallery of the national house of representatives during the lend-lease debate to cry: "The victory will be mine!"

Organize "The White Army."

Last night's gathering at the North Side auditorium, 3730 North Clark street, also initiated "The White Army," a uniformed group for young women which Miss Russell is organizing to further the fight against entry into the war. Its purposes will be fourfold:

1. To create quickly a funnel of spectacular activity in the central west to foster antiwar sentiment.
2. To awaken the interest and engage the energies of young people not attracted by speech making.
3. To attract attention of the masses who ordinarily never set foot in political meetings.
4. To build up an esprit de corps among scattered anti-war groups that now are pulling against one another and to give each an opportunity to bring to the sympathetic attention of the others the special work it is doing.

Pageant to Be Repeated.

Miss Russell's White Army wears uniforms somewhat similar to those of the navy. Miss Russell last night wore a white uniform, with gold braid on the shoulders, and an officer cap. The pageant, which was presented before members of the Lincoln Park chapter and invited representatives of six other anti-war groups, will be repeated for the public in the future.

CURB ON BRITISH RADIO URGED TO CONSERVE FUEL

Government Probers Warn of Shortage.

BY GUY MURCHIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Curtailment of British Broadcasting corporation programs, including elimination of the 8 a. m. news broadcast and earlier closing of other programs, was recommended today by the government's select committee on national expenditure as an urgently necessary fuel saving measure.

In a report on the fuel shortage, the committee warns that unless there is greater economy in the use of coal, coke, and kerosene, the only alternative will be some form of rationing. Pruning of BBC broadcasts, it says, would provide "substantial and needed relief to the demands on the electric power stations."

Seek to "Educate" Public.

The committee also urges a nationwide campaign to educate the public in the necessity for fuel economy. It advocates that electricity for lighting, heating, and cooking should "be used sparingly between 8 a. m. and noon on Mondays to Saturdays."

The report cites one of the difficulties in organizing an effective economy campaign: "There is a reluctance on the part of the municipal and company-owned gas and electricity undertakings to spend money on the appeals, which, if effective, must result in a diminution of their income."

Release of Miners Urged.

The transfer of many mine workers to the fighting services or munitions factories, the committee declares, has created a serious coal problem. It suggests that "it may well be in the national interest to reconsider the release of skilled miners, either permanently or for the summer months only."

So far Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin and the war department have refused to release miners from the fighting forces.

DIES AFTER MOTORCYCLE CRASH.

9 KILLED IN PHILIPPINE CLASHES WITH MOROS; ARMY EVADER KILLS 2

MANILA, Philippine Islands, Oct. 31 (AP).—Nine men were killed and one wounded in two separate outbreaks of violence in Sula province today.

Constabulary soldiers killed six outlaws when the Moros attacked a constabulary post at Bilaan. Authorities believed the attack was made to avenge recent killings of relatives in fights with constabulary men. The soldiers suffered no casualties.

At Jolo, a Moro who had been ordered to report for military duty expressed his displeasure by running amuck in the streets and killed two men and wounded another before he was slain by a policeman.

King Cancels Armistice Day Rites at British Cenotaph

LONDON, Oct. 31.—King George VI. decided today to cancel the usual Nov. 11 Armistic day service at the Whitehall cenotaph. He feared the public might think the signals for two minutes of silence were an air raid alarm.

30 Britons Reported Killed Halting Imaginary Invaders

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Thirty British soldiers were killed in the realistic invasion exercises recently held in East Anglia, according to the Evening Standard. Most of the victims were dispatch riders. All lights were extinguished at nights during the maneuvers, and a majority of the casualties occurred when motorcyclists collided with tanks.

Japanese Withdraw Army from Captured Chengchow

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Japanese forces which captured Chengchow, important railway junction in Honan province, a month ago have been withdrawn, "having attained their military objective in that area," the Japanese North China command in Peking announced today.

MASKED ROBBERS TAKE $32.

Two men wearing full black masks and another with a red bandanna across the lower part of his face entered Fred Long's meat market at 85b East Pershing road last night and drew revolvers. From Long they took $17, and his helper, Abe Santosky, 5401 Drexel boulevard, handed over $15.

NAZIS CHASE RED ARMY IN DONETZ AREA AND CRIMEA

Planes Bomb Two Ports on Black Sea.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (AP). — Russian troops were reported to be retreating tonight in the Crimea and Donetz basin, hotly pursued by axis infantry and German dive bombers, but official quarters acknowledged stubborn Red resistance on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts.

The first big goal of the Germans apparently is the port of Sevastopol, 100 miles south of the Perekop isthmus where the Germans said Russian defenses cracked two days ago.

That port is an important pivotal point for the Russian Black sea fleet estimated to number one battleship, three cruisers, numerous destroyers, and more than 100 submarines. Its capture would anchor the German west flank for a stepping stone drive eastward toward the Caucasus.

Planes Sink Five Ships.

German planes ranged ahead to bomb an intermediate port at Yevpatoriya and Kerch in eastern Crimea, sinking five freighters totaling 13,000 tons, the high command said.

"In the Donetz basin, also, German and allied troops successfully continued the pursuit of the defeated enemy," the communique said without naming any sectors.

Two days ago the Germans said they were only 10 miles from Rostov, turning point for a southward thrust into the Caucasus.

"On the Leningrad encirclement front several break thru attempts of the enemy were repulsed," the official announcement said. "Heavy army batteries battered war vital objectives of Leningrad with visible effect."

Admit Reds are Active.

Other German quarters pointed out, however, that Leningrad was not actually encircled in the usual sense of the word. They acknowledged that "the bolsheviks are especially active in trying to protect that small strip of land between Leningrad and Lake Ladoga."

For eight days now the high command has not given the distances or sectors involved in the attempt to pierce Moscow's outer defense ring. At that time it said an armored spearhead had reached a position about 35 miles short of the soviet capital.

BARES CASUALTY TOLL OF BRITISH EMPIRE FORCES

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Army Minister Frances Forde today said that Britain and her dominions had lost 55,519 men in dead, wounded, prisoners, and missing in the campaigns of the middle east, Greece, Crete, Syria, and Ethiopia.

He said more than half, or 29,176, came from the United Kingdom [England, Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland] which so far in the war has had five times more troops engaged than the rest of the empire. These figures, Forde asserted, disproved German and Italian propaganda charges that the United Kingdom was not bearing its full share in the empire's war effort.

Forde said British army casualties in other theaters of war totaled 70,000, those of the navy 32,500, and the air force 8,500.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Foreign Minister Joachim. von Ribbentrop of Germany is urging the Swiss government to expel British and Russian citizens, the Daily Mirror said today. Twice in the last three weeks the Berne government has received a hint that Britons and Russians should be cleared out, the newspaper said. Developments, it added, "may be speedy," altho the Swiss government so far has refused to take action. The German argument, the Mirror said, is that Switzerland is surrounded by axis territory, and that, therefore, the presence of the British and Russians "endangers" axis plans.

CLAIM MOSCOW ASKS BRITAIN TO FIGHT NAZI ALLIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Authoritative sources here said today that Russia has asked Great Britain to declare war on Finland, Hungary and Rumania.

The soviet government is understood to have taken the position that it puts Russia at a political disadvantage to have these three countries still technically at peace with Britain when all three of them were at war with Russia, Britain's ally.

What policy Britain would pursue under the circumstances was not disclosed here, but it was understood that no British action would be taken without consultation with the United States.

Wines That Escaped Bomb Buy 5 Planes to Avenge 84

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Out of the ashes of the Café de Paris, where 84 persons were killed by a bomb last March, have come five new Spitfire planes for use against the Germans. They were paid for by a contribution to the Spitfire fund of $100,000 derived from the sale of wines which escaped damage in the cellar of the West End night spot.

FINNISH CAPITAL EATS BEEF; FIRST TIME IN A YEAR

Cattle Are Slaughtered in Fodder Shortage.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 31. —For the first time in 12 months beef has appeared for sale in Helsingfors. The shortage of fodder has caused many farmers to slaughter part of their dairy herds.

The milk ration for children has not been reduced, but the ration for adults has been cut in half to a deciliter [about 1-10th of a quart] a day.

During November inhabitants will be allowed 36 cents worth of meat. During the summer the ration was 24 cents, but meat was rarely obtainable and meat coupons were used for eggs.

In addition to their daily bread allowance of 266 grams [slightly more than half a pound, there being 454 grams in a pound] or 200 grams of hardtack, the Finns will be allowed to purchase 250 grams of coffee substitute, 50 grams of tea, and 2.2 pounds of sugar or syrup during November. They may also buy 25 grams of potato flour and 125 grams of soap, which must last them for two months.

Rations Cut to Minimum.

Finland's rations have been cut to the minimum at which a person can exist without starving.

The government is also grappling with the problem of feeding and clothing thousands of Russian prisoners. Helsingfors representatives have been sent to the Baltic states to attempt to purchase badly needed supplies.

There still are large reserves of foodstuffs in the Baltic countries, but there is no railroad rolling stock to transport the food to shipping points. There are only 50 locomotives in Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. All passenger traffic has ceased, and city residents are forbidden to go to the country to seek food.

Germans in the Baltic states also have been forbidden to send foodstuffs to Germany. Thus far surplus supplies have been used by the German army and forwarded to troops at the front.

More Food in Baltic States.

The rationing of the urban population of the Baltic states has been placed under a card system. The people are entitled to buy more food than is allowed in Helsingfors. Bread, butter, cheese, and vegetables are more plentiful there than in Finland. Lithuanian, Latvian, and Estonian cities have been without meat in the last two weeks because the supplies were forwarded to German forces in Russia.

Finnish relief organizations have been informed by the American Red Cross and other American relief societies that large quantities of supplies have been collected for Finland and are awaiting shipment in the United States. THE TRIBUNE was informed that Finnish organizations are willing to move supplies for the feeding of Russian prisoners if they could be forwarded here from the United States.

Thus far Britain, which controls American commerce and mail with Europe, has refused to permit Finland to receive the things donated to her and Finland is obliged to use her last reserves in caring for the Russians. This nation is suffering acutely under the British blockade.

41 BRITISH WORKERS KILLED AS FIRE GUTS A CLOTHING FACTORY

HUDDERSFIELD, Yorkshire, England, Oct. 31 (AP).—At least 41 persons, most of them girl workers, were killed today in a fire which burned swiftly thru a five story clothing factory. The workers were trapped on upper floors and died attempting to jump to safety. Many of them were buried when the roof and floors caved in. By tonight 41 bodies had been recovered and authorities feared still others might be buried.

HEAVY NEW WAR TAXES HIT NAZIS' TOBACCO, LIQUOR

Set High Levies to Cut Consumption.

BERLIN, Oct. 31 (AP).—The government tonight announced heavy increases in war taxes on tobacco, spirits and champagne and a spokesman declared that Germany's "financial situation couldn't be better." He said the main purpose of the higher taxes was to reduce consumption.

Fritz Reinhardt, secretary of state in the finance ministry, said the income tax this year would yield about 32,000,000,000 marks [about $12,800,000,000] and that other receipts and income from the occupied countries could raise the reich's income to some 45,000,000,000 marks [about $18,000,000,000].

Financial Power Increases.

"The war may last as long as it wants," Reinhardt told foreign correspondents. "Its financing by Germany is rendered secure. Germany's financial power is increasing monthly because the foundation, taxation, develops upward constantly."

The new tax increases are effective Monday and are expected to yield "several billion marks," Reinhardt said. The tobacco tax will rise from 20 per cent to 50 per cent; that on spirits from three marks a liter [1.76 pints] to four marks [$1.20 to $1.60] and that on champagne from one mark to three [40 cents to $1.20].

Reinhardt said consumption of cigarets had "increased alarmingly," from 33,600,000,000 in 1933 to 74,800,000,000 in 1940. New tax increases are expected to reduce civilian smoking while assuring a normal supply to the armed forces.

Japs Pay High Tobacco Tax.

TOKIO, Nov. 1 [Saturday].—Japan today began collecting new heavy war taxes on tobacco ranging from 60 to 100 per cent on cigars and 7 to 40 per cent on cigarets and prepared to introduce a gigantic tax increase bill when parliament reopens on Nov. 15. Widespread revision of official prices for various commodities is planned by the government.

Increased military expenditures was given as the cause of the stiff rise in direct and indirect taxes. The war spending, it was said, was necessitated by the determination of the cabinet to conduct blitz measures to bring the new order in Asia into reality soon and to prepare for the worst eventuality with America.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi today declared that "if Japan is no longer able to obtain oil from the United States or the Dutch East Indies by ordinary means, it will have to obtain it by extraordinary means, even if that should prove dangerous."

FIGHTING RAGES ON ENTIRE FRONT, RUSSIA DECLARES

Planes Disperse Two Nazi Infantry Regiments.

MOSCOW, Nov. 1 [Saturday] (AP).—Fighting up and down the entire front from Leningrad to the sea of Azov was reported by the soviet information bureau early today.

"During Oct. 31 our troops fought the enemy on all fronts," said the unusually brief communique.

Destroy 26 Tanks.

A supplementary announcement said the Red air force on Thursday dispersed and partially annihilated two German infantry regiments and a cavalry squadron in an unspecified sector. These attacks were declared to have destroyed 26 Nazi tanks, 225 trucks laden with supplies, 18 staff buses, and 14 guns.

In one sector before Leningrad soviet artillery was said to have killed and wounded more than 200 men in a surprise bombardment of two German battalions on a highway.

Drive on Moscow Dwindles.

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP).—Soviet dispatches tonight reported that Adolf Hitler's supreme offensive on Moscow had fallen off today—the 30th day of the grand campaign which he said was to bring a great decision at the Russian center—to mere local attacks in all sectors except one.

In this single region of present active menace—that limited on its northern extremity by Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, and extending to the south somewhere about Volokolamsk, which is 65 miles southwest of the capital—the Nazis were declared to be beating tirelessly at the Red line with infantry and tank charges.

Russians Counterattack.

But even there, said Tass, the official soviet news agency, the advance was checked by heavy and repeated Russian counterattacks.

In other sectors, and especially to the west and southwest of the capital, the Red armies were said not only to be holding their positions but in some sectors to have extended them.

This encouraging picture was spoiled somewhat by the serious situation developing at Tula, rail junction and munitions city 100 miles south of Moscow, where British dispatches said a state of siege had been declared.

Soviet silence suggested that matters were going badly for the defenders in the south and more especially in the Crimea. There the Germans claimed they were still advancing in pursuit of retreating Red forces.

HELD TO JURY IN CAR DEATH.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 31 [Special].—A coroner's jury last night held Frank W. Gabbert, 49 years old, of Rock Island, to the grand jury after an automobile collision in which Raymond Jones of Stearns, Ky., a hitch-hiker in Gabbert's car, was killed.

QUOTING ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Curbing Ambition.

Is it unreasonable, then, to expect that some man possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to its utmost stretch, will at some time spring up among us? And when such an one does, it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the government and laws, and generally intelligent, to successfully frustrate his designs.

A. Lincoln

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 27, 1837.

ELECTRICITY FOR ALL BUT TVA CUSTOMERS.

The Office of Production Management has ordered sharp reductions in the consumption of electricity for commerce and industry in seven southeastern states. Only arms industries and the most vital of civilian uses are excepted. The rationing will begin on Nov. 10 unless meanwhile there has been heavy rainfall to fill the storage basins. Whether the rains come or not, the use of electricity for lighting show windows and street signs, for theater entrances, athletic fields, etc., is forbidden.

That is to say the only section of the country in which the supply of electricity is today less than ample to meet all ordinary and emergency needs is precisely the TVA territory. This is no mere coincidence. What happened was easily predictable and, as readers of this newspaper know, was predicted in these columns.

Nobody could foresee when the year of comparative drouth would come, but everybody who knew anything about rainfall and river flow in the temperate zone knew that the fluctuations from year to year were very great. The high average annual rainfall in the Tennessee valley was stressed by the politicians as if it proved that this quantity of water would be available every year and any year for the generation of power.

Of course that wasn't true. The average was calculated from a long record of years, some of which were wet, some of which were dry, and some of which were in-between. The time was certain to come when expectations of the average rainfall would be disappointed. Not even a government owned hydroelectric plant can produce electricity from nonexistent water.

So far as the TVA is concerned, the politicians, as might have been expected, made matters worse. When TVA was started there was much tall talk about its being a great social experiment, but only the gullible were taken in. TVA was 10 per cent social experiment and 90 per cent pork. Primarily and overwhelmingly it was a scheme to pass out the taxpayers' money for political purposes. Taxes taken from the people of Iowa, Connecticut, and 40 other states were to be spent to subsidize the consumers of electricity in the southeast.

When that—and the contracts and jobs that went with it—had been done, the politicians demanded more pork and got it. Inducements were offered to large electro-chemical industries to establish plants in TVA territory. The inducements or subsidies often had to be considerable, because the disadvantages of location in that region were by no means negligible. It is an area of relatively high illiteracy, and a region in which industrialization had made slow progress, with the result that trained and disciplined workers were not plentiful. Nevertheless, again thanks to political management, industries which are of importance in the armament effort were located there.

Thus the stage was set for a year of deficient rainfall. Agreements had been made to supply more power than the rivers in a dry year would furnish. Detroit, Chicago, and many other industrial centers dependent upon private power sources are not short of electricity, tho unprecedented demands are being made upon generating capacity. Only where the politicians are in the power business has rationing been required.

WHAT A FENCE IS FOR.

Russell W. Ballard, the new superintendent of the Illinois Training School for Boys near St. Charles, says he is interested in what goes on behind the institution's 13 foot fence rather than in the fence. It may help Mr. Ballard in his primary task of keeping the inmates down on the St. Charles farm to remind him that a plethora of professional humanitarians preceded him. They were so busy running a country club for the junior members that they neglected to see to it that their charges stayed put. Most of these humanitarians ended with blood on their heads. The countless escapes led to countless crimes. It is Mr. Ballard's business to see that there is no repetition. The fence will help him.

THE POUND MAY TRAVEL.

His devotion to the American dollar has just cost Noel Coward, the British playwright and actor, a fine of 200 English pounds. Mr. Coward, the darling of Mayfair and Broadway, was dispatched on his majesty's service to use his undoubted charm in talking up Britain's war among his friends in the United States.

He was permitted to leave England with only 10 pounds, but drew on his American royalties and securities for some $86,000. Apparently it was discovered that he had been spending dollars instead of pounds when he submitted his expense account. The British government took no light view of the crime and Mr. Coward was brought to trial on a charge of violating exchange restrictions.

Mr. Coward pleaded his unworldliness in mitigation. He did not know that the British government's esteem of the dollar was as great as his own. The judge chided Mr. Coward for not turning in the American currency to the British treasury so that Britain could have benefited by $44,000 in dollar exchange. The rebuke was tempered by the observation that Mr. Coward, tho he had erred, was without moral opprobrium. Mr. Coward was thus found both guilty and innocent.

Britain is doing very well on the dollar exchange under provisions of the lend-lease bill. The British stand to receive a credit of 13 billion dollars without posting any collateral. Others less naive than Mr. Coward have a proper respect for the dollar. The pound may be permitted to take the grand tour, but the dollar must stay home—on the ledgers and in the coffers of the Old Lady of Threadneedle Street, where it receives a more abiding hospitality than in the United States treasury department.

REASONS FOR PRIDE AND DREAD.

A year ago a stretch of cindered prairie in the South Chicago works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company was piled high with 40,000 tons of pig iron. The other day two modern electric furnaces, housed in an 850 foot mill building on this site, started pouring forth stainless and alloy steels for tanks, and guns, and bearings, and hundreds of other armament uses.

Ground was broken in January. The concrete, poured in zero weather, was ready for the steel in mid-April, but right in the midst of a great steel plant the buildings had to wait for their structural shapes until June. The final bottleneck was a big material handling machine. Expediters were sent all over the country to hurry up parts for the Cleveland concern that was building it, while the builders privately thanked their stars that at least the order wasn't tied up in a strike-bound plant.

The engineers who built the plant are justly proud of their job, altho they learned long ago that the industrial builder gets scant recognition for his accomplishments outside his own industry. During one of the depression years they poured more concrete in this one Chicago steel works than was poured that year at Boulder dam, yet not one Chicagoan in a hundred knew that that vast expansion program was going on.

These builders have an added satisfaction. They know that the plant they have just finished will turn out the finest steel of its kind in the world—steel that will accomplish any task designers require of it. The product will be as good as the plant.

That is a satisfaction that may be denied many of the builders whose plants are mushrooming all over the American landscape. They are fine plants. No other people, Americans can say without boasting, can build more efficient factories or build them more quickly. No other people can make better peacetime products in those factories, or make them as efficiently or in such vast quantities. It is disturbing that we cannot approach the newer task of building arms with the same confidence.

The country has already seen a medium tank brought out and hailed as the finest in the world, only to be subjected to radical changes in designs as its weaknesses became apparent. It sees its army still bereft of modern artillery because army burocrats stuck for years to outmoded weapons. It hears alarming criticism of the quality of some of its military planes.

No one familiar with the capacity of American industry and the men who run it doubts its ability to turn out arms in vast and ever increasing quantity. The sickening dread is that after many of these plants have been built at the cost of billions and tooled at the expense of months of precious time they will be found to be producing the wrong things.

BETTER RACE RELATIONS.

A week or so ago Miss Marian Anderson sang before an audience of 5,000 in Jackson, Miss. We quote from the account of the event published on the first page of the Jackson Daily News on Oct. 21:

"The song recital of Marian Anderson last night was easily the greatest personal and artistic triumph in the musical history of this city. . . . Marian Anderson is easily the greatest living contralto. An audience of 5,000 people, two-thirds of them white, was an answer from the deep south to the silly race prejudice shown toward Marian Anderson in some parts of the country, chiefly in northern and eastern cities. . . . Much more of the applause with which she was showered came from white persons than from members of her own race. . . . The program came to a thumping climax when she gave 'Suwanee River' as the final number, inviting the audience to join with her. Fully three thousand persons lifted their voices and almost lifted the steel rafters. . . . It was a thrill that will be long remembered."

Here is evidence that the terrible problem of race relations in this country is, if not near solution, at least beginning to yield. The uglier and more humiliating of the discriminations are beginning to disappear even in the south. The credit for this achievement goes to men of good will in both races, but especially to the Negro artists like Marian Anderson who have conducted themselves with a restraint and dignity which are beyond praise.

WHERE YOUR TAX MONEY GOES.

[New York World-Telegram.]

The educational policies commission, representing the National Education association and the American Association of School Administrators, has recommended that the National Youth administration and the Civilian Conservation corps be abolished.

"It does not follow," say the educators, "that because an agency does a good job on a temporary emergency assignment it should, therefore, become a permanent part of the governmental structure." The NYA and CCC, they say, are "moving in the direction of permanence" and a "permanent federal system of education, controled from Washington, paralleling the public school systems and competing with them for funds, staff, and students."

To wipe out the NYA and CCC and all their works, as we read the budget, would save the government $425,000,000.

That is enough to provide a year's rations for one million soldiers [$153,300,000], plus one million Garand rifles [$80,000,000], plus four million pairs of army shoes [$16,000,000], plus a thousand 30-caliber Browning machine guns [$500,000], plus a thousand reconnaissance cars [$1,000,000], plus a thousand light tanks [$24,000,000], plus a thousand medium tanks [$50,000,000], plus a thousand heavy tanks [$100,000,000], with a couple of hundred thousand dollars left over for some other purpose.

But, considering the number of politically potent jobholders who are making a career of NYA and CCC, we wouldn't want to prophesy that either agency will ever be abolished.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

OF THE STREETS AND TOWN.

The Linemaster slammed down his roll-top desk [a rare item] and proclaimed to the adjacent journalists: "A columnist ought not to sit in a chair any longer than it takes to write his stuff. I'm going out to find some stories of the streets and town. Good-by, desk-worms."

* * *

But finding them is a forlorn hope. They are better when invented than when found. George Ade, we suspect, spun his tales out of the Chicago atmosphere. A story of the streets and town should not be much encumbered with names and addresses.

* * *

The Caxton club, a coterie of bibliophiles whose quiet and honorable tradition runs back for decades, has just published for its members an ample collection of Mr. Ade's old newspaper "Stories of the Streets and Town," as illustrated by John T. McCutcheon. Several books have already been hewed out of the material [for example, the "Pink Marsh" and "Doc Horne" series], but the Caxton publication contains stuff that is equally interesting.

* * *

George Ade's title remained alive after he had escaped from the daily grind. The Record-Herald had its "Stories of the Streets and Town," two columns wide, with illustrations, when the Linemaster was a chore-boy there in the early years of this century. Reporters were encouraged to contribute, with $5 and $10 checks. Once we hogged the entire space with a largely fictitious tale of a policeman's journey from Avondale [northwest side] to Hegewisch [southeast side], after being transferred to "the sticks."

* * *

In our first hour out on the "streets and town" trail the other day we met two citizens whose careers narrowly escaped ending in early boyhood at the Iroquois theater fire. In both cases their parents had planned to take them to that fatal matinée performance as a holiday treat; in both cases they were prevented from going by holiday aches and pains in the tummy. They are William C. Boyden and Robert E. Cantwell Jr., attorneys. Cantwell's grandmother used one of the tickets—and was burned to death in her seat.

END OF SINGING.

* * * And suddenly the bird
Was hushed and sang no more. No shot was heard:
Was it a fowler's snare that dropped like death
On song and singer, between breath and breath?
The wood fell silent with the silenced song;
No treetop stirred; no move disturbed the long
Blue shadows slanting on the leaf-strewn grass.
Who would have thought that so soon there could pass,
With one small singer, all the warmth of life?
As peace gave way to silence, echoes of strife
The bird being gone who had filled the air with grace.
O, bird, return and sing your song again,
Lest the world should seek for peace and joy—in vain.

The Truth About Holes in Doughnuts.

Dear Linemaster: Concerning the invention of the hole in the doughnut: In a true doughnut the hole is made first.

The modern doughnut is not a true doughnut. Its so-called hole is merely the natural and logical result of bringing together the ends of a strip of dough. That is not a true doughnut hole. A true doughnut hole is created; it is created before the doughnut and not as an afterthought. A true-doughnut baker molds his dough around the hole. Sad to report, there are no true-doughnut bakers alive today.

The last of the clan, or, the last of the doughicans, if I may be permitted this elegant joke, was the old baker in my home town, North Judson, Ind. I recall that when a boy I spent many a night in his shop watching him make doughnuts. On one side of his kneading board was a heap of luscious, yellow dough; on the other a heap of the most appetizing doughnut holes imaginable, neatly arranged in a small pyramid. With his left hand he took a hole and held it firmly but gently in the center of the board before him, while with his right he deftly attached the dough, pinching it into the edges of the hole. Sometimes there were a few holes left over, and with great kindness in his voice he would say, "You haf been such a goot boy you can haf dese exdra holes," and give them to me. Ah, that was a Golden Age!

OLD LADY SIT-BY-THE-FIRE.

When the wind goes whoo-o! and the wind whee-e!
It's something; it's nothing; it's the cat that wants in!
She's a-yowling and yowling—God save us from sin!
Old lady sit-by-the-fire, what makes you so queer?
You shiver and shake in such deadly fear.
Hush, hush! It's only the mist from the dank creek bed;
It's never the wraiths of the sheeted dead!
Old lady sit-by-the-fire, what's that out there,
Like evil wings in the hag-ridden air?
It's only my bombasine skirt flying past—
I'll wear it no more; it's gone with the blast!

WHY DISEASE IS "CATCHING."

MEDICAL SCIENCE has demonstrated the relationship—cause and effect—between certain organisms and sickness. For example, we know and can see the germs of tuberculosis. The same is true of typhoid fever, whooping cough, diphtheria, undulant fever, and many others. We also can identify the spiral-like forms which are responsible for syphilis, as well as the minute animal types which give rise to malaria and amebic dysentery.

How dangerous are the microbes themselves? The word "virulent"—meaning poisonous—is attached to some. Others may be considered only average in their power to destroy. Much depends upon their ability to produce toxins which are soluble and which may be carried by the circulation to vital parts. When bacteria grow on poor soil they may do little damage. But plant them in an area which is rich in nutriment and they may wreak havoc.

But how do we "catch" these invaders and why are children so susceptible? Unfortunately, a great many infectious agents may be entertained by those who are apparently healthy. Johnny has had some contagious disorder and is in quarantine. He is not allowed to mingle with other youngsters in the family or with neighborhood playmates. There comes a time when he is temperature free and is "raring to go." The longing to see his friends is great and a few may be permitted to enter the sick-room, shake his hand, or handle playthings which he has fondled. In such circumstances, the contagion may still be present. We need not wonder then should a visitor come down with the affliction.

There are, of course, "carriers"—those who have recovered completely but the secretions from the nose or the throat may harbor microbes which will become exceedingly active when picked up by one who is not immune. After any widespread epidemic, pupils will be found in our schoolrooms who look and feel well. Nevertheless, they may transmit a disease to others. This explains why it is wise to take all possible precautions before sending a child back to school. A negative nose or throat culture is good insurance.

Furthermore there are cases of illness which are so light as to escape recognition. Freddie may not be indisposed a single day because of his high resistance or because the causative bacilli are weak. Should he pass these same "critters" on to another, a severe reaction may be encountered.

But what about mosquitoes which spread malaria and wood ticks which disseminate tick fever? Unpasteurized milk may likewise become a source of Malta, or undulant fever. We can avoid insects and use only safe milk.

Much of our trouble arises because we have two open portals—the nose and the mouth. We not only excrete organisms from these avenues but we take them in. The skin is also a common receptacle. Most of our boils come because hair follicles have entertained staphylococci.

Every bacterium growing in the body will stimulate the blood to produce neutralizing forces. These are called antibodies. The child who breathes in germs of diphtheria may not develop the disease because he is immune. It is this sort of protection which we hope to establish thru the injection of toxoid. Besides this malady, we can immunize our children against lockjaw, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and smallpox. The methods are relatively simple.

If every tot in the land could be given this security, not only would thousands of lives be saved but considerable expense. In addition, our progeny would be spared innumerable complicating ailments, some of which may prove to be serious.

RESTLESS REST.

P. W. writes: What causes me to quiver when I am asleep?

REPLY.

The symptom usually typifies exhaustion or extreme fatigue. Other signs include jumping, when the muscles contract suddenly. Can it be that in your dreams you are knocking at the pearly gates and pleading your case? Horrific nightmares may bring on a cold sweat, with chilly sensations and tremors which persist for an hour or more.

RUBBER SHEET.

W. O. writes. Is it harmful to keep a rubber sheet on a baby's crib?

REPLY.

Not at all. This is an excellent protector. It should be smooth and without wrinkles, however.

FOLLOW THE BAR PRIMARY.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—What is this "coalition"? Some of us think that, as represented by a bipartisan judicial ticket, it is a dangerous and pernicious practice that should be opposed every time it shows itself. But, fortunately, to vote right next Tuesday, Nov. 4., it is not necessary to reach any decision about "coalition" nor to take sides between Democrats and Republicans.

Every one agrees that it is enormously important that good judges—the best judges—be selected in a judicial election. And no one has ever discovered a better test of the quality of a candidate for judicial office than the free and open vote of the lawyers who make up the Chicago Bar association.

Those lawyers know the sitting judges and the aspirants for their places, and they have selected by their votes the 23 candidates on both tickets whom they recommend.

To follow these recommendations by voting for all of the candidates indorsed by the bar association is the surest way of helping to get the best judges for Cook county.

ARNOLD R. BAAR.

O. K. OF CHOCTAW ORIGIN.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 29.—I read where two professors in Chicago, compiling a dictionary or encyclopedia, were trying to determine the origin of "O. K." now so generally used not only in our country but in nearby Latin American countries and to some extent in Europe.

It is of strictly American origin and in use hundreds of years. It is a Choctaw Indian word, and when the Choctaw language was first written with Roman characters, it was spelled "okeh" and "hoke."

"Okeh" translated into English means "alright." At the bottom of a letter instead of the usual "truly yours" the Choctaw writes "sia okeh" or "sia hoke." In the olden days the Choctaw brave in indicating that he was a he man exclaimed, "Nakni sia okeh!" Meaning "I'm much of a man."

I was born and reared in the old Choctaw nation, now a part of eastern Oklahoma. I have a fair knowledge of the Choctaw language. In an old Choctaw dictionary published in 1842, in my possession, the definition of "okeh" is "well," "alright." In the Choctaw nation more than 50 years ago most of the white men, especially cattlemen and traders, used "O. K." in the sense of all right. The word gradually spread into general use.

T. B. WALL.

"STANDARD TIME" WELCOME.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Gee! It is great to hear the radio announcers say "Central standard time" again, and to hear your W-G-N programs at the right time and not have to sit up half the night doing so, or have to retire without hearing them because your family has to get up before daylight in order to get to work to get the hour's "airing" or twilight saving.

Chicago certainly didn't have anything to be proud of when she stood alone in this business—disrupting railroads, stock exchanges, schedules of towns around us, and causing more accidents than we have ever had at this time of the year just in order that a few petty politicians might play softball and golf, certainly not for the children's benefit.

PROGRESS OF THE USO.

New York, Oct. 28.—Because of the splendid support which the people of your community and your newspaper gave to the United Service Organization during its campaign for funds, I want to send you this brief report of the present USO status.

We now have approximately $13,400,000 available for our operating budget, which exceeds our original goal of $10,765,000, but even this is not sufficient to meet the increasing demands for service which come daily.

The USO is in operation all across the United States and in the islands of the Pacific and the Atlantic. Each day sees our program expanding.

We have the promise of the United States army that there will be more than 200 USO buildings ready and operating by Jan. 1, contracts for half of which already have been let. Meanwhile, today we have 313 units in rented quarters, of which 172 are actual clubs for the use of the men in the service.

Our program is moving forward rapidly. It is becoming constantly wider in scope and effectiveness. I believe we can all feel real satisfaction over the results which have been obtained, and I want to express my appreciation for the help of your newspaper and that which came so generously from the people of your community.

CLING TO THE 5 CENT NICKEL.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Your story today regarding the scarcity of certain alloys was read with interest. In parallel with the article the writer has suggested to Washington authorities that they could conserve the use of the alloy nickel, using some other substitute or metal in our 5 cent pieces.

The writer received a perfunctory reply from them and drew the impression that constructive suggestions were only amusing to them.

We know that most of the nickel comes from Canada, where they have a monopoly just as obnoxious as the aluminum menopoly in this country.

"HOW AND HOW NOT" OF A JOB

Anna, Ill., Oct. 29.—One way not to get a job: Just register with the Illinois state employment service. You'll never be called.

One way to get a job in southern Illinois: Come to the Crab Orchard government project. Be sure to bring about $100 with you. Join a union or buy a work card. Then pay some one a bonus and you will be put to work. Of course you may be laid off shortly, but that is part of the game and you'll have to take a chance. But I'll take a chance on something else.

ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 28—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. An estate has a tavern located on the premises. The administrator says to protect the estate he must get liability insurance on this and fire insurance on the building.

2. The heirs maintain it is the duty of the tavern to supply its own insurance.

3. How does the dram act affect the owner of a building in which a tavern is located?

4. Does the dram act make liability insurance necessary for the owner of the tavern occupied building? An heir holds a promissory note signed by the deceased. This note was turned over to Probate court.

5. Is it necessary for the holder to appear in court to claim judgment?

6. Can this note be outlawed at the expiration of a certain period?

7. Can an administrator be made to account for credits received? H. W.

1. An administrator does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. Your letter does not make clear under what authority the property is being managed. If the deceased made the lease with the tavern then presumably the rights of the tenant depend on the wording of the lease. We cannot advise to advantage without knowing the facts.

2. On leases to taverns it is common to insist that the tenant carry insurance against liability for damages due to drink. The tenant may also be required to carry fire insurance, but if the lease has already been made then rights depend on the wording.

3. The owner can be held for damages resulting from the sale of intoxicants.

4. Depends on what you mean by a necessity. See preceding answers.

5. Depends on whether any defense is being made. If by "the lawyer" you mean a lawyer representing the holder of the note then this lawyer is in a better position to advise his client than we are.

6. The Illinios limitation period on notes is 10 years from the maturity date but claims against a deceased estate are barred in nine months from the commencement of the proceedings unless filed within that period.

7. We do not understand the question.

Tells Party Parleys on Overthrow by Force.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—James Bartlett, a key government witness in the trial of 28 defendants charged with seditious conspiracy, testified in federal court today that the Socialist Workers' party, at one of its first meetings in Minneapolis in January, 1938, discussed overthrow of the United States government by force.

The witness, business agent of General Drivers' union, local No. 544 [AFL], named six of those on trial as participants in the discussion. The six so identified are V. R. Dunne, Oscar Coover, Carl Skoglund, Carlos Hudson, Max Geldman, and Karl Kuehn.

At the time of the party meeting Bartlett was a member of the organization. The meeting was held at 919 Marquette avenue, headquarters of the party. The Socialist Workers' party follows the Trotsky line and openly opposes the Stalinists. The group was read out of the American Socialist party.

Party Aims Set Forth.

"In the discussion," Bartlett testified, "a contrast was drawn between the Socialist party and the Socialist Workers' party. It was stressed that the Socialist party was living under an illusion that it could effect its aims thru the ballot box, and that the Socialist Workers' party did not have this illusion. Speakers said it was necessary to overthrow the government by force of arms to establish a dictatorship of the proletariat."

Albert Goldman, member of defense counsel and himself a defendant, raised objections when United States Attorney Victor Anderson asked Bartlett what is meant by a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

"Just a minute," said Goldman. "I don't know if this witness is an expert on Marxism."

"I don't know, either," said Judge Matthew M. Joyce. "Let's find out."

Defines Party Philosophy.

Asked by Attorney Anderson to define the relation of the Socialist Workers' party to the philosophy of the late Leon Trotsky, Bartlett said:

"Trotsky was recognized by the party as having interpreted revolutionary Marxism in a manner contrasted with the perverted interpretation by Stalin."

Defense Counsel Goldman, during the trial, has not denied the party is of revolutionary type, but has declared that the word "revolution" in this case does not mean what the government contends it does.

Bartlett went on to testify that the party program included placing members in key positions in trade unions. The Dunne brothers, Vincent and Myles, who are among the defendants, were bosses of local No. 544, which jumped from the AFL to the CIO last June. They formed a local of the same number, 544, in the CIO. Their old local, under their leadership, has participated in some of the most sanguinary strikes in labor history.

Bartlett told how he broke with the Socialist Workers' party and joined the Farmer-Labor party. "The fact was," he said, "I disagreed on armed revolution."

Tells of Visiting Trotsky.

Bartlett spoke of a vacation trip he took to Mexico City in 1940 with Harry De Boer, a defendant. Bartlett said that on the request of V. R. Dunne, they called on Leon Trotsky. A snapshot of five persons was displayed by United States Attorney Anderson and the witness identified members of the group as himself, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. De Boer, and Trotsky.

Bartlett testified that Trotsky read two letters to them, one from V. R. Dunne, the other from Albert Goldman.

"Who? asked Anderson.

"Albert Goldman.

"O, counsel?" said Anderson with a grin. Attorney Goldman smiled.

Court adjourned until Monday morning, after it had been ascertained from the jurors that they are equipped with a good radio for the Minnesota-Northwestern game.

HINT MRS. ORTON MAY ASK JURY IN DIVORCE TRIAL

Attorneys for Mrs. Annabelle Adams Orton indicated yesterday that they will ask a jury trial in the divorce suit brought by her husband, Philo A. Orton, 68 years old, 215 East Chestnut street, wealthy crane and shovel manufacturer. Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Circuit court continued the case to Nov. 17.

Orton accuses his wife, who is 35, of love affairs with three men, designated as Mr. F., Mr. P., and Mr. R. In an amended bill filed yesterday, Orton alleged that she had rendezvous with Mr. P. in Chicago in July, 1938, the same month the Ortons were married.

Another meeting with Mr. P. was in August, 1938, the bill charged. The alleged misconduct with Mr. F. was in Chicago in December, 1940, and the first three months of this year. Attorney Harold Keele, counsel for Mrs. Orton, was given until next Wednesday to file an answer to the charges.

POLL OFFICIALS URGED: 'PROTECT JUDICIAL VOTE'

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday called upon judges and clerks of election who will operate the polling places at the judicial election Tuesday to rise above partisanship and give an absolutely square deal to every voter and every candidate. "By doing so," Jarecki said, "you are protecting the integrity of the ballot, preserving the greatest privilege of free men and free women, and making sure the foundation of our American institutions."

DRUNK CHOOSES WRONG BED, GETS A FINE HANGOVER

Steve Migala, 24 years old, 2012 Iowa street, who climbed into the wrong bed early Wednesday morning after a night of bibulous celebration with a friend, was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct yesterday in the Racine avenue court of Judge John V. McCormick.

Steve Migala.

Migala had planned to spend the night with his friend, Peter Otwinowski, 41, of 826 North Marshfield avenue. Confused by liquor, he crawled thru a window at 835 North Marshfield avenue, stripped to his shorts, and tumbled into bed beside Miss Stephanie Niewiarowski. The girl woke up and ran in fright to her parents, who called police. It took them 10 minutes to wake Migala.

In court Wednesday Migala said he did not recall what happened. But Otwinowski confirmed yesterday that Migala was to have spent the night with him. "This mistake never happened to me before," Migala said in apology.

Morris if he had anything to say, the 36 year old Negro replied: "Judge, after I'm gone the murder will remain unsolved. You won't have the right man." His counsel plans an appeal.

FRANCE TO TRY 5 MEN FOR DEFEAT IN WAR ON JAN. 15

650 Witnesses Called to Give Testimony.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Oct. 31.—France's defeat at the hands of Adolf Hitler's armies in June, 1940, will be given a public airing before Chief of State Marshal Petain's high court of justice at Riom, a small town near Vichy, beginning Jan. 15, it was disclosed today by Minister of Justice Joseph Barthelemy.

On that date former Premiers Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier; Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former allied commander in chief, and former Ministers Pierre Jacomet and Guy La Chambre will be put on trial.

Barthelemy made the announcement before a cabinet meeting. His statement settled the question of whether the prisoners would stand trial on charges of getting France into a war for which it was unprepared.

Orders Prisoners Removed.

Petain issued a decree a few weeks ago removing the prisoners from the Chateau de Bourassol detention house for indefinite confinement in Fort de Pourtalet on the Spanish frontier.

When Petain took this action, after advice from a specially named council of political justice, he made it clear that this action would not exclude a trial before the Riom court.

The trial promises to be one of the most famous in history, for it will involve the disclosure of what happened and why during the last 20 years of European history.

Blum, Daladier, La Chambre, Gamelin, and Jacomet presumably will be tried first. It is not clear whether former Premier Paul Reynaud and former Colonial Minister Georges Mandel will be tried at the same time.

650 Witnesses Called.

The Riom court was established by a special constitutional act in August of 1940 as one of the first acts of Petain's government. Formerly the French senate acted as the high court in trying political cases of this nature.

The trial is expected to last for months. A total of 650 witnesses have been summoned.

TAKES NEW AUTO; DAMAGES 7 CARS IN WILD CHASE

Charles P. Heffley Jr., 16 years old, 1227 North Shore avenue, took a new car last night from in front of 1506 Rosemont avenue, police said. Before he was captured he sideswiped six parked automobiles and crashed head on into a seventh, injuring the driver.

After taking the car, Heffley drove into a filling station at 3315 North Ashland avenue. He ordered gasoline and drove off without paying. Frank Thresh and James Murray, employés of the station, started chasing him in two cars.

The pursuit ended at Wellington and Ashland avenues when Heffley hit his sixth parked car and crashed into one driven by Frank Laszuk, 23, of 3452 Greenview avenue. Thresh and Murray captured the fugitive and Laszuk was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital with minor injuries.

The youth was unable to make any explanation for his actions to Lieut. John T. O'Malley of the Sheffield avenue police. He said everything had been a "blank." He was taken to the juvenile home. His father is an oil salesman.

ATHLETE GETS 1 TO 14 YEARS FOR ASSAULT

James Hill, 16 years old, former Tilden Technical high school athlete, yesterday was sentenced by Judge U. S. Schwartz in Criminal court to 1 to 14 years in prison for having beaten Mrs. Rita Harsh, 41, of 7552 Eggleston avenue, with a pair of pliers.

The assault took place Sept. 3 in the Harsh home. Hill gained entrance on the pretext of leaving a message for Mrs. Harsh's daughter, Janet, 16, but fled when Mrs. Harsh screamed. He was captured by State Policeman John Prindaville who was passing.

Hill pleaded not guilty. Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek said, however, that the youth previously admitted he had intended to rape Mrs. Harsh. Mrs. Harsh, her face and hands scarred, testified at the trial.

EDISON ENGINEER DIES.

Victim in Fifth Grade at St. Mel's School.

Jeanne Knight, 10 years old, 4203 Washington boulevard, was struck and killed by a truck yesterday despite efforts of her brother, Donald, 13, to save her.

Donald told police his sister took his hand preparatory to crossing Madison street at Kilbourn avenue, but suddenly released it and darted into the path of an approaching truck. The boy said he grabbed hold of his sister's dress, but she pulled loose.

Driver Tries to Stop.

The driver, John Tolsma, 39, of 6139 South Morgan street, told police he tried to stop but the truck hurled the girl 72 feet. Jeanne was in the fifth grade at St. Mel's parochial school.

C. S. Barnett, 61, of West Frankfort, Franklin county, was fatally injured when the car he was driving collided with a truck at the intersection of highways 30 and 49, five miles west of Chicago Heights. Mrs. Vivian Tallet, 41, of 140 West 60th street, died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries received Thursday when she was struck by an automobile in front of 208 West Marquette road. John F. MacKay, 19, of 6435 Yale avenue, was the driver.

Coroner A. L. Brodie reported yesterday that during the first 10 months of 1941 a total of 777 persons were killed by automobiles in Cook county, an increase of 50 over the same period last year. The toll for October, however, was 79, a drop of seven from October, 1940.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 776 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 536 were killed in Chicago where 21,432 were injured in the same period.

SYNOPSIS.

Gay Ripley, in Paris to buy antiques for her New York firm, is staying with her cousin, Mrs. Hiram Rentrew, a rich widow. Her cousin is taken to the hospital, ill, and gives Gay a valuable antique necklace to put in her wall safe at home. That night Mrs. Rentrew dies of a stroke, and Gay thinks she hears some one in her room after she goes to bed. The next morning the necklace is missing. The following night Gay is overpowered by ether and when she awakes, the necklace has been returned. Mrs. Rentrew's brother-in-law, Horace, an antique dealer, insists on an inquest and it is found that Mrs. Rentrew died of an overdose of benzendrine, which caused the stroke. Her visitors at the hospital the afternoon of her death are the main suspects. Aside from Gay, the visitors were Horace, Raoul de Chabenil, an unscrupulous gigolo; Estrella, a dressmaker; Manx, Mrs. Rentrew's butler, and Miles Dorsey, junior partner of Geoff Macadam, whose firm took care of Mrs. Rentrew's affairs. Geoff's wife, Catherine, as an old friend of Gay's, Hortense, Mrs. Rentrew's cook, and Alixe, her former maid, are also under suspicion. Altho Miles warns Gay against trying to solve the mystery, she finds that Raoul and Estrella are lovers and that Estrella's brother, Dr. Borosh, sells drugs illicitly. She also overhears Alixe sell a seemingly important letter to Estrella. While Horace and Gay are playing backgammon, they hear a body falling and looking out the window, see Hortense, dead in the court below. Alixe disappears and when Gay sees Borosh coming out of Horace's shop, Horace claims Borosh has tried to sell him information about the murderer. That night Borosh is found drowned. Manx has some kind of stroke and is taken to the hospital but later escapes. When Gay asks Raoul about her cousin, who was brought up a strict Methodist, having a rosary, he acts upset. Estrella sends for Gay for a fitting and refuses to let Gay go until she has revealed the name of the murderer. Raoul enters and tries to torture Gay into signing incriminating evidence. Gay is in agony when Horace and the police break in and rescue her. Raoul is arrested for Mrs. Rentrew's murder as a record has been found of Raoul's and Mrs. Rentrew's marriage. Raoul admits the jewel theft but not the murder.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

EXPLANATION.

"The true details of Borosh's removal may remain undiscoverable, morally convinced tho we are that de Chabenil sent him stunned into the Seine; but as for Hortense Rimbaud, who—"

"Let me say it, inspector," I broke in excitedly. "Hortense caught de Chabenil putting drops into his hostess' wine. Somehow she managed to sneak a little from the bottle, meaning to have a hold over the man if Mme. Rentrew got ill. Only nothing seemed to be happening. So she hung on till it did."

"Correct, Mademoiselle! For the time being Rimbaud held her tongue. . . . You find this part of it distressing, Monsieur? Alas, we have more than one evil person to consider, despite the fact that there is only a single assassin.

"A word in passing as to why Madame got rid of her long time domestics. Old servants see too much. A widow now, Madame resented spying eyes in her household. She wished to be free. De Chabenil comes; all her interested dependents go. Two are in Paris, two are dismissed. She breathes at last. And now! Were you aware, Monsieur, that Madame and her young guest vanished from the villa for over two weeks?"

"What? You said they went to London, but just for a few days."

"I am speaking of a second and later absence, early last month, to be precise. We now learn that a hired chauffeur drove them to Arles and was there sent away. Unescorted, our couple proceeded to a tiny village near the former de Chabenil château —Concourt-l' Abbaye: Here they remained during the period requisite for contracting a legal marriage. On the 20th of April they were made man and wife.

"But Madame has her heart set on her church ceremony; and her religious instruction is not yet completed. It is agreed to hold the church marriage in Paris. They therefore return to Saint Cristophe, separate, and make the Paris journey singly—Madame with her temporary chauffeur, her husband a little later in the new car which is his wedding gift from his bride. While still in Cannes, de Chabenil receives word that his wife has suffered a mild stroke. Perhaps he has not expected this quite so soon, but what of it? His inheritance is secure."

"Wait! Had those Benz-Vite tablets anything to do with it?"

"Only, shall we say, as a slight contributary aid. We have not yet proved that Madame took more than one bottle of them. Naturally enough the accused swears he never knew she had taken anything of the sort, tho our own belief is he himself obtained other bottles while in London."

The radiant, lying face rose before me. I could well believe that a gay roisterer like de Chabenil did not mean to be saddled with an ageing wife one hour longer than was absolutely necessary—that he would have used every device procurable to cut short his imprisonment.

"He hastens to Paris," resumed the inspector. "What does he find? Madame is making a promising recovery. He does not know, he fears she may live on and on, even after she has become bedridden, speechless. His faith in A. T. 10 weakens; and now a new and alarming factor comes to light. Yes Monsieur, I suspect that de Chabenil now realizes the influence you wield on Madame, the efforts you are making toward unmasking her disreputable admirer. Divorce in France can easily be obtained. For that matter, will not a new will—yes, the mere stroke of a pen—deprive the schemer of all he has maneuvered to secure?

"Enough! Madame must not return to the Avenue Malakoff alive. De Chabenil buys—or steals, is it important?—some pure benzedrine. Dr. Borosh has long ago explained its action and results. It can be given in a glass of water; but as it happens the cup of soup lies happily to the hand. It is done. It succeeds a merveille. Till—terrible awakening!—the person nearest and dearest to Madame demands an inquiry."

Benzedrine could be detected. Behzedrine was found.

"I see." I sat pondering. "Mr. Rentrew by sheer fluke uncovers murder. Hortense has already let de Chabenil know she has a sample of his A. T. 10. Quick work! She must have believed the first stroke resulted from those harmless looking drops. I expect Mr. Rentrew has told you about her big stack of money. Where did de Chabenil get it to pay her, if he didn't do his jewel pawning after all?"

"Ah, Mademoiselle, that we shall soon know! A theft of banknotes one of my colleagues is now investigating to our own accused. Rimbaud withdrew no money from her bank. We therefore conclude she was paid something to keep her quiet for a time. Not for long, O no! For within two days the murderer strikes again. He rids himself once and for all of a troublesome incubus. Remember his key to this apartment! He takes risks, but he succeeds."

Not so hot young Raoul's admitting he had that latchkey. . . . Of course all these carpets were inches thick. All the same, the bare notion of that daringly stealthy entrance being made while three people were in the apartment—Manx in his own bathroom, Horace and I drowsing over backgammon in this very room—sent me into sick shudders.

"If the necklace were taken in the car," I objected, "then who had a go at the safe the first time? I mean on Tuesday night, right after my cousin died."

"As you supposed, Hortense Rimbaud. You know the door hidden under the Persian hanging? She was secreting its key among her belongings. A woman of her type does not balk at theft, particularly when her mistress lies dead and there is another person to shoulder the blame. You woke, she retreated. That's all."

As Bouige pointed out, there was another feature about Hortense's death. The chances were all in favor of its being thought suicide. If so, the murderer was safe.

"Two drugs," he emphasized, pinning us with an eye. "Drug one, gradual in action, defying even postmortem. Drug two, quick, certain, causing death in a manner corresponding admirably with accredited symptoms—and also safe so long as the death certificate is unqueried. Ah, yes, a clever conception! Imaginative —superb!"

Dyhydro tachsterin . . . gradual hardening of arteries. . . .

"O, by the way inspector! Have you located Manx?"

"What! That lunatic?" Little Bouige reddened with mortification and anoyance, trying to pooh pooh it off. "Certainly he is found—in a Montmartre hotel where he merely crawled into a bed. A clear case of malingering! Not daring to utter a word lest the fate overtaking his fellow servant should be meted out to him. Ah, he will speak now! De Chabenil is behind bars."

"Quite sure," I demanded, "it was malingering?"

"In part, yes. Not perhaps altogether." A shrewd glance at me. "Thinking, Mademoiselle, that Rimbaud with her deadly bottle may have contributed to his collapse?"

"I'm wondering. Aren't you?"

He stood riveted. Then he shrugged. "Mademoiselle, the bottle contained A. T. 10! In short, we shall never know."

Manx . . . what secret was he hiding? Or did it mean he was mentally unhinged?

I told myself that one way or the other it needn't bother us now; but all the same, hearing Horace put the chain on the front door, I heaved a relieved sigh.

"I scarcely think," Miles Dorsey observed, "de Chabenil would have killed you."

"Neither do I, now," I snapped. "A lot of good it would do him having a third corpse on his hands."

There we sat on two drawing room chairs, finding little to say. Round us stretched a desert of perfect furnishings—airless now and flowerless as well. A room dead and embalmed. . . .

Whatever I might have expected, it wasn't this. After the fireworks every newspaper had been shooting off! Miles knew. He'd seen half a dozen spectacular accounts when he got in at the Gare de l'Est. Damn all Englishmen! I matched his coolness with my own.

"Well," I said, "it's all done but the shouting, isn't it?"

Good Morning!

Like going home, to visit the Monroe theater!

Back in the dear old days it had first runs and I went there often. . . . Then—a new policy was adopted. . . . But—

This week for about the first time in 10 years the management announced a first run picture—so—there was I. To find the theater comfortable, clean, and quiet as it always had been—a haven for business folk nearby who don't mind waiting till second table for their movie fare, and enjoy the Monroe's homeyness during lunch hours or gaps before late dinners. . . .

"The Tunnel" features the Negro singer-actor, Paul Robeson, in a story about Welsh mining folk. . . . He's a happy vagabond, jobless, but wanting work, and lands in a Welsh mining town where he sings and smiles his way into the good graces of a kindly choirmaster who is also a leader among the miners. . . .

Parry, who, apparently recognizes no color line, makes the big fellow welcome in his home and secures employment for him in the mine where he himself works. . . . Here David becomes a prime favorite, heartening his mates with songs and laughter and a large easygoingness that rests. . . . He also fortifies the romance between Dick Parry and Gwen, daughter of a mischief making postmistress. . . .

A cave-in results in the death of Parry and others and in hardship to men who are thrown out of work when, because of it, the mine is shut down. . . . When it becomes sure that England will fight Germany—and there is great reason for the mine to be reopened—a delegation of men headed by Dick Parry and David starts for London, walking all the way. . . . Their pleas result in permission for miners to enter the mine and see what can be done about getting it into operation. . . .

And now the action becomes terribly suspenseful, and tragedy clamps down on events with a cold and relentless hand. . . .

Simplicity and sincerity characterize this picture. Rich music hums thru it and ties it together. . . . Mr. Robeson sings several solos and there are some beautiful choruses by miners and their families. . . .

Sometimes direction falters. Sometimes you find it difficult to understand the Welsh dialect. But always you believe in what you're seeing.

"Bride of Buddha," also on the screen, is a travelog of India. Fascinating in spots, sickening often. . . . Perhaps you may believe the narrator, but in many instances he was just Mr. Scheherezade to me.

Grace Moore's Shoulder Is Hurt in Stage Accident

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP).—"The Love of Three Kings" is nice opera work if you don't dislocate your shoulder.

Grace Moore did, in the second act, or rather it was done by Tenor Charles Kullman, former Yale athlete who played the part of Composer Montemezzi's enamored royalty.

Kullman lunged across the stage and collided with Miss Moore, in the rôle of Fiora. In true theatrical tradition, Miss Moore sang on until a merciful death came some moments later in the form of a choking by Ezio Pinza, playing the part of Archibaldo.

Physicians soon restored Miss Moore's shoulder to its normal location, and then went on to treat Pinza's arms and hands, badly scratched in Miss Moore's operatic death struggle.

Practicality.

White-haired George Chase, dean of Harvard university, who was in Chicago the other day for a Harvard club luncheon, went into the Chicago Art institute afterward to see his friend Charles Fabens Kelly, assistant director and curator of oriental arts. While he was there he told him a little Boston story. It concerned a house on Beacon street that was being dismantled by its owners. One of the married sons who lived two blocks down the street had particular affection for a grandfather clock that was among the furnishings. His father gave it to him.

"Take it along now, why don't you?" he said. "You can carry it over your shoulder."

The son carried out the clock. After walking a half block he stopped to rest, then hoisted the clock over his shoulder again and started on. A drunk across the street paralleled his course, and when the clock carrier stopped a second time to rest lurched across the street and addressed him.

"Don't you think," he said, "That it would be more practical to carry a watch?"

PERMANENCE.

Ten thousand miles of wall
Shall not outlast
The beauty
Of this carnelian egg-shell cup.
And the great Tsinling mountains
Shall be no more permanent
Than a verse of Li Po.
Nor shall the rainbow glisten
Be less permanent
Than any of these.

Keeping Up.

An old New York gentleman who had sworn he would never set foot inside one of those "flying contraptions" found an emergency called him to San Francisco and that the only way he could get there in time would be to fly. As his plane taxied down the runway at La Guardia field he saw the oil truck that had been fueling the plane departing. Similarly, when the plane stopped at Cleveland, Chicago, and Denver, he saw a gas truck at the field, according to Stewardess Gwenth Nolan. At Salt Lake City, the flight captain came back into the plane and asked the elderly passenger how he was enjoying his first plane trip.

"We've been making 200 miles an hour," the flight captain said. "Pretty good, even for an airplane."

"Yes," said the old man, "I'm sure it is. And that gas truck has been making pretty good time, too," he added, indicating the refueling truck leaving the field.

Warning! Child Story!

A three year old, Joel Newman, was taken to a movie by his father and they entered in the middle of a murder mystery. Two criminals were plotting and when it was necessary to read a paper in the furtherance of their scheme, a candle in a bottle on the table was lighted. Joel, in a loud clear voice, started singing "Happy birthday to you. . . ."

Add Nonsense Stories.

The one about the two mental deficients, one of whom threw a beam from his flashlight toward the ceiling. "Climb up that beam," he suggested to his companion.

"O, no, you don't do that to me," said the other. "When I get half way up you'll turn the light out."

On the House

These are days when it is important to stop up all air leaks around ash door, fire door, and base of your furnace or boiler as these are costly leaks and can "cool off" your fire or let the heat escape. . . . There are types of asbestos cement manufactured for just these leaks. . . . Also this is the time to clean soot and fly ash from heating surfaces inside your heating plant. . . . A deposit of as little as 3-16 of an inch of fly ash in a coal burning boiler can cause a 69 per cent fuel loss!

Shelves Are Filled for Sale of Infant Welfare Society

Stacks of merchandise, ranging from a used piano to a pile of new long winter underwear, were stowed neatly at 1006 South Michigan avenue yesterday in readiness for the opening at 9 a. m. Monday of the annual rummage sale of the Infant Welfare society. So many donations to the sale have been received that officials estimate they should clear at least $6,000. As usual, the rummge includes a wide array of shoes, slippers, dresses, furs, crystal, and silver, in addition to definite oddments. The sale is sponsored by the Kenwood and North Side auxiliaries of the society. Mrs. E. O. Freund is president of the former, Mrs. Fitzmorris Brittingham of the latter.

Stock Accents Joyfulness of Mozart Work

BY EDWARD BARRY.

In Orchestra hall Thursday night and yesterday afternoon Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra presented two major works besides the Sibelius Violin Concerto which was discussed in this column yesterday. They were the Mozart C major ["Jupiter"] symphony and the Symphonic Dances of Hindemith.

The "Jupiter" symphony was written during that frightful summer of 1788 when the tramp of would-be bill collectors to Mozart's door furnished a hideous obbligato to his composing. For this reason its unearthly joyfulness seems nothing less than a miracle.

This week's performances—rhythmic but not crisply so, finely textured but with a healthy underlying solidity—did reasonable justice to this aspect of the piece.

The Hindemith dances are a great deal easier to comprehend now than they were when the composer himself conducted them here four seasons ago. This is partly due to the fact that in the meantime Chicago has had several chances to hear Hindemith's music to the Massine ballet, "St. Francis," and to become more familiar with his idiom.

Now the logic of the dances is apparent. Both melodic and rhythmic ideas are allowed to grow into their final shapes with an ease and naturalness that conceal the composer's consummate craftsmanship. And these ideas betray a creative urge of the healthiest, most vigorous sort.

Mrs. Barbara Abbott and Thomas D. Healy Are on Honeymoon

Mrs. Barbara Cox Abbott, daughter of James C. Cox, first vice president of the William Wrigley Jr. company, and Thomas Dodd Healy, Chicago lawyer, were married last Saturday in Waukegan by a justice of the peace, according to the bride's mother. They are expected to return from a honeymoon in the east this weekend or early next week, Mrs. Cox said.

Mrs. Healy divorced her first husband, William Rufus Abbott Jr., son of the former chairman of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, last year. She has a daughter, Dana, 11 years old, and a son, James, 10.

Mr. Healy, former assistant United States attorney, was divorced by his first wife, now Mrs. Julia Healy Burbank of New York, in 1936. He obtained custody of their child, Patricia, who now resides with his mother, Mrs. Thomas Healy, 6743 Merrill avenue.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 31.—Even before Helen Morgan died the life of Helen Morgan was a great movie bet. With her passing it was to be expected that somebody would announce a Morgan film. First to do so is Paramount's miracle man, Buddy De Sylva, but events may show that others had the same notion.

De Sylva plans one of his big film-musical productions for about February, with no casting set as yet. One guess for the rôle is Mary Martin.

A producer who long has wanted to make a Helen Morgan picture is Mark Hellinger. Mark, as a newspaper columnist, grew up in the hot spots in the time of Morgan and Texas Guinan and was a longtime intimate of Helen's. When he resigned from his producing berth at Warners' and went to 20th-Fox, he submitted to Darryl Zanuck a plan for a movie on the torch singer's life—as a vehicle for Alice Faye.

Maybe De Sylva will be first under the wire. Perhaps Hellinger will. But, whoever does the picture with its wonderful background of Jerome Kern Melody, the title should be "Why Was I Born?" and if that is not considered box office, "Here Is Love, Here Am I."

If Paramount gets the Morgan picture, it will have the speakeasy era sewed up. Producer Robert Sisk will begin shooting during the winter on a biography of Texas Guinan.

Held up on his plans to produce John Steinbeck's "The Red Pony" at RKO because the right small boy can't be found, William Hawks is turning his attention to Stephen Morehouse Avery's story, "The Gilded Pheasant." It's a Mexican tale, and Hawks has flown to Mexico to join a location crew which is filming the Juanitzio festival, a religious ceremony, at Patzcuaro. . . . Warners have closed the deal with Betty Blake Rogers, Will's widow, for film rights to her story of Will Rogers, "Uncle Clem's Boy." . . . Betty Grable sings a cute and lively number in "Song of the Islands." Turned out by Mack Gordon and Harry Owens, it bears the Gordonesque title of "On Ami Ami Oni Oni Isle." It's a jazz lament on all the things you don't get in the South seas, and it mentions trademarked headache cures, soft drinks and movie stars by name. . . . The set, incidentally, is one of the most elaborate in a long time—a tropic mountainside with an immense blue waterfall. Water is blue because the flicker is in technicolor. May not be much more blue water in color movies, because it's made with copper sulphate and that's on the priorities list. . . . Working in "Song of the Islands" as a musical comedy Irish father is Thomas Mitchell. Mitchell suffered a serious head injury in a horse runaway at the beginning of "All That Money Can Buy" and was out for months. On his return he played the French priest in David Hempstead's "Joan of Paris" at RKO, then went to 20th-Fox for the South seas thing. Here I asked him if his injured noggin was bothering him. "On the contrary," he said, "It's better than ever. It's full of ideas—the accident seems to have been a good thing."

With "Reap the Wild Wind" shot and being cut and scored, C. B. de Mille is turning his attention to "Rurales," the film about Mexico. No story yet. Only a couple of characters—a soldadera, or feminine camp follower, and a bullfighter. It has already been decided that there will be a new title, for too many customers might think "Rurales" was the name of a Mexican general. "South West Mounted Police" would be a fine title—but people who had seen "North West Mounted" might think they'd already been to that one. . . . With the Warners' "Maltese Falcon" such a hit, Paramount is rushing preparations for screening another Dashiell Hammett story, "The Glass Key." The leading rôle—that of the detective—will go to Alan Ladd, young newcomer who is clicking in early shots of "This Gun for Hire."

Parties Will Fill Gay Week-End at Thanksgiving

BY JUDITH CASS.

THANKSGIVING week-end will be unusually gay this year for Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, for her calendar will be filled out with the debutante set in mind. Over the holiday Mrs. Dewes will have as her house guest her debutante niece, Miss Helen Stewart Brauns of Baltimore, Md., who is coming to Chicago as soon as her Bennington college classes are out to spend Thanksgiving with her aunt.

A highlight of Miss Braun's visit will be a dinner-dance which Mrs. Dewes will give on Nov. 21, the night after Thanksgiving, for Miss Brauns and Miss Lana Jelke. The latter's father, John F. Jelke, is a cousin of Mrs. Dewes. The party will be given at the Casino and will be small.

Miss Brauns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart Brauns of Baltimore, who will present her to society at the Bachelors' Cotilion, held traditionally on the first Monday of December. Debutante Lana Jelke is planning to go to Baltimore for the party on Dec. 1. She will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Griswold III.

Saddle and Cycle Giving First Formal Dance of Season.

Automobiles will be turning into the grounds of the Saddle and Cycle club all this evening, for the club's first formal dinner-dance of the season is expected to draw a large and festive crowd. Cocktail parties in various homes will precede the dinner. The junior Byron S. Harveys have asked 20 friends to drop in for cocktails before the party, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Stratford will entertain for 14. There'll be another gathering in the home of Thomas I. Underwood, president of the club, and Mrs. Underwood. Also entertaining before the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. John Root, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dumper, who recently moved here from the east.

Mrs. Robert T. Wheeler, Mrs. Maurice Geraghty, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mr. Stratford, Mr. Root, and Mr. Underwood have planned the party. During the evening tennis trophies will be presented to the club's new champions: Miss Sarah Hinde for women's singles; Robert K. Smith, men's singles, and Henry R. Gross and Wells Farnham, men's doubles.

Newest Paintings of Clinton King Viewed by Friends

A chill autumn drizzle shrouded Michigan boulevard yesterday afternoon, but it was spring within the Albert Roullier Art galleries in the Fine Arts building, where 31 water colors by Clinton King brightened the walls.

Between 3 and 6 o'clock Mr. King and his wife, the former Narcissa Swift, greeted friends who came to see the artist's newest paintings in a private show arranged by Miss Alice Roullier. The red hem and cuffs of Mrs. King's black dress picked up the tulip shades of her husband's lovely floral pictures. Atop her blonde curls was a pixie cap of red and black feathers with several long quills shooting from the peak.

Mrs. John Carey Murphy, a drove of gold and rhinestone butterflies in flight across one shoulder, poured tea for the early comers. Later she was relieved by Mrs. King's sister, Mrs. Paul Rowan. Mrs. Alden B. Swift, her hat crowned in pink and dubonnet azalea blossoms, shared the congratulations with her son-in-law and daughter, for most of the paintings on display had been done by Mr. King at her summer home in Marion, Mass.

Among the early arrivals at the show were Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Peter G. Moon, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, with her wrist in a sling, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill II., Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Arthur Meeker Jr., Mrs. Henry Wood, and Arthur Hoyne.

Rhinestones Give Season's Fashion Flash

BY REA SEEGER.

Rhinestones make the best fashion flash of the season. You'll find new colored and black velvet ribbon [all shades included] aglitter with small rhinestones. These make coquettish bows for the hair, the new choker or dog collars, bows for the wrists when you wear the full skirted ball gowns, belts, and slipper bows . . . or anything else you wear that is made of ribbon velvet.

Among the opera fashions are the huge chiffon handkerchiefs with large script initials outlined in rhinestones . . . these must be for decoration only as the sets are extra enough to cause trouble if the handkerchiefs were used for practical purposes. White and black shine like typical opening nights with these rhinestone initials.

Evening blouses, the long fitted torso affairs, come in white, black, and colors literally shining with dozens of rhinestones spaced evenly and closely all over the things.

Short sleeves and simple high necklines plus the long fitted outline make them slick toppers with velvet skirts, pleated chiffon, circular cut crêpes, and the popular three tiered models in the long evening skirts that are sold like the blouse tops separated so that you assemble your own idea of evening splendor in two pieces.

Even more flashing and decorated are the newest evening sweaters miles and miles removed from anything resembling the strictly sports wear sweaters. They are accented with gold braid, metallic thread embroidery, rhinestones, pearl beads, and colored simulated jewels. Short sleeves and the just below the elbow length sleeves keep them festive enough for the most gala occasions. And there are all kinds of black sweaters also flashing with vivid embroidery and rhinestones and beads.

Things Amiss This Morning? 'Twas Goblins

Last night having been Halloween, or All Saints' eve, it should not surprise you this morning to find your windows soaped, the gate missing, or the cow out of the notion of giving milk. These, according to ancient belief, are typical tricks of the hobgoblins that are turned loose on the world that night.

Altho you may not have known why you bobbed for apples at last night's Hallowe'en party, the reason for that is well founded in history, too.

The holiday began as a festival of the pre-Christian Celts, altho the people of central Europe also had a feast of All Souls at the beginning of November. Both celebrated the beginning of the winter months.

"It was perhaps a natural thought," says Sir James Frazer, the mythologist, "that the approach of winter should drive the poor, shivering, hungry ghosts from the bare fields and the leafless woodlands to the shelter of the cottage."

Several other ancient festivals and customs became mixed with Hallowe'en, one of them being the Roman festival in honor of Pomona, goddess of fruits and nuts. Apples and nuts, representing the winter store of fruit, long have played an important part in the observance of the holiday.

Above all, Hallowe'en has been noted as a night for discovering the identity of one's future husband. It is unlikely however, that any Chicago maiden "wet the left sleeve of a shirt, hung it before a fire to dry and got into bed and pretended to sleep." If she had, at the stroke of 12 an apparition of her future husband would have appeared to turn the sleeve.

And it also is unlikely that any "tossed a ball of yarn out a window into a lime kiln." Had this been done the name of the future husband would have been revealed in reply to the question: "Who holds?" when the yarn was nearly rewound.

While the spirits were busy making their appearances thruout the city last night, parties in schools, fieldhouses, civic clubs, and private homes marked observance of the ancient holiday and induced many children to stay indoors and out of mischief.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

You can take it from the movie stars, the professional models, and lots of just average women who always want to look their best that the eyelash curler is a great invention. It's been a boon to women whose lashes are stubbornly straight, or perhaps sparse. Curled lashes look longer—and they look like more!

If you use an eyelash curler regularly it's wise to give the lashes plenty of brushing and oiling. And you might also be interested to know that there is a new improved model out that has a lot to recommend it.

In the new curler the upper edge, instead of being rather sharp, is turned out a little bit. This provides a cushion guard which softens contact with the upper eyelid. It also has a wider opening; this makes it a good deal easier to snare the lashes. It's sturdier, too, in the lower bow, so that you can use a good deal of pressure when you squeeze it closed, which you should do a couple of times. And the loops for the fingers are larger, which permits a better grip and greater accuracy.

These little curling gadgets are extremely popular. Naturally the upward curl is just temporary, but we do think it's possible, with the use of these, to train healthy lashes to a better sweep.

Mrs. Vie Kelley Is Married to Johnson Couch

Announcement is made by Mark Pomeroy Monroe of Kenosha, Wis., of the recent marriage in Evanston of his daughter, Mrs. Vie Monroe Kelley, to Johnson Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Johnson Couch of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Couch will be at home after today at 5959 Kenmore avenue. The news of his marriage will come as a surprise to those of "Jack" Couch's friends who did not know he had been divorced from Eleanor Chance Couch of Bryan, Tex., to whom he was married in 1935. Mr. Couch returned to Chicago about a year ago from Texas, where he had resided since his marriage. His bride has lived in Chicago for three years.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Brown of Winnetka, to Ensign Alfred A. Snowball will take place this afternoon in the chapel of the United States naval operating base in Norfolk, Va. Ensign Snowball is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Snowball of Niles, O. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at the Officers' club at the base. Miss Brown will probably return to Winnetka with her parents, for Ensign Snowball is on active duty on the U. S. S. Barnett.

Miss Brown is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school and of Bradford Junior college. Ensign Snowball was graduated from Amherst college.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Mitchell of Evanston announce the marriage on Oct. 25 of their daughter, Jean Elizabeth, to Peter S. Anderson of Denver, Colo. Mr. Anderson is the son of Mrs. John Anderson of Denver, formerly of Oak Park. Mr. Anderson and his bride will make their home in Denver. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's parents and was followed by a reception at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The former Miss Mitchell was graduated from Northwestern university.

The marriage of Miss Alberta Marie Nottke to Joseph C. J. Morlock Jr. will take place today at 4:30 o'clock at the Grace Evangelical Lutheran church. Miss Nottke is the daughter of Mrs. Anna M. Nottke of North Linder avenue. Mr. Morlock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morlock of Wolfram street. A wedding dinner and reception will be held after the ceremony. After their return from a wedding trip Mr. Morlock and his bride will reside at 2423 North Tripp avenue.

Dr. Charles E. Schulman to Speak on Church Hour

Dr. Charles E. Schulman, spiritual leader of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, will be the Chicagoland church hour preacher at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning on W-G-N. Benjamin Landsman of the Chicago City Opera company is the cantor for the service.

Cliff Dwellers to Offer Music of Its Members

Something both novel and appropriate is planned by the Cliff Dwellers for tonight's program. Guests at the club will hear a program of original orchestral music created entirely by composer members of the club. The program will be offered by the Cliff Dwellers ensemble and will include a group of songs by David Van Vactor, another member. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock, preceded by refreshments from the punch bowl at 6 o'clock.

I've had several inquiries lately about how to extract and use pomegranate juice. If you want the pure juice, you cut the pomegranate in half and extract the juice as you would orange juice. It's easier to do with one of the mechanical extractors than with the aid of a hand "squeezer," because the juice is situated in those plump seeds, and squeezing by hand is likely to cause the seeds to fly in several directions with a resulting spattering of red juice.

Pomegranate juice may be used by itself, but it is combined with orange or pineapple juice more frequently. Undiluted pomegranate juice is expensive, but its pleasant astringency stretches beautifully in combination with other fruit juice.

There is another way to make pomegranate juice cocktail. That is to boil the seeds in water until all of the color and flavor has been extracted, about 20 minutes, then to strain and sweeten the resulting liquid. This is a more economical method than to use the pure juice, and color and flavor thus obtained may be blended with another juice or used plain.

Pomegranate juice cocktail would be appropriate and colorful as a preliminary to Thanksgiving dinner.

If you are puzzled and confused about vitamins and good nutrition, here's a book which may help you: "America's Nutrition Primer," by Eleanora Sense, published by M. Barrows & Co., Inc., New York, and available for $1 at your book store. The little book condenses important information about vitamins, minerals and other dietary essentials, and includes some budget menus and recipes.

Another book published by the same company is called "Our Candy Recipes," by May B. Van Arsdale and Ruth Parrish Casa Emellos, and it will cost you $2. The book contains probably all the candy recipes you could wish, and discusses the science of candymaking. Home economics instructors and professional candymakers may want this book, for recipes are given in large quantity proportions as well as household size.

If there's room in your kitchen, you may like to try something that has worked out beautifully for me. I put up several little shelves directly over my kitchen table, and lined them with rows of flavorings, jars of spice and salad dressing ingredients. Olive oil, tarragon vinegar, wine vinegar, garlic vinegar bottles sit side by side, and next to them is a carafe in which I can shake together a French dressing. The shelves are convenient, and decorative.

If you can find little glass jars into which to put your herb seasonings and spices [you can buy some of them in identical jars or bottles], and then label them yourself, you'll take pride in your pretty rows of flavorings. They'll be much handier on an attractive open shelf than they were scrambled together in a cupboard!

Nov. 1, 1941.

Universal day—This month begins on a finishing up day so don't worry if it seems like the end instead of the beginning!

November—Universally this should be a big month for big business. We ought to hear much about organization of this section of defense and that group of business men. This matter of who will take orders and who will give them also will have an airing. Authority and prestige will count most. We as a people are going to be concerned with the kind of leadership we have during this month.

LAST SATURDAY'S QUESTION.

Question 10: Neither side vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Double	1 spade	Double
Pass	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
Pass	?

You are South and hold:
♠K 7 6 3 2 ♥3 ♦A K J ♣K J 9 4
What call do you make?

Answer: Three spades [or four spades]. The crux here is to realize that partner doubled one spade for penalties, hence must hold at least four reasonably high spades—he may hold five or six. At any rate, West's nonvulnerable spade bid is absolutely marked as a psychic, or the bid of a short, and weak suit, hence a spade game by your side will be the next thing to a laydown. A mere two spade bid by you [despite your pass to the double of one spade] might not encourage North enough to raise; hence, you should strongly urge such a raise by bidding three spades, or should go the whole hog and bid a spade game by yourself.

Psychic bidding is not asked of you in this examination, but the type of bid obviously made by West in the above sequence is found in every high calibre bridge game, and the situation itself is so transparent that, in pure self-defense, you must be able to size it up and take the necessary action. [Fifteen points demerit for two spades; 35 points demerit for three clubs; 50 points demerit for any other call, including a pass or double.]

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 16: Rubber bridge; North-South vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

East	South	West	North
3 diamonds	?

You are South, and hold:
♠K Q J 10 7 4 3 ♥Q J 9 ♦— ♣A K 2
What call do you make?

TODAY'S HAND.

NORTH
♥J 9
♦A 7 5

WEST
♠J 10
♥Q 8 5 4 2
♦K 6 3 2

EAST
♠Q 9 8
♥A 7 3
♦J 10 9
♣Q J 6 2

SOUTH
♠A K 5 4 2
♥K 10 6
♦Q 8 4
♣10 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 spades	[final bid]

West opened a low heart. East won and returned the suit, South winning with his king. Without bothering to plan the play of the hand, South immediately ruffed his losing heart in dummy. Thus, he made use of one of dummy's trumps as a winning card, but failed to use it as an entry. The right to lead from dummy at this point was valueless. Subsequently South lost two diamonds and a trump and, with them, his contract.

South should have seen that there was no hurry about ruffing a heart in dummy. He should have drawn two rounds of trumps. Two high clubs and a club ruff should have followed, and then the heart should have been ruffed. At this stage, a lead from dummy would have been invaluable, since South could have ruffed another club, establishing dummy's thirteenth club. The ace of diamonds would have furnished an entry for a discard and, thus, South would have made his contract.

Use Leftover Facial Cream on the Hands

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

We sat by recently when a young woman was accused of extravagance because she asked for a piece of tissue to remove the face cream from her hands.

"You ought to know what it means to have to get along on one jar of cream for a long, long time," said the accuser. "You wouldn't wipe that extra cream off on tissue paper. You'd use it on your hands."

Quite aside from the tale of a woman held over in war-torn Europe, and denied her usual supply of cosmetic products, the tip extended is a good one. When you've been using face cream, don't reach for the cleansing tissue. Use that cream, already on your hands, for hand massage purposes. It's a neat way to keep the hands soft. More important, it is the habit you'll instill in yourself to give your hands a bit of cream each and every time you cream your face, a treatment too often denied the hand skin.

A good many women manage nicely with hand cream converted out of face cream. It's softening, it has oils for lubrication, and its daily use is what matters most. One fine thing about cream on your hands is that it doesn't harm the nail polish and may, indeed, improve the cuticle around the nail bed. Furthermore, it is a known aid when nail breaking and chipping are experienced.

DORIS BLAKE'S LETTER BOX

Have you a perplexing problem on which you need friendly counsel? Write to Doris Blake in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

No Time to Wed.

"Dear Miss Blake: He has proposed to me many times, but I always refuse because I think it unfair to marry any one you do not love. He said he did not care if I loved him or not, he loved me and would always love me. I have wondered if it would be all right to marry some one who loves me very much. UNDECIDED."

Why marry just to be married? It wouldn't be fair to you or to him. You'll meet and fall in love with some one some day.

A Fickle Maiden.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am attracted to good looking fellows and when I get them to 'fall for me' I lose interest in them. It gets so that I hate the sight of them after a few weeks. My friends say I am fickle. Is this true? WORRIED."

"Fickle" seems to be the right tag for you. You like the excitement of the chase. Watch out that your heart doesn't get broken when some one you may meet and care for doesn't care for you.

Just Be Friends.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a boy three years my junior. He loves me deeply, and has done everything to prove it. He goes to college and will graduate in two years. He has asked me to marry him after graduation. Because of the difference in our ages, should I break off with him? UNDECIDED."

Be friends—nothing more. He has too long a road ahead of him for you to take him seriously.

Too Young for "Dates."

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 14. I like to go out with boys and come home early. But my mother thinks I am too young. Other girls do it. Please advise. LEONA."

You are young for "dates" but not for boy friends as well as girl friends.

Crocheted Bed Jacket

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

For feminine convalescents, or for those who enjoy the luxury of breakfast in bed, this hand knitted bed jacket is created of fine angora in a simple, drop stitch pattern. If a less expensive, but equally effective, material is desired, vicuna or two ply saxony may be used. This same jacket may be worn over evening dresses and fastened with an enormous clip instead of the bow.

For instructions in crocheting the bed jacket, No. X-392, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Stifle the Urge to Make Fun of Compliments

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

It is best, for the sake of romance, to stifle that urge to make fun of what your date says to you. For example, when he tells you that you're the girl he's been looking for in Christmas stockings, don't go off in a gale of laughter. It's just his way of trying to say something nice to you that is out of the ordinary.

Don't tell him: "All you fellows have the same line!" They have, and women know they have, but the smart girls look as if they never had heard the line before. Popular girls hear the line repeatedly. They take their compliments with grace. If said compliment seems extravagant, they may smile, or even laugh, but there's no mockery in their expressions. They lap it up, seemingly. It's not a bad idea, either.

There's something a bit too devastating to a man's pride when a girl comes back with raucous laughter over his compliments, or with the open-faced insinuation that he couldn't think up a new line. It means a lot to keep the man in good humor. Of course, if you don't care for the man and want to dismiss his attentions promptly, be curt if you want to be, altho it isn't a charming gesture under any circumstances.

It's a defense, sometimes, on the part of girls who want to pretend they don't care. Better to pretend you care a little than to be rude and charmless. The true sophisticate, the woman who has been around, who knows men and values their company, acts as if she'd just been waiting all her life to hear his tribute to her.

His Parents' Inexperience Hard on Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

When you add to that the anxiety and worry that dog each day for the mother of a first born, quite a lot of misery adds up. How often we hear a mother say: "I'm having so much more fun with my second baby. I was so tense with David all the time that, altho I adored him, I couldn't enjoy him as much." And the result of this relaxed feeling on the mother's part is frequently a more relaxed baby, and one who is sunnier, sleeps better, and eats better. Of course, this isn't always true, but it is, on the whole, the rule rather than the exception. Mothers, most of them, take their first child harder than their second, this in regard to their physical condition. Something similar happens in other ways.

The new mother wants a perfect child. She has set up for her baby, and the little boy or girl it is to be, an impossible standard. She may even have envisioned, as a girl does her ideal man, a romantic picture of the personality and appearance her child will have, and try to fit the baby into that pattern. She expected a rowdy, ruddy small son and he may be meant by nature to be gentle, a poet, a peace lover. She may have pictured a fairylike daughter, loving and dependent, and find that Old Mother Nature has deposited all the makin's of an aggressive little tomboy in her lap.

With such a setup a mother finds herself correcting, and talking, and denying, and worrying, in short, feeling as if she must do something about everything that happens. For those mothers with a first-born, here is a good letter:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"I am a firm believer in the theory that a child goes thru various 'stages' of growth, and the less fuss we make over these little phases the better off we all are. The mother, as a rule, experiments with her first-born [poor little first-born] and by the time the second child comes along she knows what to expect and is a better mother. This has been my experience.

"I am so ashamed of the way I treated my first child. I was nervous, practically a child myself. Then my second one changed things entirely. I treated her with love, just love, love, love. How much a little tender child needs love! This child grew beautifully, better than my first-born, to whom I am doing my best to make it all up now."

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—While Bernie Bierman and the Minnesota football players were chasing Northwestern hobgoblins tonight in nearby Bayport, thousands of homecomers thronged Minneapolis streets in Halloween celebrations, confidently anticipating another Gopher victory tomorrow. The Gophers, defending champions of the conference, with victories over Illinois and Michigan in Big Nine competition, are seeking their 14th consecutive triumph.

Iowa's iron men, led by Nile Kinnick, whipped Minnesota in the next to last game of the 1939 season. Previously that same year Northwestern also had trimmed the Gophers. Last year Minnesota swept eight games, including a 13 to 12 conquest of the Wildcats that made the series since Coach Lynn Waldorf took over in Evanston stand at three victories for each team. Minnesota also holds nonconference decisions this year over Washington and Pittsburgh.

Wildcats Have Incentive.

Minnesota's victory march, while still far short of the chain of 21 consecutive conquests which started with the last game of 1933 and ended with the fifth game of the 1936 season, is Northwestern's target tomorrow. By whipping Minnesota in 1936 the Wildcats not only ended the Gopher victory chain but they asserted their mastery of the Western conference. Victory tomorrow again would give Northwestern leadership in the Big Nine.

Memory of defeat in 1936 and the continued bitter competition between Minnesota and Northwestern in more recent years have produced a sell-out tomorrow that will establish a new record for the stadium. Official attendance will be 64,464, a figure that exceeds last year's homecoming throng by 300 and which also surpasses the previous all-time record of 63,237 which Notre Dame and Minnesota set in 1937.

Northwestern Checks In.

Northwestern's squad of 35 players arrived this morning, went to their headquarters in the Curtis hotel and, after lunch, advanced on the stadium for a brief drill. Tony Samarzia, sophomore tackle, was Northwestern's only absentee from the personnel that invaded Ohio State a week ago. However, Wes Fry, Wildcat back field coach, who has been suffering for 10 days with a severe cold and influenza, was taken to the university hospital this morning. Fry had a high temperature, but he insisted he would be on the sideline tomorrow afternoon.

Minnesota's three cripples, injured in the 7 to 0 defeat of Michigan last Saturday, were included in the group of 34 players sent to Bayport after a secret drill in the stadium this afternoon. Helge Pukema, guard, and Herman Frickey, left half back, are reported out of tomorrow's game, but you can be certain that Capt. Bruce Smith will play, altho he may not start against the Wildcats.

Capt. Smith Is a Passer.

Smith will play because he is Minnesota's best forward passer, and because the new rule on substitutions will permit him to be sent into the game on offense and immediately removed when Northwestern gets the ball.

The probable Minnesota starting back field of Bill Garnaas, Warren Plunkett, Bill Daley, and Bob Sweiger presents a problem in alignment on defense. This combination runs to line backers and one good defensive right half back which may leave the other spots vulnerable.

Minnesota primarily is a defensive team, so that any score, a field goal or touchdown, may be sufficient to win. One touchdown beat Michigan because Minnesota could stop the Wolverines' attack. Only two touchdowns have been scored against Minnesota this year in four games.

Zivic Loses to Robinson in 10 Rounds

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Ray [Sugar] Robinson of New York, former Inter-City Golden Gloves lightweight champion, scored the most important victory of his professional career tonight by pounding out a 10 round decision over Fritzie Zivic, the ex-champion of the welterweights, in Madison Square Garden.

The battle was fought to decide the fellow most likely to succeed as the challenger for Red Cochrane's welterweight championship, but so close was the margin at the finish, and so divided were the customers at the finish that a rematch seemed in order. And Promotor Mike Jacobs, agreeing with that opinion, immediately sat down with the handlers of both flailers to talk it over.

At the finish the Associated Press scorecard gave Robinson five rounds to four, with one even. The officials —Referee Susskind and Judges Bill Healy and Bob Cunningham—were unanimous in their verdict, but all voted the Harlem slugger the winner by just as narrow a margin.

Attendance was 20,551 and the gross gate was $61,651.

DAY'S WIFE, ER—SPARRING MATE, ASKS ANNULMENT

Davey Day, who has been having his troubles at home as well as in the ring, made a final plea before Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Sylvia Daitch, return to him.

Mrs. Daitch, however, insisted she would not live with the fighter, adding that he was violent and only wanted her as a sparring partner.

Mrs. Daitch wept and said she wanted an annulment of the marriage. Day declared that he still loved her, but was willing to have the annulment "if she wants it that way." Judge Desort indicated that he would grant the annulment Monday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 31.—The weather people this afternoon continued to promise a clear, chilly day for the Illini homecoming and Michigan football contest here tomorrow. As this is written, a 40 hour rain still is giving down, but the field is well covered. They say it will be partly cloudy when the 27th Illini-Wolverine football game gets under way before an estimated 30,000 at 2 o'clock.

Despite the tough fight the Wolverines had with Minnesota in Ann Arbor last week and the bumps the Illini were suffering simultaneously at the hands of the Irish in South Bend, both teams are expected to go on the field tomorrow practically at top strength, at least in regard to the starting warriors.

Both Beaten by Gophers.

In one respect at least the teams will enter combat on even terms—each has been whipped by Minnesota for its only Big Nine defeat. Most of the experts seem to think there are not many other points of equality.

The Illinois-Michigan series nevertheless has furnished more than its share of upsets, the most recent of which was Illinois' 16 to 7 triumph here two years ago. Some of the sharp memories based on this upset, however, were dulled last fall when the Wolverines ripped off a 28 to 0 victory. However, history is sustaining the homecomers and why should any one try to deny them their hour of pre-game reveries?

Johnson to Start.

When the game starts shortly after a 19 gun salute to Gov. Dwight Green has been fired and the spectators have been given a chance to count to see if there really are 300 pieces in Illinois' specially augmented 300 piece band, Coach Bob Zuppke will send out a crew reputed to weigh about 10 pounds per man under the tonnage of the boys Coach Fritz Crisler will employ. To make up some of this poundage difference, Zup probably will give Nate Johnson the left tackle assignment. Johnson, who weighs 218, will be making his first appearance of the year in a starting lineup.

Liz Astroth, who played so well at quarter against Notre Dame last week, will be acting captain tomorrow and do most of the quarter backing. Dick Good, who saw limited service at Notre Dame because of an ailing leg, has improved somewhat and probably will be sent in for some expert passing tomorrow. Last year Good had the highest Big Nine percentage for pass completions, according to local statistics, and was leader in yardage.

Wonder About Westfall, Kuzma.

Teaming with Astroth in the starting back field will be Don Griffin, Jimmy Smith, and Myron Pfeifer. All did well against Notre Dame.

It is said the Illini are in a quandary about the gent they should watch most carefully. They have heard about Capt. Bob Westfall and have had first hand experience with his famed spinning technique. They also have heard about Tom Kuzma, tho they haven't seen this versatile young fellow in action.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Notre Dame and Army, football's oldest continuous intersectional rivals, have produced some of the most thrilling contests the gridiron has known, but only once since their series began in 1913 has there been ill feeling between the teams. . . . That was 20 years ago this fall when the game was last played at West Point. . . . Due largely to the brilliance of George Gipp, Notre Dame had won by 12 to 9 in 1919 and 27 to 17 in 1920. . . . With Gipp gone, the Cadets thought they had a good chance to check the South Benders' victory string in 1921. . . . But they had underrated the efficiency of Knute Rockne's new forward pass battery, John Mohardt, now a Chicago physician and surgeon, and Roger Kiley, who recently was appointed to the Illinois Appellate court, and they had trouble no end holding the Irish to a 28 to 0 score. . . . It wasn't Mohardt's accurate tosses to Kiley, however, that brought on the trouble. . . . It was the perfection of the Notre Dame back field shift. . . . Coach C. W. Daly of the Army warned officials before the game to make sure that the Irish backs came to a complete stop before the ball was snapped. . . . He declared most back field shifts were illegal. . . . Rockne insisted the maneuver he had developed was within the rules.

Between halves Coach Daly upbraided the officials for their refusal to penalize Notre Dame. . . . According to one of the New York writers who covered the game, Daly demanded that the referee withdraw from his assignment, but the official was obdurate and finished the contest. . . . The argument among Rockne, Daly, and the officials became so heated it looked at one time as if the game might be called off. . . . To settle the dispute Rockne ordered Quarter Back Frank Thomas, now head coach at Alabama, to call all plays in the second half from short punt formation with no shift. . . . This curb on the Irish offense didn't slow the team's attack, for it made one touchdown in the third quarter and another in the fourth. . . . The officials were Ed Thorpe of De La Salle, referee; E. B. Cochems of Wisconsin, umpire; H. W. Kersburg of Harvard, head linesman, and H. J. Costello of Georgetown, field judge. . . . The game was moved to Ebbets field, Brooklyn, in 1922, which incidentally was the sophomore year of a combination that has lived in gridiron lore as the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame. . . . The 1923 contest was shifted to the Polo Grounds and every remaining game has been played there or at Yankee stadium except in 1930 when the last team coached by Rockne won a 7 to 6 victory in the snow and mud of Chicago's Soldiers' field.

[To Spring.]

Long after you are gone,
Your joys live on
And I can hear your song,
Tho nature's wan.

Long after robins flee
And winter's born,
Your smile will stay with me
Tho memory's worn.

Long after there is snow
I'll feel you still;
The warmth of you, I know
Frost cannot chill.

Long after some forget
This heart will yearn,
With mood and fancy set
For your return.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 31.—The Badgers, those same boys who for two weeks have been so torrid that they burned up Iowa and Indiana, will be treated to something new tomorrow in exchange for whatever work they may have to do against Syracuse to attain a third straight triumph.

The treat for the Badgers will be Ken Beehner, the Orange center who turns his back on his opponents while on offense, flips the ball to a fellow back and a moment later has the oval back in his hands or flits around as a blocker.

Solem Is a Slicker.

This bit of trickery, devised by Coach Ossie Solem, is said to be the big item in the Syracuse répertoire, but the Badgers, while curious to see how Beehner operates, are not exactly fearful of the consequences. Instead, they are concentrating their fears on the speed of the easterners' back field, not to mention the 147 pound Bunky Morris, who specializes in drop kicking.

The Badgers, who have used the same starting lineup for three games in a row, will be slightly rearranged this time. The line will be the same and two of the backs will be at their regular posts. With Bud Seelinger resting his trick knee, a new left half starter will be uncovered in Frank Riewer, sophomore from Milwaukee. As a reward for his brilliance against Indiana, Ted Damos of Waukegan will draw the right half berth ordinarily occupied by Mark Hoskins, but the latter, experienced on either side of the full back, will be in there eventually at one place or the other.

Here Are Two to Watch.

The two Badger backs who have been starting games are Tom Farris and the sophomore cyclone, Pat Harder. This pair alone should be enough to make the Orangemen regret they set out to see the country. Harder, 190 pounds of running, plunging, kicking TNT, is pacing the Big Nine point collectors. Last week-end alone his yardage was 125 and the week previous 82. As for Farris, the Orangemen will have to give him more than passing attention if he should abandon his blocking rôle and start pitching passes.

The Syracuse squad stopped in this afternoon for a workout before going to Janesville for the night and Beehner was able to demonstrate Solem's idea of how a center should play. He doesn't bend over, as is the custom with centers who are headed toward the opposition. He squats down, much like a kid shooting marbles, the ball held at his feet.

It's All Very Strange.

It wasn't the position assumed by Beehner, however, that caused the furor a few weeks ago when Syracuse was beaten, 6 to 0, by Cornell. What the officials ruled out was the play in which Beehner, after flipping the ball to a back, dashed over to grab a lateral from the same back. The officials contended that the play wasn't legal unless the center made a complete turn and went the necessary distance back of the line of scrimmage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 31. — You can't escape the impression this Halloween that Army and Notre Dame, who meet before 76,000 in Yankee stadium tomorrow, are some pumpkins.

Steve Juzwik.

Football's oldest intersectional rivals come up to their 28th annual battle as two of the nation's few undefeated, untied major elevens. Red Blaik, who was recalled from Dartmouth to revive the gridiron prestige of West Point, his alma mater, has led the Cadets to successive victories over The Citadel, Virginia Military institute, Yale, and Columbia.

Frank Leahy, who was brought back from Boston college to carry on Notre Dame's rich gridiron tradition, has turned out in his first year a team that has whipped Arizona, Indiana, Georgia Tech, Carnegie Tech, and Illinois.

It's Always a Sellout.

Yankee stadium was sold out, as usual, many weeks ago. Even in years when one team or the other wasn't up to standard, New York's largest athletic plant was inadequate to accommodate the throngs who long have looked upon the meeting of Army and Notre Dame as the tops in football entertainment. The unblemished records of the rivals this year have made the task of ticket distribution more difficult than ever.

There are so many out of town fans in New York that you can't buy a seat for any of the leading Broadway shows tonight or tomorrow night. The more popular night club spots are turning away customers. Hotel men, restaurateurs, and theater proprietors say Army and Notre Dame bring the best spending crowd of the year.

Records Mean Nothing.

Notre Dame, which is encamped at the Westchester Biltmore Country club in Rye, finds itself in much the same position as at this stage of the 1940 campaign. The Irish last year came east unbeaten. They were an overwhelming favorite to whip the weakest Army team in a decade. Those of you who follow this famous series will recall that Notre Dame squeezed out a 7 to 0 victory on an 86 yard run by Steve Juzwik, which was the only offensive spark the team showed that day. Army was vastly superior in every department except punting.

Startling form reversals probably account for the extraordinary popularity of the Army-Notre Dame series. It makes no difference what either team has done against preliminary foes.

Cadets Are Victory Hungry.

Army last beat Notre Dame in 1931, 12 to 0. The Cadets never were able to defeat the Irish in Elmer Layden's régime, altho they got away with a 6 to 6 tie in 1935. The series stands at 20 victories for Notre Dame, 5 for Army, and there have been 2 ties.

Leahy expects to employ the same starting lineup he has used in all 1941 games. Army's battle front will have one change. Jere Maupin, tail back, incurred a knee injury against Columbia last Saturday and Coach Blaik said after today's workout in Yankee stadium that he planned to use Ralph Hill, a sophomore flash, at right half back.

Hill Has a Bright Future.

West Point supporters who have been following the team in its early games predict a brilliant career for Hill. Notre Dame, however, has a sophomore back who may be a match for him tomorrow. We refer to Angelo Bertelli, who has completed 37 out of 62 forward passes for 571 yards. The Irish have two other offensive stars in Juzwik, who has caught 11 of Bertelli's tosses for a total gain of 245 yards, and Dippy Evans, whose 326 yards in 78 trips lead the team's ground gaining department.

CHICAGO RACING SEASON TO END AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Chicago racing season, which began on the last Saturday of April, will end this afternoon after 163 days of the most successful operations in the history of the sport in this area. When the betting machines close for the eighth race at Sportsman's Park this afternoon the total 1941 wagering for the five Chicago district tracks will approximate $56,000,000.

Arlington Park headed the handle with $15,563,070, followed by Washington Park with $12,851,561. Their coordinated meetings ran for 34 days and 32 days, respectively, from late June until early September.

Hawthorne handled $10,233,907 at its 30 day meeting, and Lincoln Fields betting totaled $7,141,122 for the same duration. During Sportsman's Park 19 day spring meeting $5,029,327 went thru the machines, and despite recent unfavorable weather this track is expected to go over $5,000,000 again during the 18 day session which ends this afternoon.

In the course of the season Chicago race fans have seen most of the leading horses of the country perform, including Alsab among the juveniles, Whirlaway in the 3 year old class, and Big Pebble and Haltal in the handicap division. Purse distribution was higher than ever before undertaken by Chicago tracks. The disbursement at Arlington and Washington was higher than in any other section of the country for the comparable period.

The getaway program at Sportsman's Park this afternoon will be headed by the 7 furlong Dearborn handicap, which has drawn a field of 13 eligibles in the overnight entries. These include Crossbow II., De Kalb, Chance Sord, All Lizzie, Uncle Walter, and other capable sprinters.

Caravans to Move Off.

Following the closing of Sportsman's Park the horse caravans will move off in many directions, some going to Maryland and others to the farms to freshen up before the opening of the winter campaigns at Miami and New Orleans.

Yesterday's racing, which was run off on a sloppy track in a cold drizzle, was a bit tough on the favorites, but the secondary choices went well, with an occasional long shot breaking into the money to add a little variety.

Hasty Star made a runaway of the 5 furlong Halloween Purse, main event of the day. She took the lead with a rush immediately after the break, opened up a lead of five lengths after swinging into the back stretch, and came home easily, two and a half lengths ahead of Weisenheimer, which had been her closest pursuer most of the way. Valtitle was third, while the odds on favorite, Winlette, was getting in last in the field of five. The prices on the winner were $12.20, $5.80, and $3.

90-1 Shot Third.

Matchless, a 90 to 1 shot, landed third place in the opening race to pay $18.40 to show. Hechal, the 5 to 1 third choice, beat Hada Moon, the second choice, by two lengths, while the 8 to 5 favorite, Little Tramp, was running out of the money.

Blue Star, a 45 to 1 shot, managed to show in the third race at a price of $17. He finished behind Joe Fisher and Tempting Witch, which shared second choice in the betting at 4 to 1. The 6 to 5 favorite, Grimaldi, was unable to do better than fifth.

Mallards Are Plentiful on Illinois River

BY BOB BECKER.

Mr. Duck Hunter, you'll see more mallards in the sky when you go hunting along the Illinois river this week-end. A lot of greenheads have come down, according to Frank Bellrose Jr., assistant game technician of the Illinois Natural History survey, who confirms the report given exclusively in this department several days ago regarding a big flight of ducks moving into the Illinois river bottomlands.

Bellrose says the migration includes mallards, bluebills, and canvasbacks. The mallards number about 600,000 on the basis of Bellrose's checks of the various lakes and sloughs. This is a larger number of greenheads than was on the river at this time last season. The flight came in with the storm early in the week.

Pintails Have Gone South.

The pintails and baldpate ducks are less numerous than a week ago. Many of them have gone south. Right now there are more baldpates and sprigs on the lakes near the lower Sangamon than anywhere else in the valley.

Bellrose points out in his report on duck flights that just about all the bluewing teal have left the valley, which is not surprising because these speedy birds do not stay very long in this latitude. They are early migrants and always eager to get out of cool weather.

Bluebills Are Numerous.

The number of diving ducks on the river this week-end reflects the gradual upturn in the population of these birds. The bluebills in the valley are quite numerous. In fact, there are as many of them down there now as were found along the Illinois on Nov. 11 last year. [Lake Peoria alone has a flock of about 37,000].

The ringneck or blackjack duck, one of our favorites because of its speed and beauty in flight, also is abundant along the river and a big flight of canvasbacks also has arrived in the Illinois river valley. Bellrose estimates that there are at least 3,000 on different lakes. This migration is about 10 days ahead of schedule.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 31.—This is not going to be a Halloween story. It would be very easy in view of tomorrow's football contest here between Iowa and Indiana to dwell on broom-riding witches and pumpkin-polled spectres, but it won't be necessary.

The game will bring together a couple of teams which have managed to collect just one victory each, the Hoosiers having won one in four [against Nebraska] and the Hawkeyes having started off with a triumph over Drake. They'll play in partly cloudy weather, a distinct improvement over today's rain and wind.

It is significant that in seven games between the two teams the Hoosiers, under the direction of Alvin Nugent [Bo] McMillin, never have lost a November competition with the Hawkeyes. In those same seven years Bo's lads have given up just one game, and that was played in October two years ago. That duel wound up, 32 to 29, a result that approximated a basketball score.

The Faithful Return.

For the Iowa grads who are filling up this town tonight to a point where there will be more than 30,000 in attendance it's still homecoming. In utter disregard of the elements, which have saturated the tarpaulin laid over the field since Wednesday, they are piling in to watch a Hawkeye team that nearly knocked a Michigan team out of its own field, and lost a one point decision last Saturday to Purdue.

This is the 30th homecoming celebration for Iowans. The Hawkeyes have come up with a quite creditable record on annual assemblages, having won 13, lost as many, and tied 3. In their series with the Hoosiers the Gold and Black boys have won five, lost five, and tied three. The last homecoming game, in respect to the aforesaid November hex that Indiana appears to exercise over them, began in 1931 when the Hawkeyes played a scoreless tie with their guests.

There's Mr. Hillenbrand.

The visitors to this moist scene are well aware of the presence of one William Hillenbrand, a 19 year old resident of Evansville, Ind., who has been doing a number of chores for Indiana. Willie has scored four touchdowns for the Hoosiers and has figured directly in the scoring of ten out of eleven goal crossings his team has made.

On the other hand, Col. McMillin and his 33 hands, who arrived late this afternoon for a bit of exercise on the Coe college turf at nearby Cedar Rapids, were worried about one James Walker and one William Green. The latter is one of the better ball carriers of the Western conference and Walker is carrying on the tradition of another great Iowa tackle, one Duke Slater.

Hope was raised today that Bill Dieni, Iowa's injured center and captain, will be ready. Trainers reported that Diehl's bad leg was improved and would start. He turned up yesterday with a bad charley horse that kept him out of drill.

Jimmy Demaret of Texas finished the first round of the 72-hole medal play with a 72 and gained a tie for sixth with three others. Sammy Snead, the other visitor from the United States, soared to 73.

New York, Oct. 31.—Luckless Purdue, already beaten twice in photo finishes by two of the country's better football teams during the first half of the season, has the misfortune of being tossed in against unbeaten and untied Fordham in the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

The gentlemen who talk in terms of hard cash have installed the bowl-aspiring Rams as favorite at something like 4 to 1. Others, however, do not hesitate to talk about an upset. Such an explosion could do much to recoup Purdue's season, add another bouquet to Western conference football, and put a crimp in post-season invitations for the Fordham powerhouse.

Crowley Fears Purdue.

Coach Jimmy Crowley and Ed Kosky, who scouted the Boilermakers, have been drumming in the ears of their aspiring lads that now is no time to let down. All week they have been singing the ditty that Purdue well may be their toughest opponent of the year.

A fast, capable line and as plentiful a supply of good backs as will be found on the squad make Fordham the top-heavy favorite it is. But coaches and fans alike profess to be fearful that another of those defensive lapses, for which the 1941 Rams have become noted, might be fatal against Purdue.

Has Strong Pass Defense.

Against a team like this, that also has permitted opponents only seven pass completions in four games, the Fordham adherents say they don't like to think of what another mid-game letdown might mean. Southern Methodist, North Carolina, and Texas Christian all managed to catch or pass the Rams, only to feel the fury of a Fordham counter-rally. Against Purdue, which has shown staying power, Kosky is afraid such a comeback would not be easy.

The Purdue line, led by Co-Captains Jim Miller and Tom Melton, is considered an extremely tough one in which to punch holes. Melton, kept out of the Iowa game by an ankle injury, is expected to start, tho coach Mal Elward said he is not in top shape.

Another casualty, in the back field, is Kenneth Smock, who will be replaced as starting left half by Bob Chester. Marion Carter also is expected to see service in this post. Robert Hajzyk will be at quarter. Francis Meakim at right half will be Purdue's chief passing threat, and battering John Petty will be at full.

Both squads took it easy in final drills today. The Boilermakers arrived this morning at their Westchester Country club hideout, where they drilled this afternoon. They will not come into town until just before game time.

Buddy Baer to Fight Louis Jan. 2? Jacobs Says 'No'

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 31 (AP).—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max and Buddy Baer, today said he had accepted Promoter Mike Jacobs' terms for a bout with Joe Louis which will give Buddy a second chance at the heavyweight title. Hoffman said the contest was scheduled for the night of Jan. 2 in Madison Square Garden, New York, as a navy benefit. Louis gained a technical knockout over Buddy in Washington, D. C., last May 23. In New York, Jacobs denied closing the deal and said any announcement was premature.

Western Michigan Frosh Tie American P. E., 0-0

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 31 [Special].—The American College of Physical Education and Western Michigan frosh football team played a scoreless tie here today. The Bronco frosh lost the only scoring chance when held for downs a foot from the goal line in the opening period.

Phillips Defeats Farragut, 12 to 6, for Sixth Straight

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Wendell Phillips High made another notable gain toward its big objective—Mayor Kelly's All-City game on Nov. 29—yesterday. The south siders found considerable difficulty in a muddy field and steady rain, but managed to score two touchdowns to defeat Farragut, 12 to 6, in Normal park. It was Phillips' sixth consecutive victory in the central section of the Public School league.

Otis Finney, quarter back, who has been sharing individual honors with Left Half Back Ranis Thomas, scored the winning touchdowns on two brilliant runs in the second quarter. Finney produced the first score on a thirty-five yard run, and a short time later he caught a lateral from Thomas and dashed forty yards to cross the Farragut goal line. Jim Gervais, right half back, scored Farragut's touchdown in the final period on a short plunge.

Austin Opposes Foreman.

Phillips' eleven and its coach, Lenny Sachs, will return to Normal park this afternoon to watch Tilden Tech battle Englewood. Tilden Tech, which last appeared in the league finals in 1928, this season has scored five straight victories and will meet Phillips for the central zone title next Friday afternoon in Shewbridge field. The sectional champion will meet Austin or Crane Tech in the semi-final round on Nov. 15.

Austin, which is technically tied with Crane Tech in the west division, will end its schedule against Foreman in Hanson park, Central and Fullerton avenues, this afternoon. Crane Tech, held to a scoreless tie by Foreman last Saturday, is idle this afternoon and concludes its sectional schedule against Kelvyn Park next Saturday.

Fenger and Harper Clash.

Fenger and Senn expect to advance to the semi-finals with victories today. Fenger meets Harper on Pullman Tech field, and Senn faces Sullivan in Winnemac park, Leavitt and Winnemac avenues. The Phillips-Farragut lineup:

MICHIGAN STATE FACES MISSOURI IN HOMECOMING

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 31 [Special].—Michigan State will attempt to prove to 20,000 homecoming fans tomorrow afternoon that a little team can be just as potent and good as a big team. The Spartans will face Missouri on Macklin field in a game that will see the home forces decidedly the underdogs.

Missouri Eleven Strong.

Light rain fell intermittently thruout today, tho the temperature was steady at 48, indicating the game may be played in wet weather but not in cold.

Coach Don Faurot has a powerful Missouri eleven. Led by a huge line, the Tigers last Saturday turned back Nebraska, 6 to 0. The only defeat suffered so far this season was a 12 to 7 setback by Ohio State in the opening game of the season.

The Missouri back field is led by Bob Stuber, 195 pound right half. He has able assistants in Harry Ice, Red Wade, and Ron Reece. Missouri relies mainly on the T formation mixed in with a spread double wingback and a single wingback formation.

Rely on Passes.

The Spartans have spent the last week strengthening their defense and sharpening their aerial thrusts. They will be forced to depend on the arms of Dick Kleppe and Wyman Davis to gain ground against the heavy Missouri line. Lineup:

Ohio State and Pitt to Battle Before 50,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP).—Word from Pittsburgh's football strategy board today was that the revised Panther lineup which will take the field against Ohio State in the Pitt stadium tomorrow will be the strongest the Panthers have been able to muster this season.

A crowd of 50,000—the season's record here—is expected to see this changed lineup try to do what the Panthers have been unable to do in four starts this year—win a game. But Coach Charlie Bowser today had nothing more substantial than hope that Pitt could turn back a strong Ohio eleven—rebounding from last week's defeat by Northwestern and reinforced by recovery from injury of two full backs, Jack Graf and Dick Burgett.

Showers Are Predicted.

Occasional showers are predicted for tomorrow, but that isn't expected to affect either team. The two elevens average about the same in weight.

Radio broadcast: WISN, Milwaukee, 2 p. m.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 31 [Special].—University of Mississippi's famous "H" twins—Junie Hovious and Merle Hapes—will make the only midwestern appearance of their varsity careers tomorrow afternoon when Coach Harry Mehre's Rebels will appear in Marquette university's 21st annual homecoming game in the Hilltop stadium.

Half Back Hovious and Full Back Hapes who, together with 140 pound Half Back Jackie Flack, led Ole Miss to last week's triumph over Tulane, will be the southerners' main reliances as they seek to keep alive their chances for high national rating. The Rebs are undefeated since an early season setback by Georgetown.

Marquette Relies on Passes.

Marquette, somewhat crippled since last week's game with Duquesne, is pinning its hopes on the right arm of Jimmy Richardson, left half back and forward passer, who has completed 34 of his 47 tosses this fall. Coach Tom Stidham also has dressed up the running attack and hopes to see it click against Mississippi.

It's the Fifth Meeting.

The game will be the fifth between the two schools. Marquette defeated the Rebels here in 1931, 1935, and 1936, but lost the 1933 engagement.

Both teams worked out lightly here this afternoon and were guests at a downtown theater tonight. Rain is forecast for tomorrow afternoon.

MBS TO SPREAD STOCK AMONG SIX MORE MEMBERS

Nine Radio Companies to Share Control.

Stock in the Mutual Broadcasting system, heretofore held by three original stockholding members, is to be distributed among six additional members of the network, W. E. Macfarlane, president of the Mutual, announced yesterday. The network stock will be held by nine stations instead of three as heretofore.

The additional sharing of the capital stock will give six other broadcasting companies equal participation with W-G-N, Inc., Chicago; WOR, New York, and the Don Lee Broadcasting system of California, the original stock owning members in underwriting and managing the corporation.

New Members of Network.

The new participants are the Baltimore Radio Show, Inc., owners of WFBR, Baltimore; Cincinnati Times Star company, WKRC, Cincinnati; the Colonial Network, Inc. of New England; Pennsylvania Broadcasting company, WIP, Philadelphia; United Broadcasting company, WHK, WCLE, Cleveland, and WHKC, Columbus, O., and WCAE, Pittsburgh.

Under the new arrangement Mutual will have nine stockholding members geographically distributed from coast to coast. Mr. Macfarlane said that the enlargement of stock ownership further enhances the mutuality of the corporation and the faith of the key stations of the network in its future operations.

Points to Rapid Growth.

Mr. Macfarlane cited the rapid growth and success of the network as a sound basis for the expansion of stock ownership. The network, which rounded out seven years of operation last month, now has 190 affiliated and member stations in the United States, Canada, and Hawaii. Many affiliates have been added recently and the volume of business has increased steadily.

The network has achieved dominance in the sports broadcasting field, broadcasting exclusively such events as the world series, the major championship boxing bouts; the playoff game of the National Professional Football league, the Cotton bowl, and East-West intersectional games.

Mutual has acquired a theater, the former Maxine Elliott theater in New York City, for the presentation of outstanding broadcasts in Manhattan.

FEDERAL BOARD STARTS HEARING IN MINE DISPUTE

Case Unprecedented Because of Issue.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—The National Defense Mediation board today began its deliberations on the captive mines labor dispute. The case is unprecedented in that the board will be forced to decide whether a closed shop contract can be demanded in an arms industry.

The dispute is between the United Mines Workers of America, of which John L. Lewis is president, and the big steel companies operating the soft coal mines, known as captive mines. When it first came before the board in recent weeks the board dodged the closed shop issue and merely suggested means of arbitrating the dispute, which Lewis rejected.

Now, however, under specific instructions from President Roosevelt, the board is to make final recommendations and both sides to the controversy have agreed to give the board a chance—up to Nov. 15 as far as Lewis is concerned.

Closed Shop Sole Issue.

The closed shop is the only issue at stake. The mine operators refused to accept Lewis' demands for a closed shop contract altho they have agreed to wage and hour provisions requested by the union.

The striking miners returned to work last night and this morning after a four day walkout ordered by Lewis while negotiations were continuing.

William H. Davis, chairman of the mediation board, wrote Lewis today that the board will consider his union shop demands "carefully, calmly, and not under pressure." Davis promised final recommendations some time next week. The board met in executive session and selected a panel to decide the case. It will study a 168 page digest of earlier hearings on the case before a three man panel.

Hearing Adjourns to Monday.

After a five hour discussion the board adjourned to Monday, when Lewis and steel company representatives will be requested to appear before it. Davis announced the following personnel for the 11 man board to rule on the dispute:

FOR THE PUBLIC—Davis, Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, and Charles E. Wyzanski, attached to the labor department.

FOR LABOR—President Philip Murray of the CIO; Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW; George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the AFL, and William A. Calvin, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers and Iron Shipbuilders of America [AFL], an alternate who was appointed to the board by President Roosevelt earlier this week.

FOR EMPLOYERS—Cyrus Ching, vice president of the United States Rubber company; Roger D. Lapham, chairman of the board for American-Hawaiian Steamship company; Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington, D. C., Post.

Meanwhile the congressional attack on Lewis continued, with Sen. Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] calling Lewis a "false friend" of labor. McKellar asked labor to rid itself of "wild and reckless leadership," saying labor has no right to strike against the government.

Roosevelt Views Situation.

Mr. Roosevelt at his press conference dodged comment on anti-strike legislation, which earlier in the week he publicly said was under consideration, and privately informed his congressional leaders such recommendations would be sent to congress promptly to break the Lewis strike.

He acknowledged today the preparedness labor situation had taken a recent turn for the worse, but contended it was better than at the outset of the rearmament program. He agreed that in some specific instances there had been a substantial slowing down of rearmament production because of strikes but refused to discuss plans for requesting new anti-strike powers.

BRITAIN TO U. S. WAR RISK CARGO RATES REDUCED

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—War risk insurance rates on shipments from the British Isles to the United States were cut today to 7½ per cent of the value of cargoes from the 10 per cent rate which has applied more than a year.

Decision to reduce the charge was made by American marine insurance underwriters on the basis of knowledge of the trans-Atlantic shipping situation, but they declined to discuss their reasons. The war risk rate on exports from the United States to Great Britain remains at 10 per cent.

The reduction applies to shipments leaving all west coast ports of the British Isles, including all Ireland, and English channel ports not east of Southampton.

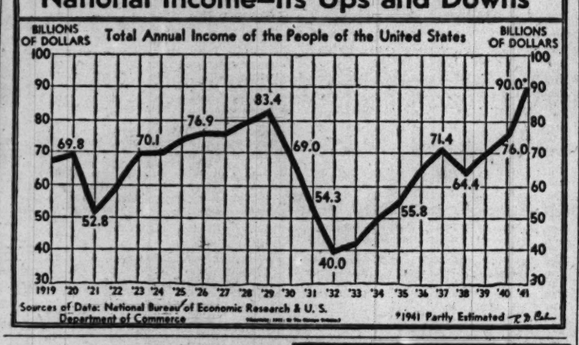
ASSERTS BRITAIN, U. S. OUTSTRIPPING AXIS IN AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION

New York, Oct. 31 [Special].—The United States and Britain are outstripping the axis in the production of warplanes, T. P. Wright, technical expert for the Office of Production Management, said today on the basis of a survey.

Wright found that the British production, plus one-half of United States output, exceeded that of the axis countries despite their added production in conquered European countries.

He says that United States warplane output will pass 2,400 a month at the end of 1941, British production will touch 1,900, and German output will rise to 2,300 from the 2,200 estimated last January.

National Income—Its Ups and Downs



Blames Steel Priority Rule for 'Shortage'

There is no steel shortage in this country, John N. Van Deventer, president and editor of Iron Age, told the Executives' club of Chicago meeting in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. He laid the confusion in the distribution of steel among all users to the use of priorities, declaring that many bottlenecks would vanish were careful planning substituted for the system of priorities.

"Aside from a few specialized alloys of steel, our producing capacity is great enough to satisfy every conceivable demand of defense and aid under the lend-lease act and leave enough over to keep our nondefense industries from starving to death," Van Deventer asserted. "No studies or estimates yet made, however grandiose, have shown how defense uses of steel need more than 40 per cent of our present capacity. That is an outside figure."

Enough for Civilian Use.

On a basis of the total of 80 million tons expected to be produced this year the 60 per cent which should be available to normal civilian uses amounts to 48,000,000 tons, or enough to permit civilian industries to do business on their 1939 basis, he declared. In 1939 total ingot production was 52,500,000 tons, and that included aid to France and England.

Should civilian users of steel be limited to only 36 per cent of present capacity they would be almost as well off as all our industries were in 1938 when total production was 31,500,000 tons, he said.

"So long as we have at least 60 per cent of our present steel making capacity theoretically available for nondefense business, the chief reason for any one's not getting at least some of the steel he needs is the maladjustment of distribution to capacity," he declared. "The reason for this is that priorities are being used as a substitute for planning."

Careful Planning Proposed.

Van Deventer said priorities, as now handed out, are an easy way to avoid the much harder work of planning and scheduling deliveries in accordance with needs. They produce shortages and bottlenecks; they cause people who need material and should have it to go without because more fortunate people demand everything at once and come near getting it, he declared.

He contended that steel allocations should be based on scientific rationing—similar to the scientific scheduling of work thru a plant by which parts come to the assembly floor when needed instead of being piled up needlessly in inventories in other departments.

CARNEGIE FUEL SUPPLY PERILED BY NEW STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP).—A river boat strike tonight leveled another threat at the fuel supply of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company just as the firm's other labor troubles had appeared headed toward settlement.

The walkout was called by the AFL Master, Mates and Pilots organization, to enforce demands for wage increases and working condition adjustments. All shipping from coal mines and coke ovens to the steel mills would be stopped, union leaders said.

This disturbance followed resumption of production at the company's Homestead works after a two day strike shutdown. At the firm's Irvin works, work had been interrupted twice because of dues collection pickets.

A coal barge, such as used by Carnegie-Illinois, carries 1,000 tons of fuel as compared with a railroad car capacity of about 50. A hurry call was sent to the railroads for additional cars.

Shipyard Strike Settled.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—A five day strike of 5,800 workers of the busy Robins Drydock and Repair company's Brooklyn shipyards was settled today when the firm and the Industrial Marine and Shipbuilding Workers' union [CIO] agreed on wage increases which the membership ratified.

RETAIL TRADE UNEVEN; 10 TO 16% ABOVE YEAR AGO

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The general business situation was uneven this week, Dun & Bradstreet said today.

"Lower temperatures gave some stimulus to consumer spending for seasonal goods," the agency said, "but even better weather conditions combined with special sales apparently failed to produce any show of interest comparable to that of the rush days of August and September.

"Manufacturers as well as retailers continued to note a lull in stockup buying. Generally, deliveries were improved. There were still many lines, however, in which demand, altho lower, continued to exceed the ability of the industry to meet it."

BIGGERS TAKES LEAVE OF ABSENCE FROM HIS LEND-LEASE POSITION

John D. Biggers.

In the early days of the National Defense Advisory council, William S. Knudsen chose Biggers as his assistant. Later, when the Office of Production Management was formed, Knudsen designated Biggers production chief. More recently he was named special minister to Great Britain on lend-lease aid.

OPA Asks Cut in Steel Freight Rates to West

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP).—Railroads were asked by the government today to make reductions of 9 to 28 cents a hundred pounds in freight rates on carload shipments of iron and steel to the west coast.

The request, made by the Office of Price Administration on behalf of a number of government agencies, was described as an emergency measure designed to end disruption of Pacific coast iron and steel markets.

The request was transmitted to the Transcontinental Freight bureau in Chicago, and organizations maintained by the railroads for consideration of freight rates.

Cite Diversion of Shipping.

OPA said diversion of intercoastal shipping, normally used for iron-steel freight, to foreign service had forced almost exclusive all-rail routing from the east. Unusually large quantities of iron and steel are needed for shipbuilding and other west coast arms work and the higher rail freight charges have seriously affected markets there.

The rates proposed range from $1.15 a hundred pounds from Atlantic seaboard points to 75 cents from Colorado. They would be applicable only to carload shipments of 80,000 pounds or more. Present rates run from $1.43 from the eastern seaboard to 85 cents from Colorado. They would continue to apply on shipments under 80,000 pounds.

Allocation System Planned.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 [Special].—The Supply Priorities and Allocations board announced plans today for an allocation system for steel to replace the priorities method now in use.

Steps toward developing an allocation system have been taken in handling orders for steel plate, and the system also has been in use for some time in regard to pig iron, according to SPAB. Extension of the policy thru the entire industry will mean that distribution thru priorities ratings will be replaced gradually by direct allocations, with first emphasis on steel most needed for arms. SPAB's action followed reports that the priorities system alone was not sufficient.

OPM issued an order today giving the iron and steel industry a basic preference rating of A-3 for essential repairs. It is important, OPM officials said, that old as well as new equipment be kept up.

OPM'S ENVELOPE SHORTAGE SLOWS SCRAP INVENTORY

Reports on scrap iron and steel inventories, purchases, and sales required by the Office of Production Management priorities division by Nov. 15 may be delayed, William Pohn, president of the Chicago chapter of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, reported yesterday.

Pohn said many Chicago scrap dealers have not received the necessary forms on which the reports are to be made. He said he had been informed that the snag in the distribution of the forms results from a shortage of envelopes in OPM offices.

A factual picture of the scrap situation will not be available, Pohn said, until the reports are compiled. The order placing scrap iron and steel under full priority control last Oct. 11 indicated that excess stocks of any dealer or user may be taken over for redistribution.

BRITAIN WILL PAY FOR CANADIAN WHEAT FOR REDS

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31 [Special].—The Canadian wheat board received today from the British food control ministry an order for 150 million bushels of wheat, 50 million of which is for Russia. The price was between 85 and 90 cents a bushel, and deliveries will be made from time to time within the next year.

Last May the wheat board received an order for 120 million bushels from the British ministry and this now has been delivered, necessitating a new order being placed.

Ickes Assails Loan Chief on Alcoa Contract

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, has accused his fellow cabinet member, Jesse Jones, of an attempt at "forcing my hand into the signing of a contract that would not be in the public interest," senate defense investigators heard today.

This accusation was contained in a letter written by Ickes to Jones, federal loan administrator and secretary of commerce, on Sept. 2, protesting a contract between the Defense Plant corporation and the Aluminum Company of America for construction and operation of new production facilities.

"Frankly," Ickes wrote his colleague, "I would be reflecting on your intelligence if I supposed for a minute that you did not have in mind the dilemma in which I would find myself when the demand was made upon me to sign on the dotted line an onerous and unconscionable contract or run the risk of possible condemnation by the unthinking for not having done so."

Would Depend on Federal Power.

Ickes' letter was put into the record of the investigating committee, which also heard testimony from Alcoa officials that a new contract was being negotiated to replace the present one, and that modification of some of the provisions to which Ickes objected was being considered by the negotiators.

Oscar Ewing, Alcoa counsel, asserted that the interests of the government were "fully protected" under the present contract.

I. W. Wilson, Alcoa vice president, testified that his company had been prepared to finance expansion of production with its own funds, but that the government had preferred use of federal funds.

Ready to Pay Own Way.

"Alcoa," he declared, "is still ready to proceed to the extent of its ability in expansion on its own account."

Ickes listed these objections to the contract, among others:

lists of holders of shares in the six largest loop banks—the Continental, First National, Harris Trust, City National, Northern Trust, and American National—raised the aggregate number of owners above the 16,000 mark.

Families whose names have been preëminent in the banking history of Chicago continue to dominate the rolls. They also hold shares in outlying and suburban banks.

Listed from London to China.

George Ade, famous humorist of Brook, Ind., is among the holders listed by the assessor. Ade owns 82 shares of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock. Also listed as holding small blocks of stock in this bank are Ida Lupino, screen actress, and Orrin Tucker, orchestra leader.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental, who in 1935 owned only 50 shares, was listed as the holder of 5,019 shares last April, the same as in 1940. In addition Mrs. Lillian G. Cummings held 500 shares and their sons, Arthur J., Edward W., and Walter J. Jr., 200 shares each.

Largest Among Directors.

Cummings held the largest block of Continental stock listed for an individual director. Ranking next among the board members were William H. Mitchell with 4,007 shares, J. Q. Adams, 4,000; Edward A. Cudahy Jr., 3,375, and Chauncey B. Borland, 1,950.

Charles D. Wiman, a Continental director, acquired 273 shares during the year ended April 1, bringing his holdings to 547 shares. James R. Leavell, president of the bank, was listed as the holder of 40 shares, against 300 a year earlier.

Borland and Mitchell have become Continental directors since compilation of the 1940 lists. The Borland family controled about 10,000 shares on April 1, slightly less than a year earlier.

Kennedy Listed for 29,711.

The largest single block of Continental stock was listed for George A. Kennedy, nominee for unidentified owners. The block totaled 29,711 shares, 11 less than a year ago. Mrs. Elizabeth S. Commonwealth Edison Earns Dividend Despite Big Tax Rise

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Commonwealth Edison company will earn its $4.80 annual dividend this year by a comfortable margin despite a heavy increase in taxes that will cut into profits. This was indicated yesterday as the company disclosed earnings results for the first nine months of 1941.

The company reported net income of $19,161,753 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, equaling $1.51 a share on the stock outstanding on that date. In the corresponding 1940 period net income was $21,074,998 or $1.68 a share on the stock then outstanding.

Sources close to the company estimated that the net income for the full year 1941 will be in excess of $2 a share which would give an ample margin to continue the present $1.80 dividend rate which has been in effect for the last two years.

Shares Have Been Declining.

Commonwealth Edison shares have been declining in the market for the last week. The price dropped ⅝ yesterday to 22¼. A week earlier the stock was quoted at 24⅝, and at the beginning of October was selling at 26. Utility shares have been weak generally. The selling is traced by brokers to the dividend reductions made by large utilities in other areas.

Directors of the Consolidated Edison Company of New York recently cut the quarterly dividend rate from 50 cents to 40 cents, explaining the action was made necessary by increased taxes. Detroit Edison, which paid a dividend of 45 cents in July, made an October payment of 35 cents. United Gas Improvement company will pay a December dividend of 15 cents, compared with its distributions of 20 cents in the first three quarters.

No Change Expected.

Because Commonwealth Edison is earning its dividend by a wider margin than many other utilities, it is believed unlikely that directors will decide to change the rate now in effect. It faces the same tax problem as other companies in the industry, however. Provisions for state, federal, and local taxes for the first nine months this year totaled $29,747,854, compared with $23,221,777 in the corresponding 1940 period. As a result of the big increase in taxes, net income declined, altho operating revenues were substantially higher than in the preceding year. Sales of electricity increased 12.8 per cent in the nine months over 1940, and electric revenues were 7.1 per cent higher.

Edison Stock Range

All taxes increased, but the biggest addition resulted from the new excess profits tax under which the company incurred a liability of $3,936,200 in the first nine months. The tax was not in effect in the preceding year.

Normal Taxes Increased.

Normal federal income taxes were $9,392,903, against $7,245,784 in 1940. State, local, and miscellaneous federal taxes rose to $16,418,751 from $15,975,993.

Altho no change in the dividend rate is expected, the company may find it necessary to undertake some public financing before its present expansion program is completed. Under this program it is putting 120 million dollars into new facilities over a three year period.

Local 291 of the Department Store Employés' union [CIO] won a National Labor Relations board election yesterday to determine who would represent the warehouse employés of Marshall Field & Co.

Chrysler Net Dips Slightly as Taxes Rise

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Directors of Chrysler corporation today voted a dividend of $1.50 a common share. At the same time the big motor car manufacturing firm announced net income of the corporation and its wholly owned United States subsidiaries for the first nine months this year declined to $29,460,848, equal to $6.77 a common share, compared with $30,706,094, or $7.06 a share, in the first nine months of 1940. The decline was accounted for by an increase in tax provision to $23,000,000 from $14,400,000 in the 1940 period.

The dividend distribution will bring payments for 1941 to $6 a share, compared with $5.50 in 1940.

Asked to Double Tank Plans.

The company, now one of the largest manufacturers of army tanks, disclosed that it intended to reach full production from its present facilities by the end of the year, but that it already had been asked to double its output of medium tanks above original orders.

Chrysler engineers, it was stated, have designed an arrangement of Chrysler engines for powering medium tanks which soon will be tested.

Hopes to Keep Own Workers.

If this arrangement is successful, the company said, "it will enable Chrysler to power these tanks by the use of existing facilities and thus employ a larger number of its own workers on equipment which they are trained to operate."

Additional work for Chrysler employés, according to the report, will probably soon be provided thru the manufacture of anti-aircraft guns, sections of Martin medium bombers, and other armament projects.

O. E. RINGQUIST WILL HEAD NEW INSURANCE FIRM

O. Edward Ringquist, executive vice president of the United Mutual Fire Insurance company, Boston, Mass., yesterday was elected president of the newly formed American Mutual Reinsurance company, Ambrose B. Kelly, secretary and general manager, announced.

Fifty-three mutual fire insurance companies were represented at the first policy holders' meeting in Chicago. The company was organized under Illinois insurance laws to underwrite the obligations of mutual fire insurance companies.

Industrial Banking Firms Report Decline in Loans

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31 [Special].—Consumer loan balances of industrial banking companies totaled $305,100,000 at the end of September, compared with $309,100,000 at the end of August, the department of commerce reported today. This was the first month in almost three years that loan balances of industrial banking companies showed a decline.

URGE BREAKUP OF VAST UTILITY INTO 4 SYSTEMS

Trustees File Report on Associated Gas.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—A recommendation that the state utility system of Associated Gas & Electric corporation be broken into four separate systems was made today to federal district court by Denis J. Driscoll and Williard L. Thorp, trustees of the bankrupt corporation.

They suggested that 25 of the main operating companies be grouped as: [1] The New York-Pennsylvania system; [2] Eastern Pennsylvania-New Jersey; [3] Western Pennsylvania, and [4] Florida-Georgia.

Would Sell Remainder.

Such of the corporation's more than 120 operating companies which do not function in those areas, the trustees suggested, would be sold to provide "cash to be used for the reduction of intermediate holding company debt and the financial rehabilitation of the properties proposed to be included in the four systems." It was suggested it might even be advisable to sell the proposed Florida-Georgia system properties.

The Associated Gas system long has constituted one of the outstanding financial tangles. It was built up by Howard C. Hopson, who is in a penitentiary as the result of some of his operations, in the space of 20 years. He made it one of the biggest business enterprises in the world.

Operations Are Vast.

Last year, its operating companies sold consumers more than four billion kilowatt hours of electricity, 15 billion cubic feet of gas, 9 billion gallons of water, and 2 billion pounds of steam. The subsidiary companies operate street railways, bus lines, and ice factories, and conduct real estate businesses.

A federal court placed the whol system in the hands of the two trustees on March 10, 1940, ordering that immediate steps be taken to untangle its affairs.

In submitting its report today, the trustees told the court they had "earnestly sought a way of realizing the greatest amount possible for claimants against the estate, consistent with a realistic compliance with reasonable present day standards."

TORPEDOED SHIP CARRIES STOCKS TO LOWER LEVEL

Tax Worries Hover Round to Snipe Survivors.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Torpedoing of a United States destroyer off Iceland, plus further concern over labor and taxes, brought a slide in today's stock market of fractions to more than a point.

The news of the warship sinking was out before the opening, but during the first hour prices dipped only slightly. Selling volume then picked up substantially for a brief period and declines ran to three points or so at the worst. Activity soon slackened and setbacks were reduced in most cases at the last.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net recession of .4 of a point, at 40.4. Transfers totaled 641,490 shares, compared with 550,860 Thursday.

Sinking of Ship "Expected."

Wall street was more or less prepared for the Atlantic incident, brokers said, in view of the President's recent broadcast announcing the "shooting" had already started. The development, however, inspired many nervous holders to trim commitments pending happenings over the coming week-end.

American Tobacco common and B fell more than a point each to new 1941 bottoms. Year's lows also were posted for North American, Public Service of New Jersey, Caterpillar Tractor, and United States Gypsum.

CHICAGO PRICES FALL.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange fell sharply yesterday in transactions totaling 32,000 shares. Only 18 issues advanced, while 67 declined, and 32 closed unchanged.

Commonwealth Edison, volume leader with 6,900 shares traded, dropped ⅝ to 22¼. Other active issues included Chicago Corporation, up 1-16; Pure Oil, off ⅛; Middle West, up ¼, and Westinghouse, off ¼.

In the last half hour, after the New York close, National Cylinder Gas, Northwest Airlines, and United States Steel declined ⅛ each, while Commonwealth Edison and Borg Warner advanced ⅛, and Swift International declined ⅝.

STANDARD OIL (IND.) WILL PAY 25 CENTS EXTRA

Directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly payment of the same amount. This brought total payments this year to $1.50, the same as in 1940.

Hat Corporation of America authorized a 50 cent dividend on the class A and class B common shares, the first payments on the issues since Oct. 25, 1940. Bourjois, Inc., New York maker of cosmetics, announced a dividend of $1.

Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation declared a year-end dividend of 75 cents bringing total payments this year to $2.25 against $1.50 last year. Payments of 50 cents were made in each of the preceding quarters.

The De Soto Securities company, which owned more than 9,000 shares of Continental stock, was listed as the holder of 1,225 shares of the Harris Trust. De Soto is a holding company controled by members of the Eckhart family. Miss Shirley Farr owned 2,475.

Kemper Adds to Holdings.

The City National Bank and Trust company list showed that James S. Kemper, a director, added 120 shares during the year to give him a total on April 1 of 170. John Goodridge, another City National director, acquired 30 shares. Rawleigh Warner bought two shares for a total of 129 and Richard Wagner, a new director, was listed as the holder of ten shares.

Chicago corporation, an investing company, was by far the largest holder of City National stock, with a block of 10,434 shares. Central Illinois Securities corporation held 6,017 and Halsey, Stuart & Co., 2,000. Robert L. Milligan owned 1,970, Henry M. Soper, 1,459, and Gen. Charles G. Dawes, chairman of the board and former vice president of the United States, 1,055 shares.

With the exception of H. Belin Voorhees, who continued to hold 35 shares, every director of the American National Bank and Trust company added to his holdings. Daniel Peterkin, a new director, was listed as the owner of 300 shares. Largest holders were Lillie W. Straus with 800 shares and Lawrence F. Stern, president, 625 shares.

Attributed to Distribution.

Part of the increase in holdings of American National directors presumably resulted from the distribution made when the American Holding company, which had 6,250 of the 10,000 shares was dissolved in 1940.

All but two of the directors of the La Salle National bank, which was started in the loop more than a year ago, listed increased holdings. Laurance Armour, chairman, John Nuveen Jr., John R. Nicholson, and Marshall Field III. were the largest stockholders. Armour held 1,678; Nicholson, 1,800; Nuveen, 1,628, and Field, 990.

Of the 50,000 shares of Industrial National Bank, Hinshaw & Co., held 10,000. Bafen & Co., 4,328, and Calvin Fentress, 3,372. Cheves Walling held 1,000; William English Walling II., 2,588, and the trustees of Willoughby Haskell Walling, 2,500 shares.

A. D. Marimpietri, Samuel Levin, and Charles H. Burr as trustee controled 2,898 shares of the 4,000 shares of Amalgamated Trust and Savings Bank stock.
